A Magnificent Copy of an exceedingly rare and valuable book, both on account of its being an early specimen of poetry in Italian and as the earliest Atlas of the Mediterranean. The date should be before 1485, as the elaborate cryptogram at the beginning gives the names of the then reigning Doge (Giovanne Mocenigo) whose period was from 1477 to 1485; according to Dibdin (Aedes Althorp. II., No. 1305), the book was published about 1477. Panizzi (Bibliotheca Grenvilliana) thought it appeared from 1478 to 1485. Both may be correct according to the cryptogram. Brunet emphasises the excessive rarity of the book.

Strabo, the Greek historian and geographer, was born at Amasia, in Cappadocia, about B.C. 50, and travelled through Greece, Italy, and Asia, endeavouring to obtain the most accurate information with regard to geography, statistics and political conditions of the countries which he visited. His great work in seventeen books contains not only a description of different countries, but the chief particulars of their history, notices of eminent men, and accounts of the manners and customs of the people. The first French translator said that it contained nearly the whole history of knowledge from the time of Homer to that of Augustus.

The first book printed by Johannes Rubeus (Giovanni Rossi) of Vercelli. He continued printing at Treviso till 1485, producing, however, no more (as far as is known) than eight books.

A very fine and clean copy, complete with the two blank leaves.

¶ Only 6 copies in the U.S.A. (according to Census), viz., in the Boston Public Library; Harvard University Library; Library Company of Philadelphia; Library of Congress; Library of W. K. Bixby; J. P. Morgan Library.

This is the second edition of Donis's Ptolemy, being based on the 1482 edition, but with corrections and additions.

One of the maps, Tabula Moderna Prussie, Livonie, Norbegie et Gottie, includes Engronelant or Greenland, that part of America which was known and colonised by the Scandinavians half a millenium before Columbus.

At the close of the work is an old mediaeval treatise, which did not appear in the 1482 edition. This is given under the name of Donis, and is entitled De locis ac Mirabilibus Mundi. It seems that the original intention was to issue this treatise separately, as the sheets are marked with special signatures, and that it was included with the Ptolemy to make it more attractive to the buyer.

The first book printed by Johann Reger.

FIRST DATED EDITION.

Petrus de Aliaco, otherwise known by his French name as Pierre d'Ailly (1350 — c. 1420), a French theologian and philosopher, is an author whom Columbus is known to have studied. In his Imago Mundi he taught the possibility of reaching the Indies by the West. D'Ailly's views were useful to Columbus, and encouraged him in his undertaking. [Cf. La découverte de l'Amérique et Pierre d'Ailly, by Salembier, in Revue de Lille, 1892, V, 622-641.] Columbus had a copy of the Imago Mundi on the margin of which he had written many notes with his own hand, and which is still to be seen in the Columbine Library at Seville. In another of Columbus's books, the Libro de las profecias, are to be found many notes taken from d'Ailly's works on cosmography. Hence, Las Casas (Historia de Las Indias, Vol. I, XI, 89) says that of all modern writers d'Ailly exercised the greatest influence on the realization of Columbus's plans.

CHARLES V OF GERMANY (CHARLES I OF SPAIN).
 LETTER SIGNED REWARDING FERNANDEZ DE OVIEDO THE CHRONICLER OF THE INDIES FOR HIS SERVICES IN AMERICA.
 See Item No. 4916.

WHILST COLUMBUS WAS HALF-WAY TO AMERICA,
FERDINAND AND ISABELLA PROPOSE TO SEIZE THE GOODS OF THE GENOESE MERCHANTS RESIDENT IN SPAIN

1492 A.D. [4909] FERDINAND AND ISABEL THE CATHOLIC.

THE ORIGINAL ROYAL DECREE (IN SPANISH), SIGNED BY BOTH SOVEREIGNS, AD-DRESSED TO THE GENOESE MERCHANTS RESIDENT IN SPAIN, THREATENING TO CONFISCATE THEIR GOODS.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, FRONTISPIECE).

The date and address of this decree are of exceptional importance and interest for the history of America, in view of the fact that Christopher Columbus, a Genoese himself, had left Spain on the 3rd of the previous month, and actually arrived in the Bahamas on 12th October, 1492; so that this decree was addressed to the Genoese merchants resident in Spain when Columbus was on his way to America, and had completed about half of his first voyage.

The sovereigns declare that Inigo de Artieta has built a ship in accordance with their instructions, but fears it may be attacked by Genoese corsairs on the high seas. They, therefore, warn the Genoese merchants resident in Spain that if such a thing happens, they will be held responsible: their property in Spain will be seized, and their safe-conduct will not be valid. The sovereigns demand, in unequivocal terms, considerate treatment from Genoese captains at sea in return for the consideration accorded to Genoese merchants in Spain. Moreover, they command their judges in Seville, Cadiz, Cordova and Murcia to publish this edict in all the public squares and market-places, so that no Genoese may plead ignorance, if the time should come for the royal threat to be carried out.

Columbus of course, being of Genoese birth, had his residence at one of the ports mentioned, where there were evidently Genoese colonies. This decree must, therefore, have affected him personally, for, during his absence, his wife and child remained in Spain, where he left the necessary money and effects to provide for their needs: effects which were in jeopardy under the terms of the edict.

DON INIGO ARTIETA WAS THE COMMANDING OFFICER OF THE "BISCAY FLEET" WHICH HAD BEEN DESTINED BY THE SOVEREIGNS TO CONVEY COLUMBUS AND HIS RETINUE BACK TO THE ISLA ESPANOLA IN 1493, BUT EVENTUALLY RECEIVED OTHER INSTRUCTIONS.

The following is a translation of this decree:—

"Don Ferdinand and Doña Isabel, by the Grace of God, King and Queen of Castile, of Leon, etc., to you the Genoese merchants resident in our Kingdoms, health and grace: know ye that Inigo de Artieta our vassal and citizen of the town of Lequitio did, by our command, make a great ship upon which he now sails off Murcia: and says that he fears that those of the city of Genoa or their captains and crew may seize his said ship, navigating as he does under our protection; and for that [i.e., because] ye are well treated in our kingdoms, it is not reasonable that our subjects should receive any injury from the natives of the city of Genoa, we do give you this our letter for the said reason that we command you hence to write to the said city of Genoa in your hand, in such manner that the said Inigo de Artieta shall not be despoiled of his said ship, nor suffer any injury therein; and we give you warning that if the said ship be taken from him, or any injury be inflicted upon him therein by any person whatsoever of your nationality, ye and your goods shall pay the penalty, notwithstanding any grace accorded you by us, of security and safe-conduct, each and every one of which it is our will that ye shall not avail yourselves of in this case; rather do we henceforth annul our said protection in this contingency, and, by verbal advocacy, we do command our Justices of the cities of Seville, and Cordova, and Cadíz, and Murcia, that, as soon as our letter shall have been seen, they shall be required to proclaim and publish it before a public notary in the squares and market-places in which it is customary in each of those cities. And we do command, under penalty of a fine of ten thousand maravedis for [the coffers of] our [penal] fund, that as soon as this our letter shall have been brought to your notice and complied with, such public notary as may have been summoned for this purpose, shall there and then give testimony thereof, signed with his signature, so that we may know how our commands have been executed.

"Given in the city of Saragossa on the twelfth day of the month of September in the year of our Saviour Jesus Christ, one thousand four hundred and ninety-two.—I, the King; I, the Queen."

THE HONOUR OF THE DISCOVERY OF THE NEW WORLD CLAIMED FOR MARTIN BEHAIM

1493 A.D. [4909A] SCHEDEL (Dr. Hartman). Liber Chronicarum.

FIRST EDITION.

With the two maps and 1,800 superb woodcuts by Wohlgemuth and Pleydenwurff.

Black Letter, 64 long lines to a page, with illuminated initials.

Harrisse, No. 13. Sabin, No. 77523. Church Catalogue, No. 7. John Carter Brown Library Catalogue, Vol. I, p. 22.

The First Edition of the Famous Nuremberg Chronicle of the Middle Ages, giving a pictorial description of the World. It was published three or four months after Columbus had returned and made known his discovery, but in THIS CHRONICLE, MARTIN BEHAIM IS GIVEN THE HONOUR OF BEING THE ACTUAL DISCOVERER, AS A COUNTERCLAIM SET UP IN CONSEQUENCE OF THE NEWS OF COLUMBUS' RETURN.

The passage in question states that John II, King of Portugal, sent, in 1483, Diego Cano, a native of Portugal, and Martin Behaim of Nuremberg, with some galleys to Ethiopia; that they went to the Southern Sea, near the coast, and, after crossing the line, reached the New World, where, when they happened to look towards the East, their shadow, at noon, appeared on the right; that in that region they discovered lands, heretofore unknown, which had not been searched after by any people for many years, except the Genoese, and that in vain; finally, that after a navigation of twenty-six months they returned to Portugal; and in proof of their discovery brought pepper and grana paradisi.

An examination of the original manuscript of the work, which is still preserved in Nuremberg, has shown the passage to be an interpolation, written in a different hand. The globe made by Behaim in 1492 shows, also, that he made no claim as an American discoverer, there being nothing upon it to indicate that he had any knowledge of this alleged voyage. On the other hand, it is claimed that little is known of the last years of Behaim's life, from 1494-1506, and that there is no reason why the discoveries depicted on his later globes, as for instance, the Strait of Magellan, may not have been acquired by personal knowledge.

The work contains two important maps. The first is a copy of Ptolemy's Map of the World, and is a vigorous woodcut, decorated on its right side with a frame of human monsters, and on three of its corners with drawing of Shem, Ham, and Japhet.

The other map is of more importance. It is the FIRST MODERN MAP OF CENTRAL EUROPE, published in print, and, as such, of so much the more interest, as it seems to be based on the lost map of the celebrated Cardinal Nicolaus A. Cusa. (Norden-skiöld, Facsimile Atlas, p. 40).

The large map at end has been slightly restored in one or two places, and there are a few very minor repairs elsewhere in the volume.

Gruenpeck's work is the first dated Book on Syphilis, which may (according to Sudhoff) has been preceded only by Schelling's undated work Consilium in pustulas. According to Sudhoff, the book we are offering for sale appeared in print a few weeks after the First Edition (in German), which appeared in the autumn of 1496 in Augsburg.

This Latin Edition is of greater importance than the German Edition (which appeared a few weeks earlier), because it first contains an introduction to the Medical treatment or Cure of Syphilis (which is not to be found in the German Edition).

It is interesting to note that the author already recommended the use of a mercurial ointment. This Leipzig edition further contains an additional 10-line poem entitled Querimonia mentagrici.

The whole book is really a treatise on Sebastian Brant's poem (which appeared in October 1496, as a broadside, and of which only two copies are known), dedicated to Johannes Reuchlin, Eulogium de pestilentiali scorra sive mala de Franzos. This long poem is given here in full by the author, and Gruenpeck adds his own ideas on the subject.

Following Brant, Gruenpeck explains the sudden epidemic appearance of syphilis as the consequence of the conjunction of Saturn, Jupiter and Mars in the sign of the Scorpion. Gruenpeck then gives general directions for the avoidance and cure of the disease, and in this Latin edition only, "specific remedies," such as the mercurial ointment.

HARRISSE DID NOT KNOW THIS VERY RARE BOOK, WHICH IS OF GREAT IMPORTANCE IN THE CONTROVERSY AS TO THE AMERICAN ORIGIN OF THE DISEASE, WHICH MANY BELIEVE WAS FIRST CONTRACTED BY THE SAILORS OF COLUMBUS IN AMERICA FROM THE NATIVE INDIANS AND BROUGHT BACK TO EUROPE BY THEM TO BARCELONA, WHENCE IT SPREAD ALL OVER EUROPE.

Catalina was only able to quote Clemencin, who declared in 1821 that he had seen three copies in Spain, two of which were in institutional libraries, those of the Academia Española and the convent of S. Felipe el Real, but, according to Catalina, they were no longer there in 1894.

OUR COPY AND THAT IN THE BRITISH MUSEUM ARE NOW THE ONLY COPIES KNOWN.

This first edition, of which we offer a copy, is so excessively rare that very few bibliographers have actually handled it: neither Salva nor Colmeiro mentions it at all; HARRISSE, Medina, and Sabin had never met a copy of it, and quote the colophon, as recorded by Mendez and Clemencin, only under a totally mistaken notion (as explained at the end of this note). On the other hand, HARRISSE cites (Add. No. 10), an undated [Salamanca] edition, of which there are copies in the John Carter Brown Library, the Biblioteca Colombina, and the British Museum (No. c.63.k.1), the date of which is assumed to be 1503. None of these copies have a colophon. The true first edition possesses a colophon stating that the King and Queen ordered Juan Ramirez to see to the printing of it, and further bears the date "16th November, 1503," before which no other edition could have appeared. (Full details and collation of the undated edition, first cited by HARRISSE, are given at the end of the present note.)

THIS MOST IMPORTANT LAW BOOK CONTAINS FOR THE FIRST TIME IN PRINT AN ORDINANCE OF SUPREME INTEREST FOR THE EARLY HISTORY OF AMERICA.

THIS ORDINANCE, DATED 22ND JUNE, 1497, DECREES THAT CONVICTS, WHO ARE SENTENCED TO EXILE AND HARD LABOUR IN THE MINES, SHALL INSTEAD BE BANISHED TO THE INDIES AS COLONISTS AND SETTLERS FOR THE NEW WORLD DISCOVERED BY CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS.

The following is a full translation of this edict:—

"Don Ferdinand and Doña Isabel by the Grace of God King and Queen of Castile, of Leon, of Aragon, of Sicily, of Granada, of Toledo, of Valencia, of Jaen, of the Algarves and Algeciras, of Gibraltar, and of the Canary Islands, Count and Countess of Barcelona, Lord and Lady of Viscaya and Molina, Duke and Duchess of Athens and Neopatria, Count and Countess of Rossillon and Cerdagne, Marquis and Marchioness of Oristan and Gociano. To all the judges, officials, mayors and bailiffs and any other judicial officials of all the cities, towns and places of our kingdoms and manors to whom this edict, or its transcript signed by a public notary, may be shown: health and grace.

"Know ye that we have commanded Don Christopher Columbus, our Admiral of the Indies and the Atlantic Ocean, to return to the Island of Española and the other Islands and Lands which exist in the said Islands, to arrange for the governing and colonization thereof; and for this we command that he be given certain ships and caravels wherein certain people who receive payment for a certain period, do sail; and supplies and food for the purpose. And for that these same people will not suffice for the foundation of the said colony, as befits the service of God and ourselves, unless there be others to dwell there and serve them, we do command that this, our edict, be given to each and every one of you for this reason. Wherefore we command that whensoever any person or persons, be they men or women of our kingdoms, shall have committed or shall commit any crime or crimes for which they might have merited, or should be sentenced to, banishment—in accordance with the provisions of the laws of our kingdoms—to some island, or to hard labour in the mines, that ye do banish them to serve on the said Island Española to perform such labour as our said Admiral of the Indies may tell them or order, for the period that they may be sentenced to spend on the said island and to hard labour in the mines. And similarly all other persons who may be guilty of crimes that do not merit the death penalty but such crimes as justly merit the sentence of banishment to the said Indies: in accord with the quality of their crimes shall ye sentence and banish them to the Island Española to sojourn there and to do that which the said Admiral might command, for such time as ye may deem necessary. And all those whom ye may have sentenced until now, or might sentence hereafter, to go to the said islands, and are prisoners in your custody: these ye shall send captive and well provided for, to one of our prisons of our chanceries of Valladolid or Ciudad Real, or to the royal prison of Seville; and they who bring them in their custody to the said chanceries shall deliver the prisoners into the hands of our magistrates there; and they who are taken to the prison at Seville shall be delivered into the hands of our official there, at the expense of the condemned if they have possessions; and if possessions they have not, then the cost must be defrayed out of the penal fund of maravedis of our Chamber.

“And we do command the said Justices to perform, and comply with, all that which is above-written; and that all the Councils of the cities, towns and places situated in our kingdoms, shall render unto them all such assistance as they might have need of.

“And if any other persons shall have committed, or shall commit, crimes for the which they should be banished from these our said kingdoms, ye shall banish them to our said islands in the following manner.

“They who shall have merited perpetual banishment from our said kingdoms, ye shall banish to the said island for ten years; and they who shall have incurred the penalty of a temporary exile from these our kingdoms, shall be banished to the said island for the half of such period. And neither the ones nor the others shall in any wise whatsoever act contrary under penalty of the forfeiture of our grace and ten thousand maravedis for our Chamber, to each one who might act contrary [to our commands].

“Moreover, we command that the man who places this decree before you, shall summon you to appear before us at our court wheresoever we may be, within fifteen days counting from the one upon which ye shall have been summoned, under the said penalty; under the which, we likewise command any public notary who may have been summoned for the purpose, to give there and then to him who shall have brought you this edict, testimony thereof signed with his signature, so that we may know how our commands have been complied with.

“Given at the town of Medina del Campo on the twenty-second day of the month of June, in the year of our Saviour Jesus Christ, one thousand four hundred and ninety-seven.—I, the King. I, the Queen.”

A CORRECTION TO HARRISSE “BIBLIOTHECA AMERICANA VETUSTISSIMA, ADDITIONS,” No. 10.

The extreme rarity of the first edition is in part responsible for HARRISSE’s curious blunder, never we believe corrected, by which the identity of this edition has been merged into that of another and later edition.

HARRISSE Bibliotheca Americana Vetustissima, Additions, No. 10, purports to be a description of the edition of the Pragmaticas printed at Alcalá in 1503, i.e., the first edition. (The copy HARRISSE had before him was the one, once belonging to Fernando Columbus, now in the Biblioteca Columbina). In collating our copy we found that it agreed with HARRISSE’s description only as to the colophon, which was not in the Columbina copy, nor in any copy examined by HARRISSE, but which he gives after Clemencin and Mendez. This made us suspect that HARRISSE was not describing the Alcalá edition at all; and our conjecture was confirmed by finding in the British Museum Library a copy of an edition of the Pragmaticas which did tally exactly with HARRISSE’s description—except, of course, that it was without the colophon. This edition the British Museum has assigned to the press of Juan de Porras at Salamanca with the “circa” date of 1503; and we can know that it was printed not later than 1508, as the title contains mention of the privilege granted to the publisher, Juan Ramirez, for a period of five years, commencing from 1st December, 1503. A comparison of the two editions reveals quite unmistakably that the edition without colophon is a cheap reprint. The fine stout paper and generous margins of our Alcalá edition have been replaced by thinner paper and meagre margins; the type is smaller, the lines much longer, and the number of lines to a page is increased—which economies of space have reduced the size of the book by well over a third.

The following description of the edition without colophon, which HARRISSE mistook for the Alcalá edition, is taken from the British Museum copy:—

Title.—¶ Libro en q esta copiladas algunas bullas de nro muy sancto padre cecididas en fauor dela jurisdiccion real de sus altezas y todas las pragmaticas q estan fechas para la buena gobernacion del reyno / ¶ imprimido por madado de Juan ramirez escriuano del cosejo del rey y dela reyna nuestros señores: ¶ el qual fue tassado por sus altezas y por los señores del su consejo a un castellano de oro cada volu- ¶ men / con privilegio que sus altezas diero por su carta real / q por tiempo de cinco años cotados desde ¶ primero dia de deziembre deste presente año de mill y quinientos y tres fasta ser complidos / ningu- ¶ no otro sin su poder lo puedo imprimir enel reyno ni fuera del / ni vederlo / so pena de cinquenta mill ¶ mrs: la mitad para la camara: y la otra mitad para el dicho Juan ramirez / y de perder lo q ouiere im ¶ primido o vedido / a imprimiere o ve- ¶ diere o touiere pa veder co otro tato pa el dicho Jua ramirez.

aa⁸; a-fs-ZA-E⁸ F¹⁰ = ⁸ = 258 leaves: 1a, title (with royal arms); 1b, blank; 2a-8b, table; 9a-157b (numbered j-ccxlvij + 1 unnumbered leaf), text; 158, blank. 49 lines to a full page.

It will be observed that the wording of the title is closely copied from the Alcalá edition, the most notable difference being, that the Alcalá edition states that it has been printed a costa, and this, por mandado of Juan Ramirez.

The descriptions given by Mendez and Clemencin of the Alcalá edition are sufficiently detailed for HARRISSE to have realised that the edition he was describing was not the edition that he found recorded by these bibliographers. Presumably, however, HARRISSE, having never seen a copy of the real Alcalá edition, concluded that Mendez and Clemencin must be incorrectly describing the edition of which he had a copy before him. The fact that he had never met with a copy having the colophon did not shake HARRISSE in this assumption, for since all the copies he had examined lacked the final leaf (an innocent blank, no doubt), he took it that the colophon recorded by Mendez and Clemencin was contained on this final leaf.

This blunder of HARRISSE has had the effect of making every copy of the edition without a colophon seem imperfect, for, of course, no copy has the colophon recorded by HARRISSE. Since 1872, when appeared HARRISSE's Bibliotheca Americana Vetustissima, Additions, most bibliographers, when describing a copy of the undated edition, have, on the authority of HARRISSE, appended the colophon of the Alcalá edition, adding however, that the copy before them lacks this colophon leaf.

HARRISSE's error has remained unchecked for so long on account of the excessive rarity of the Alcalá edition, which has prevented bibliographers from having both editions before them; the British Museum Library, we believe, is the only library possessing a copy of both the editions in question, and no other library is now known, for certain fact, to have a copy of the Alcalá edition.

A peculiarity of the Alcalá edition is that the verso of folio ccxlviii is left blank, and the leaf following is numbered cclvii (an apparent gap of eight leaves, which would have composed quire H). This gap in the foliation (which has no corresponding gap in the text) probably resulted from the book being set up in type by several compositors simultaneously, in order that several presses might be kept at work printing it. It would seem that the compositor, to whom was allotted the copy from which to set up a section of the book up to, and including, folio cclvi, set up no further than the recto of folio ccxlviii when his copy gave out. The book would, therefore, have had to be printed without folios cclix-cclvi.

It is evident from the foregoing that Ramirez was anxious to get the Pragmaticas printed with the utmost expedition; and, moreover, if we are to believe the evidence of the dates, the printing of the laws was completed only six days after Ramirez had received the Royal command to see to the printing of them, which was given, according to the last paragraph in the book, on the 10th of November, 1503.

Chapter VII is entitled: "As to whether the fourth part of the world is inhabitable, which stretches from beneath the Equinoctial pole to the Austral pole." Of particular interest is a marginal note on D1 which reads: "Lo! he concludes that beyond the ecliptic, in the 50th degree, that region which Vesputius in his voyages in former years discovered and described, was habitable."

Humboldt, in his famous Examen Critique, Vol. I, page 57, remarks: "In the Strassburg edition, which I made use of, and which was published three years after the death of Amerigo Vespucci, the editor, George Tanstetter, is so astonished at the conjectures of Albertus Magnus concerning the Southern Hemisphere being inhabited up to the 50th degree of latitude, that he recalls a prophecy which was fulfilled by the voyage of Amerigo Vespucci."

REQUESTING THE ARCHBISHOP TO REWARD GONZALO FERNANDEZ DE OVIEDO (THE CHRONICLER OF THE INDIES) FOR HIS SERVICES TO THE CROWN IN AMERICA.

(Trans.):—"Most Reverend in Christ, Padre Cardinal of Spain, Archbishop of Toledo, Primate of the Spains, High Chancellor, and Inquisitor General and Governor of the Kingdoms of Castile, our very dear and well-beloved friend, Sir, and Reverend Dean of Louvain of our Council and our Ambassador in Spain.—Gonçalo Fernandes de Oviedo, our Inspector of Gold in Castile, has given us an account of how he had come from Tierra Firme to inform the Catholic King [Ferdinand V] my lord (in glory be) of all the things in those parts which he thought were desirable for our service and their own welfare; and as he had found His Highness indisposed he was unable to give an account of what he had brought. And after his decease (The King Ferdinand) he came to us, and gave us very full information concerning those places; and as we thought that this should be dealt with speedily and that in some respects the development might offer difficulties, we arranged to send him to you (and enclosed herewith we forward the memorial which he has given of everything, which is signed by our undersigned secretary): we affectionately request and charge you to see him and obtain as much information from the said Gonçalo Fernandes de Oviedo as you think desirable; and, having discussed the matter with those persons who have held and do hold office in the ministry which administers the affairs of the Indies and who could give you the fullest information, you should consider what most befits our service and the common welfare of the countries in those parts and their development, as well as what befits the person of the said Gonçalo Fernandes de Oviedo, for he has served and worked much and it is my will that he be rewarded and should receive a grant in so far as the occasion demands, in respect of what he has already spent and served and in consideration of the fact that he is an old servant of our Royal House. Make a special recommendation on his behalf and order that his expenditure and toil be refunded and paid. So that he may be encouraged to continue his good service, should there be any vacant office at present in the Isla Española or San Juan or Fernandina, it would please us that he should be appointed, and that you should attend to him and commission him as speedily as possible in accordance with what you consider of greater service to us, for we hear that he is a person of great ability, and trustworthy."

IT WAS IN THIS WORK THAT THE NAME AMERICA WAS FIRST SUGGESTED FOR THE NEW WORLD, AFTER AMERIGO VESPUCCI. THE FIRST PART OF THE BOOK CONTAINS WALDSEEMULLER'S COSMOGRAPHY, AND THE SECOND PART, AN ACCOUNT OF THE FOUR VOYAGES OF AMERIGO VESPUCCI.

"But for this little work the Western Hemisphere might have been called The Land of the Holy Cross, or Atlantis, or Hesperides, or Iberica, or Columbia, or New India, or The Indies, as it is designated officially in Spain to this day. The idea of calling the newly discovered world AMERICA originated with the compiler of the work before us, one Martin Waltzmüller, or Waldseemüller, a native of Freiburg, who held a professorship in the gymnasium of St. Dié, in Lorraine. Following the custom of the scholars of those days, he grecized his name into Hylacomylus, by which he is generally known. The popularity of Waldseemüller's Cosmographia was such in Central Europe that his proposition was immediately acted upon."

After the death of Ferdinand II, Charles V succeeded to the Kingdom of Spain. In 1517 he proceeded to Spain, which he left in 1520. At his departure he was very unpopular; he made this speech when he left and said "That he did not see the happy faces with which he had been received."

He also mentions America in the following words: "He might have been satisfied with the Spanish Empire, the Balearic Islands and Sardinia, the Kingdom of Sicily, Italy and a large part of Germany and Gaul, AND THAT OTHER GOLD-BEARING WORLD."

This edition contains more and important additional material than in the earlier editions. There has been much controversy as to who was the actual compiler of this important work, which may be considered as the first representative collection of Voyages. It is usually ascribed to Montalboddo Francan, and sometimes to Alezander Zorzi, but its chief importance lies in its including Amerigo Vespucci's letter to Lorenzo de Medici, giving him an account of his discoveries.

The other contents of the work are:—

The voyages of Cadomosto to Cape Verde, 1454-5.

The voyages of Pedro de Cintra to Senegal in 1462.

Vasco da Gama's Voyage round the Cape of Good Hope, 1497-1500.

The author Juan de Padilla was born in 1468, and died sometime after 1518. He was commonly called El Cartuxano, or the Carthusian, because he chose thus modestly to conceal his own name, and announce himself only as a monk of Santa Maria de las Cuevas in Seville. Before he entered into that severe monastery, he wrote a poem called The Labyrinth of the Duke of Cádiz, which was printed in 1493; but his chief works were composed afterwards.

“The one entitled ‘The Twelve Triumphs of the Twelve Apostles,’ was completed on the 14th of February, 1518; a poem formidable for its length, since it fills a thousand stanzas of nine lines each. It is partly an allegory, but wholly religious in its character, and is composed with more care than anything else its author wrote. The action passes in the twelve signs of the Zodiac through which the poet is successively carried by Saint Paul, who shows him, in each of them first, the marvels of one of the twelve Apostles; next, an opening of one of the twelve mouths of the infernal regions; and lastly a glimpse of the corresponding division of Purgatory. Dante is evidently the model of the great monk. Indeed, he begins with a direct imitation of the opening of the ‘Divina Commedia,’ from which, in other parts of the poem, phrases and lines are not unfrequently borrowed. The language, which has a decided air of yet elder times about it, is free and strong, and the versification, considering the period, is uncommonly rich and easy.” (Ticknor, History of Spanish Literature.)

Cortes; in which he gives an account of the lands and provinces, as yet undescribed, newly-discovered in Yucatan from the year XIX [1519] to the present, and subjugated to the royal crown of His Sacred Majesty. In particular he gives a relation of a vast and very wealthy province called Culua, wherein there are many great cities and wonderful buildings and great commerce and riches. Amongst these is a city which is richer and more marvellous than any other, called Timixtitan, which is, by wonderful art, built upon a great lagoon. The king of this city and province is a very great ruler called Muteecuma, and here, events which are terrible to hear of, have befallen the Captain and the Spaniards. He gives a lengthy account of the vast empire of the said Muteecuma and of its rites and ceremonies and mode of service."

Sabin, No. 16933; Escudero (Hispalense), No. 224; Medina, No. 64; Palau's Manual, Vol. II, p. 311; Gallardo, No. 1925; John Carter Brown Library Catalogue, Vol. I, p. 81; HARRISSE, B.A.V., No. 118. In addition to the HARRISSE-Barlow-Ives Church copy (now in the Henry E. Huntington Library) there are only two copies of this letter in the U.S.A., viz., in the John Carter Brown Library and the Lennox (New York Public) Library. In the rest of the world only four copies are known (British Museum, State Libraries at Vienna, Munich, and a library at Madrid).

This is the excessively rare and important first edition (in Spanish) of the second letter of Cortes, which was written soon after his arrival in Mexico (dated Oct. 30, 1520), to the Emperor Charles V; the first letter he wrote (which is believed to have been printed at the time) has so far not been discovered, in spite of diligent search for several hundred years. PINELO (the first American bibliographer) never saw a copy of this letter. This letter traces the events in Mexico after the departure of Cortes from Vera Cruz, when the Spaniards had been driven back from Mexico City. Cortes devotes a great deal of space to his dealings with Montezuma; the latter's remarkable empire; and how some of Montezuma's children died whilst prisoners in the Spaniards' hands. He frankly admits his misgivings in the face of heavy odds, and that on more than one occasion he thought the Spaniards must inevitably be overcome. At the end Cortes reviews all his embarrassments and remarks that he holds danger and fatigue light in comparison with the attainment of his object; and that he is confident that the Spaniards would shortly be restored to their former position, and repair all their losses. He compares Mexico to Spain, and names the country New Spain of the Ocean Sea.

"The letter excited the greatest sensation at the Spanish court and among the friends of science generally. Previous discoveries in the New World had disappointed the expectations which had been formed after the solution of the grand problem of its existence. They had brought to light only rude tribes, which, however gentle and inoffensive in their manners, were still in the primitive stages of barbarism. Here was an authentic account of a vast nation, potent and populous, exhibiting an elaborate social polity, well advanced in the arts of civilisation, occupying a soil that teemed with mineral treasures and with a boundless variety of vegetable products, stores of wealth, both natural and artificial, that seemed, for the first time, to realise the golden dreams in which the great discoverer of the New World had so fondly, and in his own day, so fallaciously, indulged. Well might the scholar of that age exult in the revelation of these wonders, which so many had long, but in vain, desired to see."

This letter was translated into Latin by Petrus Savorgnanus, and published in 1524. [Some words on last leaf in facsimile.]

An interesting publication, containing the text of a hundred and six petitions which were dealt with by the Emperor Charles V at the Valladolid courts in 1523; and the rulings given in each case. Amongst them is a petition requesting that the date of term or periods of slave grants should not be altered after the grant had once been made; and that the Emperor should not allow any foreigners to trade in the Indies. The reply is: that the request would be complied with.

Harrisse, No. 173. John Carter Brown Library Catalogue, Vol. I, p. 104.

The map is extremely important and was executed in 1531 by Finé for Christian Wechel. It was based on the Basel edition issued a few months earlier, but is of far greater value. Concerning it, Nordenskiöld in his Facsimile Atlas states: "In a geographical point of view this map far surpasses that of the Basel edition, as well in its greater richness of names and topographical details, as in due attention being here paid to the latest geographical discoveries. The islands in the Polar-basin are here copied from Ruysch; Greenland is drawn as a large island; North America forms, in accordance with the conception of Columbus, a mere continuation of Asia, which, by a narrow isthmus, is connected with South America. In the South this part of the New World is separated by a narrow strait from a large South Polar Continent: Terra Australis, on which the names Regio Patalis and Brasielie regio are inscribed. No name is placed at the straits of Magellan, but the sea to the West of it is called Mare Magellanicum, which, as far as I know, is the first time that the name of this discoverer occurs on a printed map of unquestioned date." There is no mention of the map in the text.

Among the contents of this famous work, are: The three voyages of Columbus, 1492-1498. Voyages of Petrus Alonzo. Voyage of Vincent Pinzon to Brazil in 1499. Epitome of the voyages of Vespucci by Alberi Vespucci. The first, second, and fourth voyages of Amerigo Vespucci. King Manuel's letter to Pope Leo X concerning the Portuguese discoveries. Accounts of the travels of Varthema and Marco Polo. Peter Martyr's account of the newly discovered Islands.

Harrisse B.A.V. No. 176. Church Catalogue No. 65. Sabin No. 1557. Medina Vol. I, No. 92. John Carter Brown Library Catalogue, Vol. I, p. 108.

This work contains the first three Decades and an abridgment of the Fourth, containing the discoveries of Columbus, Vespuccius and Cabot, and new discoveries by Cortes.

The Church Catalogue could only mention three further copies (British Museum, John Carter Brown, and Lenox Libraries).

Pietro Martire d'Anghiera, better known by his Latinized name Petrus Martyr, the first historian of America, was born at Arona, in July, about 1455, and died at Granada, in Spain, in 1526. He possessed eminent ability and learning, and is believed to have been the first Italian writer to notice in his works the discovery of America by his countryman Columbus, as he is the first who published a treatise descriptive of the peculiarities of the natives of the New World. In 1483 he went to Rome, where he became acquainted with Cardinal Ascanio Sforza and Pomponius Laetus, to both of whom many of his letters were addressed. He was extremely fond of letter-writing, and, it was owing to him that the news of Columbus's discovery became speedily known to a number of people outside of Spain.

In 1494 he was ordained a priest and appointed as tutor to the children of Ferdinand and Isabella. Seven years later he was sent on a diplomatic mission to Egypt, an account of which he has given us in his Legatio Babylonica, printed at end of above work.

He was the friend and contemporary of Columbus, Vasco da Gama, Cortés, Magellan, Cabot, and Vespuccius. From personal contact with these discoverers, as well as from his official position as a member of the Council for the Indies, which afforded him the free inspection of documents of undoubted authenticity, he was enabled to obtain, at first-hand, much valuable information regarding the discoveries made by the early navigators. These facts he embodied in his Decades, which were based upon his extensive correspondence, but were written with more care and give more ample details. His works were held in highest esteem by his contemporaries and have always been placed in the highest rank of authorities on the history of the first association of the Indians with the Europeans, and are indispensable as a primary source for the history of early American discoveries.

Peter Martyr, and the second from the work of Oviedo, printed at Toledo in 1526. The third part is a translation, with additions, of the anonymous work La conquista del Peru, printed at Seville in 1534. This third part has sometimes been wrongly described as a translation of Francisco Xeres' 'Verdadera relacion de la Conquista del Peru,' also printed at Seville in 1534. It was also translated into French and printed at Paris in 1545, the authorship being erroneously attributed to Oviedo. HARRISSE describes a large map of the West Indies which is lacking in this copy. It is so rare, in fact, that but a single copy of it is known, that in the Lennox Library. The small map, here contained, which is the earliest one of San Domingo and Haiti, is also very rare."

THE MAXIMILIANUS TRANSYLVANUS CONTAINS TWO DISTINCT AND ORIGINAL ACCOUNTS OF MAGELLAN'S VOYAGE ROUND THE WORLD.

The first is by Maximilianus Transylvanus, and was addressed by him to the Cardinal of Salzburg, and is translated into Italian from the Latin.

The second is a short account which Pigafetta published from his own manuscript diary or journal, addressed by him to the Grand Master Philip de Villiers l'Isle Adam, the chief source of information for the events of that voyage. This professes to be a translation from Fabre's French abridgement of the journal published at Paris about 1525. The final leaf contains a vocabulary of Indian words as used by the Brazilian Indians.

THE BOOK IS PRECEDED BY A REMARKABLE PREFACE, al Lettore, IN WHICH THE EDITOR (WHO DOES NOT GIVE HIS NAME) SHOWS HIMSELF TO HAVE BEEN PERFECTLY ACQUAINTED WITH THE PROGRESS OF DISCOVERY AND RESEARCH IN THE WEST, AND TO HAVE UNDERSTOOD THE REAL IMPORTANCE OF THE EVENTS THEN TAKING PLACE, BETTER THAN MOST OF HIS CONTEMPORARIES. THIS PREFACE ONLY OCCUPIES FIVE PAGES, BUT IT IS INDEED A NOTEWORTHY REVIEW OF ALL THE LATEST ADVANCES IN GEOGRAPHY.

This extraordinarily rare book is divided into two parts: the first, deals with the globe, meridians, zones, eclipses, climate, the zodiac, etc. "and refutes many popular beliefs, such as that the sun suffers during an eclipse; when in reality all that might suffer would be that which is temporarily deprived of the sun's rays."

The second part deals with latitudes, winds, the declinations of the sun, the compass, the horizon, etc.

Little is known of the life of Falero or Faleiro. Espasa's Enciclopedia only mentions him in connection with the biography of his brother Ruy, who was a life-long friend and associate of Magellan. The two brothers, natives of Portugal, were astronomers and geographers; and left Lisbon together with Magellan in 1517, as Ruy had in some way forfeited the favour of King Manuel I. Arrived in Spain, however, they managed to obtain the patronage of the Emperor Charles V, who granted them an allowance. Francisco (who, according to Navarrete, was also sometimes spoken of as "Fernando"), was to have accompanied his brother and Magellan on an expedition in search of spice, but abandoned the project; turning his attention to the compilation of this work on the art of navigation, which was submitted to the university of Salamanca before publication.

Medina publishes the text of some documents relating to Francisco Faleiro in his "Fernando de Magellanes," his recent historical study of Magellan, No. 206 in our Catalogue, No. 496.

This rare item was of such immense importance for the history of Portuguese Nautical Science at the period of the Great Discoveries that it was specially reproduced in facsimile by order of the Portuguese Minister of Education in 1915 by J. Bensaude. This facsimile is itself a great rarity.

WE HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO TRACE ANY OTHER COPY OF THIS BOOK, EXCEPT THAT IN THE MUNICH LIBRARY, WHICH IS A SHORTER COPY THAN OURS.

"This remarkable book, like its prototype, the Republic of Plato, is one of the few books that is destined to a lasting fame. It is one, too, that belongs to our speciality of books relating to America: Utopia being an imaginary island near the continent of South America. The farthest discovery of Vespuce, in his fourth voyage, along the coast of Brazil, appears to have been Cape Frio. The narrator of the story of the happy republic being one of the company of Vespuce, was by the latter, left on the island referred to. We quote from the Utopia.

"One Raphael Hythlodaye, a native of Portugal, 'for the desire that he had to see and know farre countreys of the worlde, joyned himself in company with Amerike Vespuce, and in the iii last voyages of those iiii that be nowe in printe, and abrode in every mannes handes, he continued styll in his companym saving that in the last voyage he came not home agayne with him. For he made such meanes and shift as to be one of the xxiiii whiche in the ende of the last voyage were left in the countreu of Gulike. . . . But after the departynge of Mayster Vespuce, when he had travailed through and aboute many Countreyss with five of his companions Gulikianes, he chaunced to fynde certaine of hys Countrye shippes, wherein he retroued agayne into his Countreye.'"

Raphael afterwards related "how that after the departyng of Vespuce, he and his fellows that taried behynde in Gulicke, began by little and little, through fayre and gentle speache, to wyne the love and favoure of the people of that countrye, insomuch that within short space, they dyd dwell amonges them, not only harmlesse, but also occupying with them verve familiarly."

The country where Raphael stopped was called Utopia, a republic, the idea of which is borrowed from Plato. Every house in its fifty-four walled cities had a large garden: and these houses were exchanged by lot every ten years. All the islanders learned agriculture; but all had besides a certain trade, at which six hours' work and no more, had to be performed daily. There were no taverns, no changing fashions, few laws, and no lawyers. War was considered a brutal thing, and hunting only fit for butchers, etc., etc."

This translation into French was made by Jehan le Blond d'Evreux.

"It was a French version which first popularized More's speculations. The French rendering preceded any English rendering by at least a year. The priority of France in this regard needs no recondite explanation. The Utopia had a closer affinity with French intellectual progress than with English. In her association with More's 'Utopia' France, too, was true to her rôle of agent-general for European culture. The great French scholar Budaeus may be said to have rendered England as well as Europe the service of interpreting the significance of More's philosophy. The anonymous French translator of 1549, and the Parisian bookseller, Charles Angelier, who in 1550 circulated More's Latin in modern speech, may be credited with giving the unscholarly world the first opportunity of studying at first hand More's social and political gospel. France efficiently relieved More's Utopia of the risk of oblivion to which English blindness exposed it.

"The paradoxical features which attach to the early fate of More's Utopia pass beyond the confines of bibliography. The cold neglect of the book at home, and the magnetic force which is exerted abroad, receive graphic illustration in the most characteristic literature of the early days of the French Renaissance. Not only was More's Utopia printed in Paris in the original Latin; not only was it eulogized by foreign scholars; not only was it translated into French before England gave any sign of recognition, it was also read and assimilated by the most notable prose-writer and most advanced thinker of the early days of the French Renaissance by Rabelais. And that at an hour when More was barely known to his own countrymen save in his secondary and conflicting rôle of an heroic martyr of reaction. Special attention is due to the evidence of familiarity with More's book which Rabelais offers in his buoyant story of Gargantua and of Gargantua's son Pantagruel, because it is a new fact in the comparative study of French and English literature, and one without precise parallel in the period which we are surveying."—(Sidney Lee, The French Renaissance in England).

This book contains an abridgement of the contents of Medina's Arte de Navegar, which was included to facilitate the studies of those who intended to become trans-Atlantic pilots; and contains all the practical instructions which were given in the previous work. Our copy contains, in facsimile, the two leaves which are usually missing at the beginning of the book, consisting of the text of Medina's letter to the cosmographer Chaves, and the reply.

Pedro de Medina was a native of Seville (1493) where he died in 1567, and was one of the most eminent mathematicians and cosmographers of his day. In addition to his famous works on navigation, he wrote Grandezas de España (offered in this catalogue) and other books. Hurtado has, in the Historia de la Literatura Española, accused Medina of plagiarism in respect of Ocampo's Cronica, which was published in 1543; but it should be recorded that Medina mentions, in his Grandezas, important events in Spanish history, such as Columbus's voyage to America, which took place after the publication of Ocampo's work.

Church Catalogue, Nos. 87-96. Sabin, Nos. 11228-11235. Medina, Vol. I, Nos. 146-152, 156. John Carter Brown Library Catalogue, Vol. I, pp. 167-170.

EXCESSIVELY RARE. A complete set of these original treatises, containing the nine parts as issued. All First Editions. With title-pages nearly all printed in red and black with woodcut borders. Dibdin remarks: "This History is a prodigiously great gem in the bibliographical battery of collectors; especially if the . . . parts be complete."

The Church Catalogue only knows of sets in the following nine libraries: British Museum, Huth, Rothschild, John Carter Brown, Pequet, Lenox, Halsey, Hoe, and Ayer Libraries.

Bartolomé de Las Casas, the Apostle to the Indians of the Sixteenth Century, was born in Seville in 1474 of aristocratic lineage, and died at Madrid in 1566. In 1502 he went with Nicolas de Ovando to Hispaniola, where he settled, and in 1510 was ordained a priest. In 1511 he went as curate to a village in Cuba. He soon began to preach against the atrocious wrongs committed by the Spaniards against the natives, under a system of slavery the most cruel and destructive the world has ever known. This drew upon him the animosity of his countrymen. Unable, by any means in his power, to check this cruelty, in 1515 he returned to Spain to make a personal appeal to his sovereign. Ferdinand's death, which happened soon after his arrival in Seville, put an end to his hopes in this direction, but he found sympathetic friends in Cardinal Ximenes and Adrian, the Regents, though he encountered general hostility to his views.

He returned to Hispaniola Nov. 11, 1516, fortified with the title of The Protector of the Indians. He made numerous voyages between the Indies and Spain, in his endeavours to alleviate their condition. At last wearied with his efforts and lack of success, he retired to a Dominican convent in San Domingo, in 1522. He there spent eight years in retirement, occupied in study and writing.

His work was not at first allowed to be printed, but was submitted to the Emperor and his ministers. Twelve years later the work was published with a dedication to Philip, the heir to the throne. Though the number of victims was contested, it should be remarked that the acts of cruelty which he described were never called in question.

NOTES.

- I. One of the most gruesome books ever written.
- II. These four leaves which are appended to the Brevissima Relacion are usually mentioned as a separate tract, though it is really a part of that work. It contains the narrative of a Spanish traveller who witnessed some of the cruelties practised upon the natives by the Spaniards.
- III. This tract gives the eighth of the proposed remedies, and assigns twenty reasons to prove that the Indians should not be given to the Spaniards in any form of slavery.

IV. The Bishop, during his absence in Mexico attending a council, had written twelve rules to the confessors whom he had appointed in his diocese to govern them in giving absolution. The rites of the Church were, by a Bull of Pope Paul III, refused to all who held Indians in slavery, and restitution of goods obtained by violence from them was required by the rules of the Bishop founded upon this great authority. Complaint having been made to the Council of the Indies of the rigour of these rules, the thirty propositions were written to sustain them.

V. This tract contains a strong enunciation of Las Casas' convictions, which grew out of his controversy with Sepulveda. It contains, first a summary, by Domingo de Soto, of the differences between the two disputants; second, the arguments of Sepulveda; and third, the twelve replies of Las Casas to the same.

VI. This tract contains judicial authorities and reasons why the natives should be restored to freedom.

VII. This tract was written in America in 1546 or 1547, for the direction of Confessors, during Las Casas' attendance at the council held in the City of Mexico, in 1547, and may first have been printed in that city. By these rules the Confessors of his Bishopric were instructed to deny the offices of the Church to all such persons as held repartimientos, or who did not restore the avails of unrequited labour to the Indians.

VIII. This tract gives the principles on which Las Casas conducted his defence of the rights of the natives, and was evidently written to familiarize the Clergy with the principles upon which he based his whole theory of the rights of the Indians to personal liberty and rights of property.

IX. The purpose of this tract is to prove the sovereign Empire and universal dominion by which the Kings of Castile and Leon held the West Indies.

An extremely important work. Although relating principally to the East Indies it contains particulars regarding the Portuguese conquests in Brazil. This was the first translation (in any language) of Castanheda's original Portuguese work published at Coimbra two years previously.

Fernan Lopez de Castanheda was a native of Santarem, and went out to India in 1528, where he became an Oidor at Goa. During his twenty years' sojourn in India, he conceived the idea of his great history, diligently outlining the story and amassing a vast store of information concerning the country, the people, history, natural resources, etc. He returned to his native country, "poor in health and estate," as Innocencio remarks, "but rich in knowledge; and was obliged to accept the post of warden at the College of Arts in the University of Coimbra, and curator of the archives there, until 1559."

The author gives the Voyage of Pedro Alvarez Cabral to India in 1500, in the course of which Brazil was discovered.

"The expedition remained on the coast eight days. The General ordered a high stone cross to be erected here, and named the country 'La Tierra de Santa Cruz,' or the Land of the Holy Cross, which name will be found on the earliest maps of the Eastern portion of the continent of South America. From here Cabral sent home a caravel, with letters to the King, giving an account of his voyage hitherto, and stating that he had left two exiles here to examine the country; and particularly to ascertain if it were a continent, as it appeared to be from the length of the coast he had passed. He likewise sent one of the natives to show what kind of people inhabited the country."—Bartlett, Vol. I, pp. 263-4.

The excessively rare second edition of this important work, which contains records of the greatest interest and value for the earliest history of America.

The book is a chronicle of the events of the life of the Portuguese King John II, an epoch-making period which might have won for Portugal the vast Indies of the West if the King had had as much enterprise as his young successor, Manuel I, who acquired the Indian empire of the East.

It is a fact that John of Portugal had been approached by Columbus before the sovereigns of Spain were petitioned, to fit out an expedition for the purpose of discovering the Island of Cipango in the far west; for Columbus's ambition as an explorer had been fired by reading of the travels of Marco Polo. John, however, proved sceptical of the existence of many of the places cited by Marco Polo, and stubbornly refused to grant Columbus's wish. It was only after persistent effort in the face of bitter discouragement that Ferdinand and Isabel granted him some ships—for Columbus had to contend with the prejudices of the cosmographers at the Spanish court as well as of those at Lisbon, who scoffed at his enthusiasm and described his belief in the western islands as evidence of an over-fantastic imagination.

His return to Lisbon in March 1493, after having discovered the Antilles which he took to be the Cipango of Marco Polo's narrative, had the effect, as may be imagined, of embittering King John very considerably. So vague was the geographical knowledge of the day, that the King of Portugal actually imagined that America—or the part that had been discovered—was in the neighbourhood of his lands in Guinea; and that the samples of gold and silver which the discoverer brought back with some of the native Indians, really belonged to the dominions of the Portuguese crown!

Columbus's jealous rivals not only accused him of boasting unduly about his discovery, but fearing that perchance it might be true, applied to the King of Portugal for permission to slay him there and then, so that further "discoveries" might not accrue to the sister-kingdom.

Resende states, in one of the chapters of this book, that "the king was notified" of Columbus's arrival in Lisbon on 6th March, 1493, after having discovered the Cipango and Antilles Islands, and bringing back "samples of people and gold," from the place of which he had now become the Admiral; "and the king showed that for this reason he was annoyed and aggrieved; not only because he thought that the discovery had been made within the boundaries and seas of his colony of Guinea, but because the said Columbus had been raised from his former condition, and in describing these things, he did so in terms of gold and silver and wealth far exceeding the reality; and he taunted the king for having missed sending him upon this voyage of discovery, although he had suggested it to him before proposing it to the sovereigns of Castile; and it had been rejected because his words had not been believed."

"And it was proposed to the king that he should agree to have him [Columbus] killed there (in Lisbon), because with his death the discoveries on the part of Castile would not proceed further; and that if His Highness consented, it could be done without arousing suspicion, because, with his discourtesy and excitement, matters could be twisted round to make it appear as though the faults had been the cause of his death. But as the king was God-fearing, he not only opposed the suggestion but actually honoured and favoured him, and sent him away thus."

King John then ordered a great fleet to be got ready for the purpose of attacking the Spaniards, placing in command Dom Francisco d'Almeida who was afterwards the first Viceroy of India; "and when the fleet was ready, a messenger arrived from the King and Queen of Castile who had heard that the fleet had been prepared to fight against one of theirs which was due to return. They requested the king not to send out the fleet until it could be decided by law in whose seas and lands this newly-discovered country lay; for which purpose they wished him to send his ambassadors and procurators to their court, with everything referring to his claim; and in accordance with reason and justice, they would put matters right. For this reason the king cancelled the voyage of the fleet and sent Doctor Pedro Diaz and Ruy de Piera to confer with the said sovereigns."

They did not come to any decision, however, because the Spanish fleet had not yet arrived with further information concerning the extent and wealth of the New World, and the Spanish rulers were reluctant to cede any share of it to Portugal in the meantime, in case the wonderful reports were true and a great empire with all its potentialities was opening out for Spain. To gain time, they "ordered that the reply should be rendered through their own ambassador and thus it was done."

Garcia Resende was a Portuguese chronicler who was born at Evora in 1470. He was a gentleman-in-waiting to King John II of Portugal, and for a time, served the king's son, Dom Affonso; but, on the Infante's death, resumed his duties with the king. He accompanied Duarte Galvao and Tristan da Cunha on their embassy to Rome. His principal work is that biography of his royal master, but he also wrote Breve memorial de peccados and some verses which he set to music. He was the brother of Andres de Resende, the famous archaeologist and humanist.

This rare work will be fully described by H.M. King Manuel in his CATALOGUE OF A COLLECTION OF EARLY PORTUGUESE BOOKS IN THE LIBRARY OF H.M. KING MANUEL OF PORTUGAL (London, Maggs Bros., 1928).

was not published in London till 1582. See also note to No. 4937 of this catalogue.

The author gives the Voyage of Pedro Alvarez Cabral to India in 1500, in the course of which Brazil was discovered.

“The expedition remained on the coast eight days. 1555 A.D. [4940] HONTER (John.) Rudimentorum Cosmographicorum.

With the small Atlas at end containing the series of 13 woodcut maps, including a world-map shewing America.

The little Atlas containing the 13 maps is found at the end of the volume. Humboldt seemed to think that it formed a separate work, sometimes bound up with the Cosmographia, yet the words “cum tabellis Geographicis” imply that the maps are part of the original work. The three preliminary pages of the Atlas contain three further diagrams, one of which is a small map of the world also shewing America. The work itself is in the form of a poem.

This is a very fascinating little book written by a very interesting person. John Honter, claimed both by Hungarians and Rumanians as their compatriot, was born in Cronstadt in Transylvania, educated at Basle and Cracow University, and became a Reformist, took refuge in Cracow, where he was appointed professor of Geography in the University, and afterwards returned to Transylvania. His biographers call him the first important reformer who introduced the Reformation into Transylvania. He died there in 1549. The book was a popular one and passed through many editions. Some of these are described by HARRISSE, SABIN, ESTREICHER, and most fully by the Hungarian bibliographer SZABO.

Not in Sabin. Church Catalogue, No. 108.

The Church Catalogue only knows of copies in four libraries, including the British Museum.

The illustrations in this Edition are reduced from those in the Paris edition of the previous year, and are all engraved in reverse. They furnished De Bry with
celebrated Plantin Press, which had only recently (1555) begun printing.

Thirty-one pages (folios 146-161) are devoted to Canada and Newfoundland.
The information contained in these pages was probably derived from Jacques Cartier. On folio 145 there is an account of Bacalao, and the attempts of Cabot to "dresser la vue nouvelle Angleterre." On folio 150 Thevet describes Tobacco Smoking; a certain "herbe sechée" put into the end of a hollow horn, "laquelle ayans frottée entre leurs mains, y mettet le feu, et en reçoivet la fumée par la bouche par l'autre bout du cornet. Et en prennent en telle quantité, qu'elle sort par les yeux et par le nez."

This edition not in Sabin.

The fame of John Holywood, or Halifax, of Oxford, rests entirely upon his Sphaera, a little work in four chapters, which treat respectively of the terrestrial globe; of circles great and small; of the rising and setting of the stars; and of the orbits and movements of the planets.

IT WAS THE SECOND ASTRONOMICAL WORK TO APPEAR IN PRINT.

It is evident that a work originally written in the early part of the thirteenth century cannot contain anything on America, but this work became to the mathematicians and geographers of the century following the re-discovery by Columbus, an inexhaustible source of commentaries, some of which certainly contain references to the oceanic discoveries, attributed especially by the Italian commentators to Vespuccius."

the best and most important that were published during the most resplendent period in Spain in the sixteenth century.

The woodcut map of the New World shows the Atlantic coast of North America, from Newfoundland to Florida; and the Pacific coast as well, from Central to South America.

One of the most interesting chapters on the province of Andalucia deals with the port of Palos, whence "on the third day of the month of August in the year of Our Lord one thousand four hundred and ninety-two, the valorous and renowned Don Christopher Columbus sailed with three caravels which the Catholic Sovereigns had ordered that he should have, in which three brothers sailed as pilots and captains. They were called Pinzon, natives of this town of Palos; and with ninety persons who were likewise inhabitants, and mostly natives, of this town, they sailed across the sea, inspired by God, Who made him the minister of so great and remarkable an enterprise." There are further references to Columbus, North America, Magellan and the Straits he discovered in South America, etc.

Mentioning voyages to Greenland, and the pirates there, and how they wreck Merchantmen by boring holes in their bottoms from their small leather boats. Also containing an account of the Greenland pigmies and of one of their battles against geese. Three woodcuts are of American interest. One represents a wreck off the coast of Greenland, another shows a fight between two Greenland pigmies, and the third depicts a battle between the pigmies (some being mounted on the backs of sheep) and a flock of geese. Chapters 9 to 12 of book II concern Greenland.

Anselmo, Bibliografia das obras impressas en Portugal no seculo XVI, No. 498 (London, Maggs Bros., 1927).

This interesting little book contains a law of the arms which every person was obliged to have in all the kingdoms and dominions of Portugal in which it is distinctly said that "And inasmuch as some of the said persons are denizens in the Islands of Madeira, or the Azores, Cape Verde, San Tomé, or the settlements of Brazil, they are not obliged to hold horses, but need only hold the above said arms just as if they held horses, and instead of the horse or horses which by the provisions of this law they should have held they should hold in addition two harquebuses, a pike or lance and a shield or target for each horse which they should have held."

In the same law is to be found a later provision which says that dwellers in the said Islands or parts of Brazil who own an estate worth 400,000 Reis more or less should be obliged to have a fitted harquebus, a casque, a target, a pike and a lance and should not be obliged to keep horses because of the nature of their territory.

On pages 154-157 there is the ley sobre a liberdade dos gentios das terras do Brasil, e em que casas se podem, ou nam podem cativar. In this law the King attacks the illegal methods by which the Indians of Brazil were made slaves to the Portuguese settlers. He forbids any slaves to be made in Brazil except in the case of prisoners of war, in wars waged officially by the King's authority or by the Governor's authority. An exception is made in the case of those Indians who are accustomed to "salt the Portuguese or to eat them," such as the Aymures, and others.

Other laws refer to newly converted Indians, Chinese and Japanese who were excused from paying tithes for fifteen years, and permission for the converted Kings and natives of India, China, Japan and the Maluccas to trade freely with the Portuguese and with one another.

A further law forbids the Portuguese to capture any natives of Japan or hold them for ransom, and those Portuguese who went trading to Japan were forbidden to use false weights and measures.

This work will be fully described by King Manuel in his CATALOGUE OF A COLLECTION OF EARLY PORTUGUESE BOOKS IN THE LIBRARY OF KING MANUEL OF PORTUGAL (London, Maggs Bros., 1928).

Salva (footnote to No. 28, to his citation No. 3775), states: "It is the most notable work that exists on the American languages, and is therefore greatly valued."

Sabin (No. 49867) warns the buyer of this very scarce edition to "be careful to secure a copy with title-pages to both parts, for sometimes the first title-page being deficient the enterprise of a dealer induces him to put the second in its place, as it reads nearly the same; the woodcut, however, represents San Francis, and differs from the escutcheon on the first title." Our copy has both the right title-pages.

Alonso de Molina was a Spanish Franciscan friar, who spent many years in Mexico and mastered the native language at an early age. He devoted his life to disseminating the doctrines of Christianity amongst the Indians, in their own language.

A fine book, containing the text of three scientific treatises by the greatest Portuguese mathematician and astronomer. Indeed, Pedro Nuñez is regarded by many authorities as one of the greatest mathematicians who appeared in Europe in the sixteenth century, being outrivalled only by Copernicus. He was born at Alcacer do Sal, Portugal, but the exact dates of his birth and death have not been certified. Nicolas Antonio, however, the Spanish bibliographer, gives Nuñez' period as 1492 to 1577.

He was chief cosmographer at the Court of João III, and numbered amongst his pupils the Infantes Luiz and Henrique (afterwards the Cardinal-king of Portugal) and their nephew, King Sebastian.

When the Portuguese university was transferred from Lisbon to Coimbra, Nuñez was appointed to the first chair for Mathematics in 1544, which he held for eighteen years. He spent the later years of his life in Lisbon, whither the young King Sebastian had bidden him take up his residence.

Et autre ciel s'y voit d'autre nature,
Autre bestail, autres fruits & verdure,

C'est au Dauphin à voir ces mers estranges,
C'est à luy seul à remplir de louanges
La grand' rondeur du paternal croissant.

The expeditions referred to of Jacques Cartier, of Roberval and of Ville Gagnon were unfortunate, and the Dauphin did not set sail for Canada. (See Chapter V, L'Amérique et le Grand Public en France au milieu du XVIe siècle; vulgarisateurs et Poètes, in Gilbert Chinard's excellent monograph L'Exotisme Américain dans la Littérature Française au XVIe siècle d'après Rabelais, Ronsard, Montaigne, etc.).

“Saint-Gelais not only introduced into French poetry the imitation of Italian models, and with it the Neo-Petrarchism at this time so fashionable in Italy, but he is also the first representative of that element in French poetry which found so much favour throughout the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, of an element into which the intellect enters largely, the fancy a little, and the heart not at all, the element in short of pure esprit. He is thus the forerunner of Desportes and Voiture and Voltaire.” (Tilley, Literature of the French Renaissance).

The author gives the Voyage of Pedro Alvarez Cabral to India in 1500, in the course of which Brazil was discovered.

"The expedition remained on the coast eight days. The General ordered a high stone cross to be erected here, and named the country 'La Tierra de Santa Cruz,' or the Land of the Holy Cross, which name will be found on the earliest maps of the Eastern portion of the continent of South America. From here Cabral sent home a caravel, with letters to the King, giving an account of his voyage hitherto, and stating that he had left two exiles here to examine the country; and particularly to ascertain if it were a continent, as it appeared to be from the length of the coast he had passed. He likewise sent one of the natives to show what kind of people inhabited the country."—Bartlett, Vol. I, pp. 263-264.

The Frontispiece-title is entitled "The Discoverie and Conquest of the Provinces of Peru, and the Navigation in the South Sea, along that Coast. And also of the ritche Mines of Potosi."

"This work is, in fact, the foundation of all the subsequent histories of the events to which it refers, and the narrative is given with force and simplicity. The characters of the different heroes are clearly and strongly drawn, and there is a long, distinct chapter on the appearance, conduct, and dispositions of Pizarro and Almagro. The accounts of the execution of Almagro, and of the assassination of Pizarro, are written with much spirit and picturesqueness; and the story of the misfortunes and final death of Atabaliba, the young Peruvian Inca, is very touching.

"The work is printed in two different types, perhaps for speed, and may have been the result of two printers, although the name of Richard Jones only is at the bottom of the title-page."

The expeditions referred to of Jacques Cartier, of Roberval and of Ville Gagnon were unfortunate, and the Dauphin did not set sail for Canada. (See chapter V, L'Amérique et le Grand Public en France au milieu de XVIe siècle: vulgarisateurs et Poètes, in Gilbert Chinard's excellent monograph L'Exotisme Américain dans la Littérature Française au XVIe siècle d'après Rabelais, Ronsard, Montaigne, etc.), etc.).

“ Melin de Saint-Gelais (1481-1558) is the only notable standard-bearer of the group. A natural son of Octavien, he was highly cultured, quite a student of Italian and a rival of Marot for the credit of having introduced the sonnet into French. He was aptly called l'Homère des vers d'album. Mellin was a favourite at the court of Henry II, who liked his Italianate manner. Mignardises is the name of the formal blossoms which he culled for the court circles of his time (1547). He prepared an edition of the French translation by Colin of the Cortegiano, and he himself translated into French the Sophonisba of Trissino, a play that is important in the development of the drama. In triumphing over Mellin, Ronsard triumphs over the Marotic muse in its Italianized form. An excellent sample of Mellin's style is found in his rendering of a sonnet by Sannazzaro, also translated by the English poet Wyatt. We cite the first quatrain:

“*Voyant ces monts de veue ainsi lointaine,
Je les compare à mon long desplaisir:
Haut est leur chef, et haut est mon désir,
Leur pied est ferme, et ma foy est certaine.*”

(Nitze and Dargan, History of French Literature).

The original Spanish Manuscript of the first Catechism (with the translation in Quichua and Aymara), in double columns; signed on last page by the members of the Santo Concilio Provincial, viz. the Archbishop of Los Reyes

Medina (Imprenta en Lima, No. 1) devotes eighteen pages to the history of this translation, which was first printed in Lima (Los Reyes) by Antonio Ricardo, in 1584, and was the first book to be printed in Peru. Medina did not know of the whereabouts of the original manuscript.

From the preface in this manuscript, it is established that this authentic translation of the catechism into the native languages of Peru, had been done by "able and learned persons" deputed by the Concilio Provincial, but no names are given of the individual compilers of this work, which was published under the direct auspices of the Concilio.

Medina points out that Sommervogel has attributed the authorship to Padre José de Acosta; but this Jesuit, like Padre Juan de Atienza, whose name is also associated with the work, was no more than a proof-corrector, who signed the text to testify to its correctness in accordance with the original. The book is, however, the work of Jesuits, as a Royal Letter dated San Lorenzo, 1584, addressed to the Viceroy of Peru, proves. The Dominicans, however, made definite claim to the work of translating a great part of this book; but there seems to be no doubt that the final editing was in the hands of the Jesuits.

However that may be, the value of this manuscript is indisputable; not only because this is the ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT of the text which is declared to be the authentic one to be printed approved by the Santo Concilio Provincial, but because it bears the AUTOGRAPH SIGNATURES of all the members of the Council, and is the original manuscript of one of the bibliographical gems of America.

Church Catalogue, 130. Sabin, No. 11287. John Carter Brown Library Catalogue, Vol. I, p. 295.

The volume is divided into several sections:—

A briefe Narration of the destruction of the Indies, by the Spaniardes, which occupies leaves A1 to M4 recto is a translation of Las Casas' Brevissima relacion de la destruycion de las Indias, published in Seville in 1552.

"This book is most valuable for the particulars it contains of the cruelties committed by the Spaniards in the Ile of Hispaniola, Terra Firme, Nicaragua, Mexico, Peru, and the adjacent kingdoms of South America, from the year 1493, when the Spaniards first commenced to inhabit the continent, to almost the date of the present volume—cruelties carried on for such a length of time and with a pertinacity so remarkable as to call forth even in those times a remonstrance against such inhuman barbarity." One section, occupying three pages, is intitled "Of the Provinces of the firme lande, or quarter that is called FLORIDA."

On the verso of M4 begins a translation of another tract of Las Casas printed in 1552, the Lo que se sigue es un pedaço de una carta y relacion que escrivio cierto hombre, published in Seville in 1552. This in reality forms part of the previous Spanish tract, although sometimes treated as a separate item, and contains the narrative of a Spanish traveller who witnessed some of the enormities practised upon the natives by the Spaniards.

The last 14 leaves of the book contain abridgements of two other Las Casas tracts, the first containing a series of remedies . . . for order and reformation to be observed in the Indies, and the second, Las Casas' address to Philip, King of Spain, on the subject, and answers to those who attacked him, etc.

This copy has the title in excellent facsimile, four leaves of the preface repaired.

The sixth collected edition of the works of Ronsard, the first folio, and the last of any kind to be issued under the supervision of the poet, who died in the following year. This edition was a worthy climax to his career, for it is a model of completeness and of typographical beauty.

See Seymour de Ricci, Catalogue d'une Collection unique des éditions originales de Ronsard, No. 54 (London, Maggs Bros., 1925).

Ronsard wrote a sonnet and an ode for Thevet's Singularitez de la France Antartique.

In the Discours contre Fortune addressed to Odet de Coligny in January, 1559. Ronsard criticizes the expedition of Villegagnon to Brazil.

According to Gilbert Chinard's excellent work, L'Exotisme Américain au XVI^e siècle, Ronsard approaches Rousseau in his feeling for nature and in his courageous protest against Colonial expeditions, and declares a kind of proclamation of the rights of savage Indians.

In an eloquent address to Villegagnon Ronsard writes as follows:—

Pour ce laisse les là, ne romps plus je te prie,
 Le tranquille repos de leur première vie,
 Laisse les je te prie, si pitié te remord,
 Ne les tormente plus et t'enfuis de leur bord.
 Pour ce laisse les là et n'attache à leur col
 Le joug de servitude, aincois le dur licol
 Qui les etranglerait, sous l'audace cruelle
 D'un tyran ou d'un juge ou d'une loi nouvelle.
 Vivez heureuse gent sans peine et sans souci,
 Vivez heureusement, je voudrais vivre ainsi.
 L'Iliade de mes maux que ma raison travaille
 Et ceux que le malheur en se jouant me baille
 En rompant mes desseins ne m'aurait arrêté

It is a great honour for Ronsard to be the first to protest against the seizure of lands lawfully belonging to Indians by Europeans. Neither Jacques Cartier nor Villegagnon, nor even Thevet, could ever have had such a thought which seems a singularly bold one for that time. If in France many protests had been heard against the conquest of the Indies by the Spaniards, and if even certain individuals like Crignon, had cried loudly that their cruelties were unnecessary and unworthy of Christians, never had anyone yet undertaken to defend the rights of savages against civilized men, and we shall have to wait for Montaigne till Ronsard's voice finds an echo.

It is curious to note that in France from that time on America is not only represented as the Eldorado, the land of gold and precious stones, but begins to become the chosen land of the philosopher and the Utopian. Ronsard himself, in his famous poem on Les Isles Fortunées, addressed to M. A. Muret in 1553, praises the joys of the American Indians. He says that while Europe is being plundered by Frenchman, Spaniards, Turks and Englishmen, poets must leave Europe for a country more favourable for the worship of the muses. He himself, with Baif, Denizeau, Butet, Du Parc, Bellay, Dorat, Des Autels, and Pontus de Thyard, will leave for those fortunate islands where the savages are innocent and where they may found a new city.

A most unusual book by the author of Les Trois Mondes, of which there is no copy in the James de Rothschild Collection. It was probably owing to the demand aroused by the publication of his Les Trois Mondes in 1582 that La Popellinière determined to publish the book we offer above, L'Admiral de France, in 1584. It is so rare that it is not even mentioned by Brunet. In the dedication to Anne de Joyeuse, Admiral of France, La Popellinière refers to the kindness with which the Duc de Joyeuse had received the project of his Les Trois Mondes. The author devotes his pages to a history of the French navy since the earliest, almost prehistoric, times, and gives exact details of the navy regulations and a very interesting and accurate account of the position of an Admiral, not only in France but in many other countries.

“Je diray seulement, que si l’Espagnol, Portugais ou autre, se veust prevaloir sur nous de la descouverte des Indes Occidentales, qu’ils y devoient estre les guides, & leur doner nom Espagnol. Mais puisque le Florentin, Americ Vespuce & Colomb Genois les y ont conduit, com’enfans, qui n’avoient l’esprit de les croire, non plus que le coeur pour entreprendre. ils n’en peuvent tirer tant d’honneur que de profit. Joint qu’ils n’avoient le coeur de passer tant de mers. Tesmoins leurs sales propos & feminines mutinations, contre le Conducteur. Moins encor de bon naturel & Royale conscience à traiter ces ames sauvages, qu’ils ont mieux aimé envoyer à tous les Diabes, par les abominables suplices qu’ils leur ont fait souffrir, que de les convertir à Dieu par presches & bonne vie. Qu’ils se glorifient donc seulement, du profit qu’ils en tirent. En ce mesmement, que l’or d’icelles a tousjours eu plus de force à gangner les hommes. que la valeur de cete nation, à la garentir des misères qui luy estoient assez prochains. Ores quelle soit assez connue par le monde, pour le lustre de ses beaux exploits. Mais pour ce que i’ay assez parlé de ces descouvertes, & merite de ces trois nations, au livre des trois Mondes, je m’en tairay pour l’heure.”

Acosta was a famous Portuguese surgeon, and was born in Mozambique towards the end of the 15th Century. Having a liking for travelling, he set out for the East for the purpose of studying various herbs and drugs used in medicine. His vessel was captured by pirates and he became a slave, but finally escaped and continued his travels, especially in India, and the East Indies. After many years he settled down at Burgos, where he wrote and in 1578 published his famous work on herbs and drugs. This was translated into Italian by Guilandini and republished at Venice in 1585, and was subsequently translated into many other languages.

Viterbo, pp. 283 and 287; Anselmo, Bibliografia das obras impressas em Portugal no seculo XVI, Nos. 784 and 785, respectively (London, Maggs Bros., 1927). Wagner's Spanish South West (No. 7y) does not cite this edition. Not in Salva, Sabin, John Carter Brown Library, or Medina.

This independent little publication, the contents of which are substantially the same as the Itinerario, included in Gonzalez de Mendoza's Historia de las Cosas mas Notables, Ritos y Costumbre del Gran Reyno de la China, is not mentioned by American bibliographers, who probably did not know of its existence. The reason for this is easily explained by the remarks contained in a prefatory address to the author of the second publication in this volume to the Barefoot Carmelites of the San Phelipe Convent in Lisbon, at whose private press the two publications in this volume were printed by Andrés Lobato, no doubt in an extremely limited edition. Padre Jeronimo Gracian states: "By the ships from India, which arrived in Lisbon in August this year, 1586, I received letters from our brother, Padre Fray Martin Ignacio de Loyola, commissary for China; in which he gives an account of the great possibilities there are of bringing innumerable souls within the pale of the Church; and he again charged me with what I had offered at the time we made our pact of brotherhood: that is to say, I had promised to inspire Your Reverences to undertake this great work. And in order to rouse your enthusiasm, I thought I would print this Itinerario in this kingdom of Portugal. Fray Martin wrote it regarding his previous voyage, and it was printed in Madrid by the Padre Maestro Fray Juan Gonzalez de Mendoza of the Order of St. Augustin, in the third part of his book on China. This will be a book for the use of those who have permission to go to the Indies, an itinerary and guide which may light their path and give them information on some things."

This, therefore, explains its publication in Lisbon, and the reason for its extreme scarcity, since it was probably only to be found in the possession of those Portuguese Carmelite missionaries who volunteered for service in America. The chapters principally dealing with America are chapters four to eleven inclusive, which contains Espejo's relacion of the discovery of New Mexico; and long descriptions of Mexico.

The second item in this volume is also an excessively rare little publication, emanating from the same private Carmelite press in Lisbon, which is, according to the author's note, "the first publication to be printed at the press of this Convent of St. Phelipe, after the Cruzada bulls"; the only other copies of this work known are in the library of the Academia das ciencias, Lisbon, and a copy in the private library of an American collector.

The volume contains various essays by the author, with regard to the affiliation of the Carmelites and Franciscans and their missionary work in the Philippines and China; an exhortation to preach the Gospel to the heathen; account of the entry of the Jesuits into China in 1585, and their work there; some verses composed by a mandarin; comments on the reports from Fray Martin Ignacio de Loyola on the evangelical work amongst the Indians of New Mexico, and the Yumanos, Tiguas, Quires, Cumanas, and other tribes:

Jeronimo Gracian was a barefoot Carmelite, a littérateur, mathematician, and doctor, who was born at Valladolid in 1545. He joined the Carmelites at an early age, and graduated in philosophy at the age of twenty. He spent some time at the San Phelipe Convent in Lisbon, where he addressed this book to his colleagues. He was elected provincial of his Order, and introduced some reforms in the rules, which resulted in his expulsion from the Order. Proceeding to Rome, to obtain re-admission to the Convent, he fell into the hands of Algerine pirates in the vicinity of Sicily; and after being held to ransom, was finally admitted to one of the Carmelite Convents in Rome in 1595. Later he became the Archduchess Isabel's confessor in Brussels, where he died in 1614. He was known, in his own day, as Gracian de la Madre de Dios.

King Sebastian's law confirms a previous one by King Manuel, forbidding new Christians leaving the country in view of the fact that some of these new Christians, who were converted Jews, had gone to the land of the Moors and returned to Judaism. In view of the fact that the number of new Christians leaving the country was continually increasing ever since the year 1497, they were forbidden to leave without giving security. Any person who took them on board ship would be fined by the terms of this law and would be expelled to Brazil for five years. A further clause in the law forbids any of the said New Christians to take ship for India, any of the Islands, Guinea or Brazil, without the royal licence. In view of the previous law of King Sebastian, Philip II forbids likewise any new Christian to take ship for any part of India, the Islands of St. Thome, Cape Verde, and Brazil, without the royal licence.

We do not find this important law of Philip II mentioned in any bibliography.

This was the product of three missions. The notes of Martin de Rada, or de Herrada, in the first expedition (along with Pedro de Sarmiento) in 1575, and those of Gonzalez de Mendoza on his mission of 1578, enabled the latter to write the Historia. A third journey in 1581, by Martin Ignacio de Loyola, furnished the Itinerario, which includes Mexico and the Philippines.

This Itinerario is very interesting. Fr. Ignacio on his voyage to China went via the Canaries and St. Domingo; from there he passed to Vera Cruz, across Mexico, between Mexico and Acapulco, and re-embarked from this port for the Philippines and China. Although brief, the account of the voyage is extremely interesting. He speaks of the Discovery of New Mexico by Ant. d'Espejo.

Sabin, 40153. The author was a Protestant Minister who went out to Brazil to establish a colony of Huguenots, under the protection of Admiral Coligny, but, the scheme not succeeding, he returned to France and published this work. The Latin version is in some respects more valuable than the original French edition, as it contains several suppressed passages. Among other things, the author gives musical notes to shew the intonation of the Caraihs. The preface is exceptionally interesting as it includes Villegagnon's letter to Calvin. Villegagnon is celebrated for having deceived the English squadron by unexpectedly circumnavigating Scotland and conveying Mary Queen of Scots from the west coast in safety to Brittany. In Chapter XX. is a dialogue in Brazilian and Latin. The entire work bears evidence of truth and is such as only an eye-witness could have written. One of its objects was to introduce the Protestant faith into S. America, especially among the Aborigines. This second Latin edition contains several slight alterations from the first.

THE MOST COMPLETE EDITION, WITH THE BEST TEXT.

Montaigne, who has discussed all the important ideas of the sixteenth century, has spoken more than a hundred times in his essays about the New World. There is hardly a page in which he does not show his interest in inhabitants of the New World. He must have read the published accounts of America very carefully. Monsieur Gilbert Chinard in his excellent book on L'Exotisme Américain dans la Littérature Française au XVIe Siècle, d'après Rabelais, Ronsard, Montaigne, etc., devotes an entire chapter No. IX to Montaigne Un Défenseur des Indiens, pp. 192-218. It is impossible to quote here all the passages in which Montaigne speaks of America and champions the cause of the Indians. But there are two famous chapters: 1. The chapter of the cannibals. 2. The chapter of the coaches.

In addition to his written sources, such as Lopez de Gomara, Thevet, and Belleforest, which he must have had in his library, Montaigne had original sources in the shape of eye-witnesses in whom he believed entirely. In his chapter of the cannibals he mentions his authority an old sailor, a companion of Villegaignon, whom he described as follows:—

“I have had long time dwelling with mee a man, who for the space of tenne or twelve yeares had dwelt in that other world, which in our age was lately discovered in those partes where Villegaignon first landed, and surnamed Antartike France. This discoverie of so infinite and vast a country, seemeth worthie great consideration. I wot not whether I can warrant myselfe, that some other be not discovered hereafter. . . . Such a one was my man, who besides his owne reporte, hath many times shewed me divers Mariners, and Marchants, whom he had knowne in that voyage. So am I pleased with his information, that I never enquire what Cosmographers say of it. Now (to return to my purpose) I finde there is nothing in that nation that is either barbarous or savage, unless men call that barbarisme, which is not common to them.”

In the course of this essay Montaigne gives an account of the country in which these Indians live, their customs, eating, drinking, etc.

He mentions the fact that he has a song made by an Indian prisoner which he quotes:—“Adder stay, stay good adder, that my sister may by the patterne of thy partie-coloured coate, drawe the fashion and worke of a rich lace, for me to give unto my love, so may thy beautie, thy nimblenesse, or disposition be ever preferred before al other serpents.”

Montaigne, ever eager to get new information of the New World, went to Rouen in 1550 to interview the three Indians brought from Brazil. “Three of that nation ignoring how deare the knowledge of our corruptions will one day cost their repose, securities, and happinesse, and how their ruine shall proceede from this comerce, which I imagine is already well advanced, (miserable as they are to have suffered themselves to be so cosoned by a desire of new-fangled novelties, and to have quit the calmnesse of their climate, to come and see ours) were at Roane in the time of our late King Charles the ninth, who talked with them a great while. They were shewed our fashions, our pompe, and the forms of a faire Cittie, afterward some demanded their advise, and would needes knowe of them what things of note and admirable they had observed amongst us, they answered three things, the last of which I have forgotten, and am very sorie for it, the other two I yet remember. They saide, First, they found it very strange, that so many tall men with long beardes, strong and well armed, as were about the King’s person (it is very likely they meant the swizzers of his garde) would submit themselves to obey a beardlesse childe, and that we did not rather chuse one amongst them to command the rest. Secondly (they have a maner of phrase whereby they call men but a moytie of men from others), they had perceived, there were men amongst us full gorged with all sortes of commodities, and others which, hunger-starven, and bare with neede and povertie, begged at their gates, and found it strange, these moyties so needie could endure such an injustice, and that they tooke not the others by the throte, or set fire on their houses. I talked a good while with one of them, but I had so bad an interpreter, and who did so ill apprehend my meaning, and who through his foolishnesse was so troubled to conceive my imaginations, that I could drawe no great matter from him. Touching that point, wherein I demaunded of him what good he received by the superioritie hee had amongst his countriemen (for he was a Captaine and our Marriners called him King), he told me, it was to march formost in any charge of warre. Further, I asked him, how many men did follow him, he shewed me a distance of place, to signifie, they were as many as might be contained in so much ground, which I guessed to be about 4. or 5. thousand men, moreover I demanded, if when warres were ended, all his authoritie expired? he answered that hee had onely this left him, which was, that when he went on progresse, and visited the villages depending on him, the inhabitants prepared paths and high-wayes athwart the hedges of their woodes, for him to passe through at ease. All that is not very ill, but what of that? They weare no kinde of breeches or hosen.”

From the Violet-le-Duc and Prosper Blanchemain collections.

"Another honourable characteristic is Tasso's love of science and discovery, revealed by many passages in his minor poems and his dialogues, and in the Jerusalem by the noble prophecy of the Columbus to be. His sonnet to Stigliani, appears to hint that with better health and fortune he would himself have taken the exploits of Columbus as the subject of another epic; and he is said to have remarked that the only contemporary poet against whom he felt any hesitation in measuring himself was Camoens, the singer of the discoveries of the Portuguese."

"The merit of the Jerusalem consists mainly in details whose beauty requires no exposition. Mention has already been made of the merit of the character-painting, which greatly surpasses Ariosto's. The latter's personages are in comparison puppets; Tasso's are living men and women. The passion of love in the three principal female characters is exquisitely painted, and admirably discriminated in accordance with the disposition of each.

An extremely interesting, and apparently unknown, publication, throwing light on the inner history of the viceregal administration in New Spain under the régime of the Marques de Villamanrique, in the last years of Philip II's reign.

"This Viceroy, brother of the Duke of Bejar and a member of one of the most illustrious families of Spain, took up office on the 17th October, 1585, and resigned in Feb. 1590. He had bitter contentions with the Dominican, Franciscan and Augustinian Provincials over the question of compliance with the king's instructions with regard to the secularization of the curacies which those orders administered.

In this Memorial, which the Marquis wrote at Toledo (whither he had been banished from the Court) in 1592, the ex-Viceroy gives a full and detailed account of his stormy term of office in New Spain, and relates his version of the important incident which had led to what was, for a short time, practically a civil war, namely: his instructions to the authorities to arrest the licentiate Nuno de Villavicencio, who had married the daughter of an Oidor of Guadalajara, in contravention of the Spanish law which forbade the marriage of Alcaldes, Oidores and lawyers, or their children, in the district of their Audiencias.

Acosta is one of the earliest writers who have treated philosophically of America and its productions. He was born at Medina del Campo about 1539, professed Theology at Ocaña, and in 1571 went to America, where he stayed for 17 years, as Vice-Provincial of the Jesuits in Peru. He died at Salamanca in 1600.

These two works of his were in part written in America, and are most important for the particulars they give concerning the state of South America at that period.

One of the most important early Spanish works on the Indies and American military organizations in the XVIth century; the rare text of which was reprinted in the Coleccion de los libros raros ó curiosos que tratan de America.

Vargas Machuca was a native of Simancas, and spent practically his whole life in military service, finally reaching the rank of Captain-General in America; serving from 1568 in Italy; the Granada war; the war in New Granada, where he was instrumental in pacifying the Indians; and many other campaigns in America. He presented a paper on the proposed pacification of the Araucan Indians in Chile in 1599, at the request of the Consejo de Indias, and opposed the suggestion that Chile should be de-populated.

These were the only two parts of this work to be printed, although the author intended to publish a Third Part. He had also intended to add these Advertencias to his earlier work Confessionario en Lengua Mexicana y Castellana, and make one comprehensive work of it, for the use of the natives' confessors.

These little volumes comprise the Latin text of many Papal Bulls relating to the ecclesiastical administration in America, and instructions for the natives' confessions.

Both these parts are extremely rare, and were printed at the Convent of Santiago Tlatilulco.

The author was born in Mexico in 1555, and was one of the most distinguished and learned men in the New World. He was Professor of Philosophy and Theology in the College of the Monastery; one of his pupils being Juan de Torquemada, the historian of the Indians.

Baptista made a special study of the native Mexican language, and published the above-mentioned Confessional in that language, which, in the opinion of Icazbalceta, was the fullest Mexican Confessionario, and contained valuable information concerning the Indians of those times. He died in 1615.

An exceptionally fine set of this invaluable work, comprising the eight decades, and the ninth part after the fourth decade, entitled, Descripcion de las Indias Occidentales, Madrid 1601, which is sometimes found separately.

Of the greatest importance for the history of the conquest, colonies and progress of the Spaniards in America. On the title-pages are the engraved portraits of the most famous missionaries, generals, governors, and soldiers who served in America during its conquest and occupation, views of America, etc.

According to Perez Pastor (Imprenta en Madrid, Nos. 784 and 1334) the 14 engraved maps are in many cases the first of many of the American provinces described, and the 39 portraits of the conquistadores and other historical personages given on the title-page are the most authentic known.

Speaking of the histories of America, Mr. Ticknor says: "Of this class, the first in importance and the most comprehensive in character is The General History of the Indies, by Antonio de Herrera. It embraces the period from the first discovery of America to the year 1545; and as Herrera was a practised writer, and, from his official position as historiographer to the Indies, had access to every source of information known in his time, his work, which was printed in 1601, is of very great value."—History of Spanish Literature, Vol. III., p. 153.

These points are usually missing in most copies, and both those described in Locker's Rowfant Catalogue, and in the Grollier Club Catalogue, are without them.

"This FIRST EDITION of Florio's Montaigne will ever hold a distinguished place in a Shakespearian Library as one of the books we really know for certain that the great poet read, for the actual copy used by him and carrying his autograph is preserved in the British Museum."

Shakespeare has copied a few lines nearly literally in "The Tempest," Act II, Scene I, from the following passage in the present work:—

"It is a nation (would I answer Plato) that hath no kind of trafficke, no knowledge of letters, no intelligence of numbers, no name of magistrate nor of politic superioritie; no use of service, of riches, or of povertie, no contracts, no successions, no partitions, no occupations, but idle, no use of wine, corne, or metal. The very words that import lying, falsehood, treason, dissimulations, covetousness, envie, detraction and pardon, were never heard amongst them."

We give the following short extract:—

“Although we have made it known by publike Edict, that at our entrance into these our Kingdomes of England and Ireland, we stood, as still wee doe, in good amitie and friendship with all the Princes of Christendome, and therefore are carefully to provide, as much as in us lyeth, that none of them or their Subiects should by any hostile action be endamaged in their Persons, Territories, or Goods by any of our Subiects either by Land or Sea: Yet we are not ignorant, that our late deare sister the late Queene of England, had of long time warres with the King of Spaine, and during the time gave Licences and Commissions to divers of her, and our now subiects, to set out and furnish to sea, at their charges, divers ships warlikly appointed, for the surprising and taking of the said Kings subiects and goods, and for the enjoying of the same, being taken and brought home as lawfull Prize. . . . And further our will and pleasure is, That whatsoever shippes or goods belonging to any Subiect of the said King of Spaine, hath beene or shall bee taken at Sea, or land by any of our Subiects by colour of any Commission whatsoever, after the said foure and twentieth day of Aprill last. The same shall be fourthwith sequestred from the Takers, to the use of the true Proprietaries, and restored unto them upon the first claimes and proofes of their propertie, without any long or chargeable suite of Law.

“And we further will and commaund, that all such our men of warre, as be now at Sea, having no sufficient Commission as aforesaid, and have taken, or shall go to Sea hereafter, and shal take any the ships, or goods of any subiect of any Princes in league, or amitie with us, shall bee reputed and taken as Pirates, and both they and all their accessaries, maintainers, comforters, abbettors, and partakers shall suffer death as Pirates, and accessaries to piracie, with confiscation of all their landes, and goodes, according to the ancient lawes of this Realme,” etc.

This Proclamation was really aimed at Sir Walter Raleigh and his associates. Raleigh especially was a thorn in the flesh to James I, as for at least two years before the death of Elizabeth, James was systematically informed that Raleigh was opposed to his claims, and was ready to proceed to any extremities to prevent his accession to the throne, consequently one of his first acts was to dismiss Raleigh from his various offices of State, and order the cessation of hostilities with Spain; though Peace was not actually concluded till 1604. It must also be borne in mind that for upwards of twenty years the Atlantic with the West Indies was the great battle ground of England and Spain. English sailors sailed on it and fought for it, capturing the Spanish treasure ships coming from the Indies, and this, King James, in making peace with Spain, endeavoured to stop.

As a reward for these and other services he asks for certain offices, etc., for himself, and for his Father, Nicolas Lopez Cornejo, and enumerates some of his services, among them being, that he had been one of 16 cavaliers who had armed themselves and gone out to scout for and oppose the entrance of the forces of the Englishman, Francis Drake. Mention is also made of the seizure of the cargo of John Eccles, an Englishman, comprising 150 slaves and other merchandise.

The memorial contains numerous items of interest concerning the products of the Island, and the proceedings of the English, French and Lutheran Pirates, and suggestions for regulating matters better in the Island, with a view to its greater prosperity. At the end are three other articles concerning the same matters.

Pirats, and the Goods, Moneyes and Merchandizes brought into England by them, have been scattered, sold, and disposed of most lewdly and prodigally, by the meanes of their Receivers, Comforters and Abettors, to the exceeding preiudice of his Maiesties good friends the Venetians, whom they have robbed, and to the great displeasure of God, and dishonour of this State: His Maiestie doth expressly commaund all Lieutenants, Deputy Lieutenants, Admirals, Viceadmirals and their Deputies, and all other Officers of the Admiralty, and all Justices of the Peace, Maiors, Shiriffes, Bailiffes, Constables, and all other his Officers and Ministers whatsoever, to use all care and diligence in the inquiring, searching for, and apprehending of all such Pirats, their Receivers, Comforters, and Abettors. This is perhaps the first definite Proclamation to suppress Piracy issued by England, and it was of course chiefly designed to stop English Privateers capturing the Spanish merchant vessels and treasure ships from America as a direct step towards a general peace with Spain.

By the King.

A Proclamation for the search and apprehension of certaine Pirates.

Whereas it hath appeared unto vs by sundry credible Informations and certificats fro forreine parts, That Richard Gifford Captaine of a Ship or Flyboat, lately called The Fortune, & Richard Lux Master of a Ship called The Hopewell, William Mellon, Humfrey Raskoll, Thomas Better, Robert Gyles, Iohn Thomas, Iohn Burrage, Baldwine Barber, Henry Radcliffe, Iohn Banister, William Smith, With diuers others their Complices, and Associats, seruing as Mariners or Souldiers in the said Ships, haue vnder colour of friendship and peaceable Traffique, committed most foule outrages, murders, spoyles and Depredations within the Streits, and Mediterranean Seas, as well within the Ports as without, to the great offence of all our friends, to the extreame losse and hurt of our Merchants trading those parts, both in their persons and goods, and to the great displeasure of God and men; Wee of our Princely care for the administration of Justice (the maine pillar of our Estate) doe with no lesse zeale, aswell for the satisfaction of forreine Princes, as for the example of others in like cases offending, intend to prosecute them, and all their Abettoys, Complices and Accessories with the greatest seueritie of our Lawes in that case prouided:

And therefore we will and straightly command all and euery our Officers and louing Subjects, that immediately after the sight of this present Proclamation, they and euery of them doe make diligent search and enquire in all places as well exempt as not exempt, for the sayd persons, and all and euery of them, and them, or any of them so found, to apprehend and commit to the next Gaole, there to be detained vntill our high Admirall, or his Lieutenant the Judge of the high Court of the Admiraltie, vpon notice giuen vnto either of them of the persons so committed, shall take order in that behalfe.

And mozeouer our Pleasure is, That no person or persons whatsoever, shall wittingly or wilfully receiue, conceale, harbour, entertaine or lodge the sayd Pyrates and Murtherers, or any of them, or any of their said Complices or Associates into their house or houses, after the sight or knowledge of this Proclamation (knowing them by pregnant circumstances, credible Informations or otherwise to be the persons before named) vpon paine to euery such person and persons so receiuing, concealing, harbouring, entertaining or lodging any of the sayd Pirates and Murtherers, or any of their Complices, of death and forfeiture of all their Lands, goods and chattels, according to the Lawes and Statutes in that case prouided.

Giuen at our Manour of Greenwich the thirteenth day of Iune, in the fourth yeere of our Reigne of Great Britaine, France and Ireland.

The work is based on the dicta of old cosmographers and classical authors, including Aristotle, Ptolemy, Sacrobosco and Pedro Nuñez, but contains a good deal of original matter. It is divided into four books: the first two dealing with the divisions of the hemispheres and their bearing upon navigation; the third book deals at length with the astrolabe, compass, and other nautical instruments; and the fourth treats of astronomy and the art of navigation both in theory and practice. The author refers to the specific route followed from Lisbon to Brazil and back, and mentions the meridian at Madeira as one of the guiding lines for the voyage.

of the volume has a separate title-page and treats of Hydrography. Of special interest is the long final chapter occupying leaves 172-184. This is a general guide to Navigation in America, includes various particulars for sailing in the West Indies, to Veracruz, Havana, Nombre de Dios, etc., directions for sailing from Spain to the Rio de la Plata and Straits of Magellan and to the Pacific Coast of South America. Among other contents are some curious documents relating to the dispute with Portugal about the line of demarcation of the Spanish and Portuguese dominions in America, which was for more than two hundred years a subject of dispute between the two nations.

These sermons are all written in the Mexican language, with a summary of the contents in Spanish, in a preliminary table. Although the author mentioned a "second part" which was "already partly printed," no copy of this has ever been seen.

The author was a Franciscan friar, a Lecturer in Theology, and was the Superior of the Franciscan Convent of St. Anthony of Padua in Tetzcuco. His contemporaries who knew the Tetzcuco language, describe it as a most admirable example of literature "in very elegant phraseology"; but the author acknowledges in the preface (in Spanish) the names of all the translators who assisted him in his work. He had spent more than twenty-eight years in the study of that language.

A Proclamation against Pirats.

He Kings Maiestie, hauing bene informed through the manifold complaints made to his Highnesse by his owne Subjects as others, of the many depredations and Piracies committed by lewd and ill disposed persons, accustomed and habituated to spolie and rapine, insensible and desperate of the perill they draw vpon themselues, and the imputation they cast vpon the honour of thier Soueraigne so precious to him, as for redresse thereof he is inforced to reiterate and inculcate his toathing and detestation not onely of the crimes, but also to manifest to the world his incertie and exceeding desires for the due & speedy suppressing of the delinquents; And hauing lately found by many pregnant circumstances, that most of these great faults are continued by the conniueance, or corruption in many the subordinate Officers, especially such as are resident in and nere the Ports and Maritime Counties: In his Princely care to preserve Justice, as one of the maine pillars of his Estate, & for the speedy prevention of such foule crimes, & the leuere punishment and extirpation of such enoymous offenders (most hatefull to his minde, and scandalous to his peaceable government) and for the preservation & continuance of amitie and good correspondencie With all other Princes and States, hath with the aduise of his Counsaile thought it necessary at this present, to publish these Articles & Ordinances insuing: Wherein if any shall be found culpable, refractory, or contemptuous, his Maiestie is resolved and hereby declareth, that such punishment shall be inflicted on him or them so offending, that others may be exemplarily forewarned, from committing so odious factes, and be deterred from ayding, relieuing, comforting, or abetting such and so enoymous malefactors.

If any person whatsoever shall vpon the Seas, or in any Port or hauen, take any Ship that doth belong to any of his Maiesties Subiects, friends, or Allies, or shall take out of it by force, any goods of what nature or qualitic soeuer: he or they so offending shall suffer death, with confiscation of lands and goods, according to the Law in that case provided.

If any person or persons so offending, do at any time hereafter come into any Port or place of his Maiesties dominions, his Maiestie expressly chargeth all his Officers forthwith to apprehend him and them, and to commit them to prison, without Baile or Mainprize, and that the name of the person and cause of his imprisonment, be forthwith certified into the Admiraltie, that speedy order may be taken for further proceeding, and execution according to Law, and the contents of his Maiesties former Proclamations.

All his Maiesties Subiects shall forbear from furnishing, Victualing, ayding, receiuing, relieuing, comforting or abetting, any Pirate or Sea-rouer, or any person not being a known Merchant, by contracting, buying, selling, bartering or exchanging with him or them, vpon peril of his Maiesties heavy indignation, and the grieuous paines by Law belonging to the same.

All Admirall causes shall be summarily heard by the Judge of the Admiraltie without admitting any vnnecessary delay, and no Appeale from him shall be allowed to the defendant or defendants in cases of depredations or spolie, either for the Offenders, or their accessaries before or after the offence committed, or those in whose possession the goods spoyled are found, vnlesse first by way of provision the summe adiudged be payd to the plaintife vpon Sureties to repay it, if the Sentence shall be reuerfed. And no Prohibition in such causes of depredation and spolie, and their accessories and dependants shall hereafter granted against the Admiraltie.

No Ship or goods taken from any his Maiesties friends, shall be deliuered vpon any other order, then vpon proofe made, or certificate exhibited in the said Court of the Admiraltie, to the end that a Record may be kept of all such restitutions made to strangers, to serue if occasion shall require.

shall take out of it by force, any goods of what nature or qualitie soever: he or they so offending shall suffer death, with confiscation of lands and goods, according to the Law in that case provided."

"And whereas divers great and enormous spoyles and Piracies have bene heretofore committed within the Straits of Giblatar and other places by Captaine John Ward and his adherents, and other English Pirats, and the goods, moneys, and Merchandizes have bene and are sold, dispersed & disposed of, most lewdly and prodigally by the meanes of their receivers, comforters & abettors, to the great preiudice of his Maiesties good friends the Venetians, and others in league and amitie with his Maiestie, whom they have so robbed and spoyled: His Maiestie doth hereby expresly charge and commaund all Lieutenants, deputy Lieutenants, Viceadmirals and their Deputies, Justices of Peace, Captaines of his Maiesties Ships, and all other Officers of the Admiraltie, and all Maiors, Shiriffes, Bailifes, Constables, and other his Officers whatsoever, as they and every of them tender his Maiesties service, and upon perill of his Maiesties indignation, to use all care and diligence, and their best and uttermost indevors, in the inquiring, searching for, and apprehending of all such Pirats, their receivers, comfortors and abettors. And if they shall by their travailles and care finde any of them, to send them presently to the next common Goale, there to remaine without Baile or Maineprize, till the Lord High Admirall of England, or his Lieutenant the Judge of the Admiraltie may be advertized thereof, and shall dispose of them according to the Lawes in that case provided," etc.

This Proclamation is really for the apprehension of Captain John Ward, the famous pirate, who was noted for his semi-piratical adventure in the West Indies; afterwards he served as a petty officer on board the Lion's Whelp. He afterwards at Portsmouth seized a small ship of twenty-five tons, and thereupon commenced his career as a pirate. He sailed for the Mediterranean, and attempted to burn the Turkish galleys off Algiers. This exploit failed, but he made friends with the Turks, and for the following years cruised under the Turkish flag, making Tunis his principal port, and building there a palace, beautified with rich marble and alabaster, more fit for a prince than a pirate, and second only to that of the bey in its magnificence. William Lithgow, being at Tunis in 1615, dined and supped with him several times.

It is recorded that Ward stated I never wronged an English ship. Though his wealth was got together mostly at the expense of the Venetians, he seems to have plundered all that came in his way with exemplary impartiality.—(D.N.B.)

Palau's Manual, Vol. II, p. 40. Escudero (Hispalense, 958) only cites two known copies of "this fine and curious edition": at the National Library in Madrid, and the provincial library in Seville.

This important work on shipbuilding is dedicated to the Admiral-General Don Diego Brochero, Prior of Hibernia, and is written in the form of dialogues between three friends, Thomé, Gaspar and Leonardo, who discourse upon the history of navigation, ships, and navigators, whilst sailing down the Guadalquivir from Seville. At the end of the book there is an alphabetical table of the various parts of a ship with concise definitions of the same.

In the course of conversation, reference is, of course, made to the discovery of the New World, to Vespucci and the astute Columbus; and to some indisputable facts recorded by old Portuguese sailors from Madeira who knew how Columbus had guarded as a secret the full relation of the voyage [across the Atlantic] attempted by the dying sailor at Madeira.

The author was a naval officer, who was born in the Canary Islands but lived at Seville. He spent fifty-four years in the Spanish Navy, and on board his own vessel; and obtained from the King many privileges for seamen, ship's carpenters and other seafaring men whose cause he persistently championed. He did much to improve the maritime mail service between Europe and America, to which end he gave some of his own vessels; but these vessels were rejected, although they were built in accordance with approved specifications.

He was distinguished, both as a navigator and as an expert, in the technical science of shipbuilding.

This extremely important volume of historical manuscripts, which emanated from a library in Portugal (whither it had probably been taken by some official during the Spanish régime in the sister-nation), reveals without restraint the working methods of that great Spanish Ministry, the Consejo de Indias, in connection with the vast Spanish trans-Atlantic dominions. It was, in fact, the parent-Council of all the local governing bodies in America, and the final court of appeal in all matters appertaining to the administration of the Indies. Within its council chamber, every question submitted by the Viceroy, the Judges, and the priesthood in the Indies, every matter concerning America—from the most important international relations, to the licences so sparingly granted to travellers bound for Peru and other colonies—was discussed with due attention, and submitted to the King for his final approbation. And here, it would be as well to make some mention of the character of the King and his most intimate advisers, through whose agency the findings and suggestions of the Council were often over-ruled, and who, therefore, indirectly exercised a far greater influence over the destinies of America than is generally supposed.

Philip III, though a benevolent and amiable sovereign, was totally incapable of administering his great inheritance. Indeed, his lack of ability was already well known to his father, Philip II, who was once heard to exclaim in desperation: "What is the use of getting together a great empire when I must leave it to a son who is incapable of holding it together?"

Unlike his talented and hard-working father, on succeeding to the throne, at the age of twenty-one, Philip III lazily handed over the reins of Government to his premier, the Duke of Lerma, a brilliant courtier, but one of the most corrupt officials who ever abused royal favour.

Don Francisco Sandoval y Rojas, Marques de Denia, and afterwards Duke of Lerma, began by banishing all Philip II's favourites from the court, and appointing his own friends. Later, he took to selling these appointments; and, after a time, declined to consider any proposition to be placed before the King, which did not yield some pecuniary advantage to himself; a scandalous and unprecedented example which was promptly followed by others at the Court.

In order to work with greater freedom, he tried to set aside the formal sessions of the state councils and appealed for private sessions: the council to be composed of his own cronies who would, naturally, be inclined to second any motion of his. Philip's indolence lent itself admirably to his purpose; and, in due course, Lerma obtained the royal sanction to his proposition that all decrees signed by him on the King's behalf should be valid; although he did not succeed in abolishing the normal sessions of the Consejo de Indias.

Lerma's duplicity, however, was not lost upon his son, Don Cristobal Sandoval y Rojas, the Duke of Uceda, who—trained in ingratitude and treachery—basely led a party in opposition to his father, and succeeded him as King's favourite. Lerma did not finally leave the Court until 1618, and in the meantime had trained Uceda to take his place at state councils in his absence.

One of Uceda's temporary friends was the famous Conde-Duque de Olivares, who sternly demanded the repayment of large sums of money which Lerma had accumulated during his corrupt term of government; but the latter, having foreseen his possible fall, had managed to evade the humiliation of a rigorous persecution in the law courts by previously acquiring the dignity of Cardinal from Pope Paul V; whereas Uceda, banished from the Court on the accession of Philip IV, died a prisoner at Alcalá in 1624.

Another of Uceda's friends was Fray Luis Aliaga, who, notwithstanding the fact that he owed his elevation to the post of confessor to Philip III, to the influence of Lerma, joined Lerma's son in the campaign against the premier. The confessor was a Dominican monk of humble birth (1560-1630), who began to influence the young King in 1600. He was accused by Quevedo of obtaining, from the Duke of Osuna, quantities of silver, diamonds and other treasures, to protect his interests at Court!

opinion was very much valued by his sovereign, who passed on almost every question of importance that arose in connection with the Council for the Indies, to "my confessor." Practically all the marginal notes written by the King in these pages are inspired by a desire for "the Duke's" or "the Confessor's" opinion; although on some occasions he seems to have exercised his own initiative and given his sanction: "Esta bien" ["That is well"], or "Assi se haga" ["So be it"].

[Transcripts of the King's and the Duke's marginal notes are being included, in order to facilitate the study of these documents.]

Regarding the council's conduct of affairs overseas, perhaps two of the most important and interesting minutes refer to the official recognition of the famous explorer, Pedro Fernandez de Quiros, who, after making so many pitiful appeals for an expedition to be fitted out and sent under his guidance to "those vast austral lands," was at last permitted to leave for Peru with the Viceroy-elect, the Prince of Esquilache, in September, 1614.

In passing, one might record a trivial point which arose at one of the sessions, and which throws some light on the oblique diplomacy that was often practised. The Prince of Esquilache had applied for permission to take his Italian chaplain to Peru with him: a matter which was evidently against the existing regulations, and is submitted to the King for a ruling. The reply is: "Bring this matter up for discussion after the Prince has sailed!"

Similarly, no doubt, Quiros' numerous previous petitions may have been withheld from the royal notice by the King's unscrupulous advisers, to whose favour the "open sesame" was affluence; and to whom the propositions of Quiros, in his very straightened circumstances, must have been thoroughly unproductive, and, therefore, uninteresting!

Finally, however, the matter did come before the Indies Council, as recorded in another of these documents: "What is to be done with the person of Captain Quiros?", and the matter is passed on to the War Council. As history records, his privileges to go out upon his long-desired quest, were entirely cancelled by official instructions to the contrary simultaneously issued to the Viceroy: a humiliation which the navigator was spared by his death, which occurred on the voyage out.

Other matters dealt with at these sessions, in conjunction with the War Council, were: "The question of ejecting the English from Bermuda, where they are beginning to colonize"; a proposition to eject the Dutch from India and the Moluccas—for this Council dealt with the "Indies" in the East as well; the Dutch pretensions to entering the Pacific by way of the Magellan Straits; and the contretemps that befell Don Luis Fajardo in the early part of 1614, when he was "unable to take his fleet to America in accordance with instructions, as the sailors have deserted, and all likely seamen have fled rather than risk being taken by force." This shows us what some of the romantic sea-rovers really thought of life upon the ocean wave!

Many of the other sessions were occupied in discussing the merits of various candidates for viceregal, ecclesiastical and official appointments in Panama, Mexico,

Florida, Peru, Yucatan, and other Spanish colonies; defensive measures against the pirates off the American coast; the voyages of treasure-ships; commerce with the Philippines; the conveyance of produce from Brazil, the Canary Islands, and the West Indies; negro settlements and the slave trade; grants of Indians, pensions, orders of knighthood and other privileges; the mineral output and mining laws; and numerous other questions.

Many interesting snatches of biography and personal notes may be gleaned from the comments beside the names of candidates nominated for official posts. There is Captain Martin de Echevarria, who is recommended as having served for twenty-eight years and taken part in the naval disaster of the Invincible Armada in England; a word of warning against Pedro de Bolivar as Inspector of the garrison at Cartagena, for Bolivar is an Inquisition accountant, and "the Treasury and Your Majesty's service will be bound to suffer"! Further, the names of the early Spanish emigrants who were licensed to travel to Panama, Florida, Peru, etc., must be of considerable genealogical interest to many families in America.

Amongst "home" matters dealt with are: The reception of the Japanese King of Boxu's ambassador, and the getting rid of him, on account of his presence at court having occasioned "great expenditure"; the grant of money to Fray Luis Sotelo who had arrived in Spain with the ambassador from Japan, and was on his way to Rome: "The least we can give them for their journey to Rome is 4,000 ducats, and another 2,000 to buy brevaires, robes, medicines, etc. In this way we shall avoid the expence of their journey back to their country"; the proposition that the grandson of the President of the Council should be given a title; a discussion which "might be omitted until His Majesty makes some other grant to the Marques de Salinas"—when the proposition could be gracefully declined; a discussion on the offers received in connection with the compass and other nautical instruments, "and navigation from east to west"; even a discussion on the proposition that the porter at the Ministry should renounce his job in favour of his son.

One of these extremely interesting minutes refers to the historian Antonio de Herrera as chronicler. It is proposed that a loan of 1,600 ducats should be obtained from the penal fund, for the publication of four decades of the "Historia General de las Indias," to be repayable from money received from the sale of the book. Further, that a grant of three hundred ducats per annum should be made to "Antonio de Herrera the chronicler," in addition to a sum of 2,000 ducats from the sale of the four decades of his Historia. The Padre confessor approves of this grant, but disapproves of the grant of an order of Knighthood for Don Rodrigo de Vivero. A characteristic piece of hypocrisy is the confessor's comment in connection with the latter: "I am not of the opinion that craftiness should avail, but open negotiations."

In view of the great corruption that prevailed at the court during those years, it is quite possible that this volume was annexed by someone to whose interest it was to deprive the Council's archives of this official record.

A Proclamation against the Exportation of Clothes, vndyed and vndressed contrary to Law.

IT was the worke of one of Our Noble Progenitours, King EDVVARD 3. to conuert the Wools of this Kingdom, formerly bented Raw, into Cloth, thereby to procure vnto Our louing Subjects the profite arising, as wel vpon the Manufacture, as vpon the Materiall, and to set Our owne people on worke for their better sustentation and comfort. as it will neither hold out wet nor last any time, to the extreme damage of the wearer, and the intolerable discredit of this Noble and Staple commodity, all which Inconveniences will now cease and be removed: Wee therefore taking these things into Our Princely consideration, and finding likewise that the Kings Our Progenitours did long since in their Judgment & wisdom discern the good that might come of this worke, though through misinformation they never fully effected the same, as may appeare by the good and politike Lawes that have bene enacted in that behalfe, after mature Consideration, and deliberate Resolution in this important Case, doe by these Presents straightly and expresly Prohibite and forbidde, constitute and ordaine, That no Broad Cloath of what sort soever it bee, made here within this our Kingdome of England, shall be Exported, Undyed, and Undrest, after the second day of November next ensuing the date hereof: But that all such Broad Cloathes shall here within this Our Kingdome of England, have their full and due Manufactures before they be exported: And that all and every the former Lawes and Statutes, which have bene heretofore made and established in former times by any of Our Noble Predecessors, and are yet in force and strength for the true Dying and Dressing of Cloathes shall bee duly put in their full Execution: And that all Our loving Subjects of what qualitie soever, (that after the said second of November next ensuing will undertake the Exportation of Broad Cloathes, truly Dyed and Drest within this Our Kingdome), shal be admitted to Ship, and export the same to any staple Townes beyond the Seas, where heretofore Our Cloathes or woollen Commodities have bene transported by the Merchant adventurer, White, Rough, and Undrest, with as great and ample Priviledges as ever the said Merchants Adventurers within this Kingdome, or in Forraine parts have, or had, or with any other and further Priviledges for their comfort; and encouragement, as they shall or can reasonably require: Wee hereby intending to make a Free Trade for all Our loving Subjects that shall undertake the venting of the aforesaid Cloathes within the Territories where the Merchant Adventurers have formerly traded, being first here duely Dyed and Drest in their full Manufactures.

And wee doe further hereby promise in the Word of a King to all Our said loving Subjects, that so shall undertake to export the said Broad Clothes in their foresaid true Manufactures, that neither the present Charter of the Merchant Adventurers, nor any other Licences of Dispensations by Non obstantes contrarie to Our Lawes heretofore granted by Us, or any Our Predecessours shall be any maner of prejudice, impeachment, disturbance, or interruption to such as shall, after the time aforesaide, vent the said Clothes Dyed and Drest, according to this Our Royall Ordinance and Constitution; But are from the said second day of November next declared, to be annihilated and made voyde to all intents and purposes: So that all Our loving Subjects, their sonnes and servants shall be free to export the saide Clothes fully Drest and Dyed, as aforesaide. Provided nevertheless, that all and singular persons which shall shippe or export any such Dyed and Drest Clothes into the Territories aforesaid, shall first subscribe their names, with such summes of money, as they will yeerely employ during the space of three yeeres next ensuing, in a Register Booke, which shall be kept by William Cockaine

And that all others, which refuse or neglect so to doe, shall for ever be excluded from using and exercising the Trade of Exportation of Dyed and Drest Clothes into the places and dominions aforesaid."

WILLIAM COCKAINE, referred to in the above Proclamation, was one of the original members of the Merchant Adventurers Company, which had had a new Charter granted them a year before by King James, and which incorporated the North West Passage Company. This Company was "to enjoy forever the whole entire and only trade into the North West passage, and unto the lands, territories, and dominions aforesaid,"—i.e., the northern parts of America—and "unto the very territories of Tartaria, China, Japan, Coray, &c."

The present Proclamation sets aside some of their privileges, and allows other merchants to trade freely in places formerly restricted to them by Royal Charter.

A letter written shortly after his appointment as secretary of state, thanking Huyghens and through him the Councillors of state in the assembly of the States-General of Holland, for the cordial manner in which he had been treated during his term of office.

Trans.—"At present I think of the Gentlemen of the States-General and of the Council, to whom, for the great favours which I experienced at their hands, as much in public as in private life, I feel myself indebted for the rest of my days, and as long as I live, I shall never fail to render them very humble service." Etc.

Winwood, by his fanatical hatred of Spain and the expectation of pecuniary gain, was chiefly responsible for the release of Sir Walter Raleigh in 1616 and for the grant to him of permission for his voyaging off South America. Had Winwood not died before the result of the trial was made known, he would in all probability have shared Raleigh's fate.

SIR WALTER RALEIGH set out on his last expedition to the Orinoco in the year 1616. He was imprisoned in the Tower of London from 1603 to 1616, when he was liberated by King James in order to take charge of the expedition to Guiana, but as soon as the proposed voyage was publicly spoken of, Sarmiento, the Spanish ambassador, vehemently protested against it. All Guiana (the modern Venezuela), he asserted, belonged to the King of Spain, and Raleigh's incursion would be an invasion of Spanish territory, but he thought it more probable that Raleigh meant to lie in wait for and attack the Mexican plate fleet, in practical disregard of the peace between the two countries. Raleigh protested that he had no intention of turning pirate; that the mine really existed, and added, according to Sarmiento, that it was neither in nor near the King of Spain's territories—a statement palpably false. Raleigh knew that the Spaniards had taken possession of the district. He had stringent orders not to engage in any hostilities against the Spaniards, and was assured that disobedience would cost him his life. This warning he treated as mainly intended to satisfy Sarmiento, and as an intimation of the possible result of failure. To Bacon he spoke openly of seizing the Mexican plate fleet, and to Bacon's objection that that would be piracy, he answered ' did you ever hear of men being pirates for millions? '

The voyage was unfortunate from the first. Foul winds and storms drove him back, and afterwards scattered his fleet; one ship was sunk. Most of them, more or less disabled, put into the harbour of Cork. In July Raleigh paid a visit to Sir Richard Boyle, who lent him £100, and next month he entered into a partnership with Boyle for the working of the copper mine at Balligarren. He was not ready to sail again till 19. Aug. At the Canaries the Spaniards were sullenly obstructive; it was only after being refused at two of the islands that they were allowed to water at Gomera. From the Cape Verde Islands they were driven by a hurricane.

Calms and foul winds followed; they lay for forty days in the Doldrums, short of water, a prey to scurvy and fever. Great numbers of the men, with several of the captains and superior officers, died. Raleigh himself was stricken with fever. The crews were mutinous. It was afterwards stated that Raleigh encouraged them with assurances of capturing the Mexican fleet if the mine failed. On arriving off the mouth of the Oyapok he hoped to be joined by Leonard, an Indian whom he had brought to England on his former voyage, and who had lived with him for three or four years. But Leonard was not there, and Raleigh moved his squadron, reduced by wreck or separation to ten ships, to the mouth of the Cayenne. There he was welcomed by friendly natives whose affection he had won twenty years before.

The chief command of the expedition up the river he entrusted to Kemys; his nephew, George Raleigh, was to command the soldiers, among whom was his son Walter. Raleigh gave orders that they should land at a point agreed on, and march to the mine, said to be three miles distant. If they were attacked by the Spaniards in moderate force they were to repel them; but 'if without manifest peril of my son,' he said to Kemys, 'yourself, and other captains, you cannot pass toward the mine, then be well advised how you land. For I know, a few gentlemen excepted, what a scum of men you have, and I would not for all the world receive a blow from the Spaniard to the dishonour of our nation.' The expedition started on 10. Dec., but the settlement of San Tomás had been moved several miles lower down the river, and it was impossible to pass it without being seen, or to march to the mine without the danger of falling into an ambuscade. Kemys decided to attack the town, which was stormed and burnt, though with the loss of young Walter, Raleigh's son. The Spaniards took to the woods, and, in face of their opposition, Kemys judged it impossible to reach the mine. He returned to England, sailing past the whole of the American coast, via Newfoundland, arriving home in June 1618.

Already the news of the attack at San Tomás and of the failure of the expedition had reached the King, and the Spanish minister, now Conde de Gondamar, demanded satisfaction in accordance with James's promise that "if Raleigh returned loaded with gold acquired by an attack on the subjects of the King of Spain, he would surrender it all, and would give up the authors of the crime to be hanged in the public square of Madrid." James assured him that he would be as good as his word. The council resented Gondamar's language to the King; but James, supported by Buckingham, convinced it that Raleigh ought to be punished, whereupon the above Proclamation was issued for his arrest, which was effected by his cousin Sir Lewis Stukeley, at Ashburton, who took him back to Plymouth. From there he was taken to London and lodged in the Tower, and eventually executed.

The Proclamation itself is very interesting:—

OF THIS EXCESSIVELY RARE PROCLAMATION, CONCERNING THE INFANT COLONY OF VIRGINIA, ONLY THREE OTHER COPIES ARE KNOWN TO EXIST, AND IT IS SO RARE THAT THE JOHN CARTER BROWN LIBRARY ISSUED A REDUCED FACSIMILE OF IT IN 1907.

In 1612 the Virginia Company had a charter from the King, into which was introduced a provision granting to The Treasurer and Company of Adventurers and Planters of the City of London for the first Colony of Virginia authority to set forth one or more lottery or lotteries. These lotteries continued with more or less success up to 1620.

In May 1619, Gabriel Barbour was appointed Manager of the Virginia Company's Lotteries, an office which he filled to the satisfaction and profit of the Company. His very success was, however, probably the cause of the brief period allowed him for the exercise of his talents in this business. While the Treasurer and his friends in the Company were congratulating Barbour on the returns he was sending in, the people of the towns through which he had been working began to complain more and more loudly of the demoralization to business and industry caused by the popular excitement over the lottery. The complaints eventually made themselves heard in Parliament, and in March, 1620-21, the Privy Council, at the request of the Commons, ordered Proclamation to be prepared for the suspension of the lotteries. It is one of these Original Proclamations which we list above.

The text commences:—

By the King.

Hereas, at the humble suit and request of sundry Our loving and well disposed Subjects, intending to deduce a Colony, and to make a Plantation in Virginia, wee, for the enlarging of Our Government, increase of Navigation and Trade, and especially for the reducing of the savage and barbarous people of those parts to the Christian faith, did incorporate divers Noblemen, Gentlemen and others, adventurers in the sayd Plantation, and granted unto them sundry Priviledges and Liberties; amongst which, for their better helpe and assistance to raise some competent summes of money to prosecute the same Plantation to a happy end, wee did grant them licence to set forth, erect, and publish Lotteries, so continue for one yere after the opening of the same, and further, during Our pleasure; which liberty hath been by the same Company put in vse divers yeeres past. Now forasmuch as we are given to understand, that although wee in granting the sayd Licence, had Our eye fixed vpon a religious and Princely end and designe, yet the sayd Lotteries, hauing now for a long time been put in vse, doe dayly decline to more and more inconuenience, to the hinderance of multitudes of Our Subjects.

wee whole care continually waiteth vpon the generall welfare of Our people, haue thought it expedient, for the generall good of Our Subjects, to suspend the further execution of the sayde Lotteries, vntill vpon further deliberation and aduise, we shall be more fully informed of the inconueniences and euils thereby arising, and may ordaine due remedy for the same, without any conceit of withdrawing Our fauour in any degree from the sayd Company or plantation, and good worke by them intended.

And therefore we doe heereby expressly charge and command the sayd Company and their successors, and all their officers, Ministers, and Seruants, and all others, That from henceforth they desist and forbear, to vse or execute any manner of grant or Licence from Us, for the keeping and continuing of any Lotterie, or to keepe or continue any Lotterie, within this Our Realme of England or the Dominions thereof, vntill such time as wee shall declare Our further pleasure therein. And wee likewise require all Iustices, Officers, and Ministers whatsoever, from henceforth, diligently and carefully to see this Our pleasure executed, and to punish the infringers thereof, as contemners of Our Royall command.

ORDERING THE ARREST OF SIR WALTER RALEIGH'S CAPTAIN, ROGER NORTH.

ROGER NORTH (1585-1652) was the famous colonial projector. He was one of the captains who sailed with Sir Walter Raleigh in his last and fatal voyage to Guiana in 1617. He went up the Orinoco and assisted in routing the Spaniards settled there. North's ship was one of the few which remained with Sir Walter Raleigh's ship, the Destiny, on her voyage home, and Raleigh afterwards sent him on to Plymouth with despatches, and to him was assigned the task of breaking the evil tidings to the King.

The spirit of adventure was still strong in North, and in 1619 he petitioned for letters patent authorising him to establish the King's right to the coast and country adjoining the Amazon river; to found a plantation or settlement there, and to open a direct trade with the natives. The project provoked the determined opposition of Gondomar, who seems to have secured the support of Lord Digby; Roger's brother, Lord North, attacked Digby with much bitterness when he argued against the expedition as being to the prejudice of the King of Spain. James, however, provisionally granted the required letters patent under the great seal, and nominated North governor of the proposed settlement. The Earls of Arundel and Warwick, Lord North, and others of great estates, were among the adventurers, engaging to pay, for the first voyage, a third of the whole sum guaranteed by them.

But Gondomar's agents had procured a command from the King that the voyage should be stayed until further orders, and when Gondomar himself arrived he "spared neither solicitation nor importunitie to stop ye voyage, insomuch as he came to ye Counsel Table, for this only business, and did there bouldly and confidently affirms that his Master had ye actual and present possession of these

Wee haue therefore held it fit hereby to make a publique Declaration of Our bitter dislike and disauowement of this their rash, vndutiful and insolent attempt; and do hereby reuoke, annihilate and disanull all Power, Authoztie, iurisdiction, or Commission whatsoever, which he the said North, or any of his Complices may pretend in any sort to deriue & hold from or vnder Us; and do hereby charge aswell him the said North, as all his Companions and followers, immediately vpon the first notice that shall be giuen him or them of this Our pleasure, that they shall make their speedie returne directly home, with all their Shipping and munitions into this Our Kingdome of England, as soone as the Windes and weather shall permit them; and being heere arriued shall forthwith present themselves in person vncountries, but he would not hear our witnesses to ye contrary." North's petition for leave to start consequently obtained no answer. He nevertheless received through the Duke of Richmond a message of encouragement from the King, and was suffered to make his preparations without hindrance. His ship and pinnace lay idle in Plymouth Harbour, manned by a goodly company of mariners and landsmen, who, impatient of delay, and in despair of their captain's coming, grew disaffected. This fresh element of perplexity induced North to join his ship. "I desired my friends," he writes, "to let me know how it would be taken. I staid by the way, and at Plymouth some three weeks after my going from London till I received letters that all was well, and that ye world expected I should goe without bidding."

Thus encouraged, he sailed out of Plymouth Sound early in May 1620, having obtained from Buckingham one of the passports which as lord high admiral it was his privilege to sell. Thereupon the King and his Privy Council issued this Proclamation, which set forth that "Roger North having disloyally precipitated and embarqued himselfe and his fellows, and sodainly set to sea . . . a rash, undutiful, and insolent attempt," no merchants nor ship's officers, should they meet with him, are to "comfort him with men, money, munition, victuals, merchandise, or other commodities," but are to "attack, seize, and summon him to returne." Lord North was moreover imprisoned on a charge of connivance at the offence. Gondomar now assailed the King with indignant remonstrance. James admitted, in a personal interview with Gondomar, that he had cause to complain "of Captain North's voyage," but he laid the blame on Buckingham. Buckingham was then called into the room, and when asked by the King why he had sold a passport to North without the King's knowledge, replied, "Because you never give me any money yourself."

Meanwhile, North seems to have prospered in his venture, until, falling in with a Dutch vessel, he heard of the proclamation out against him, and returned of his own accord. By this time his ship was well fraught with seven thousand pounds of tobacco. He had not encountered the Spaniards, and had only lost two men. His ship and cargo were nevertheless seized at the instance of Gondomar, and he himself committed to the Tower. It was reported that he put up a bill to have justice and a lawful hearing against Don Gondomar for his ship and tobacco. Owing to the intervention of Buckingham, North was released on the same evening as Henry, Earl of Northumberland. Once more at liberty, he succeeded in making good his claim to the restitution of his ship and cargo, together with certain of the immunities promised him at the outset. His tobacco was returned to him free of all charges.

The brothers were recalled from their respective engagements by the Consejo de Indias, Bartolomé Garcia was serving with the Pacific Fleet, while his brother Gonçalo was in Corunna. On the King's instructions (Philip III) they were summoned to Madrid, where the expedition was proposed to them. They were to proceed to Lisbon, where two vessels of eighty tons each were built for them by Alvia de Castro, the King's shipbuilder. Each vessel was armed with four guns weighing from ten to twelve quintals, four mortars, thirty muskets and arquebuses, etc., and manned by forty sailors, all of whom were Portuguese. They carried supplies for ten months, "and as the voyage was so far and risky, there was not one who went voluntarily, but all had to be forced," the authors tell us. They sailed from Lisbon on the 27th September, 1618, the crew having been given ten months' pay in advance, and the two Captains in high spirits over the adventure. They returned from their famous journey on the 9th July, 1619, Captain Gonçalo having disembarked at Cape St. Vincent on the 7th to inform the King of Spain, who was then in Lisbon, all about the voyage.

The greater part of this volume consists of a general vocabulary of the Brazilian language, and is written anonymously and dated 1621; but a short vocabulary of physical and medical terms is appended, dated 1613, which is stated to have been compiled "for the convenience of confessors," by Padre Pero-del Castilho, a Jesuit. The two vocabularies are in different handwriting. Neither of these vocabularies is mentioned in Viñaza's Lenguas Indigenas de America; but this bibliography cites a printed grammar of the Lingua Brasilica, which was published in Lisbon circa 1621, and was the work of the Jesuit Padre Luis Figueira. Probably this vocabulary was the work of the same priest.

ILLUMINATED GRANT OF ARMS TO JUAN FERNANDEZ, COMPANION OF PIZARRO.

1623 A.D. [5045] FERNANDEZ (Juan, Conquistador, died 1538). Famous Spanish Soldier and Navigator. Companion of Pizarro. Helped in the conquest of Mexico, and explored Chili, Peru, etc. Official certified copy (made in 1623) of the Grant of Arms by the Emperor Charles V to Juan Fernandez de Paredes on the 30th January, 1523, at Valladolid, granting to him and his heirs, male and female, the right to use as arms a standard captured by him from a French Ensign at the Battle of Quiroz, near Pampeluna. Executed at the request of Don Ambrosio de Peredes, resident of Valladolid, great-grandson of the aforesaid Juan Fernandez, the original being the possession of his cousin Francis de Peredes.

With frontispiece, having a very fine full length coloured portrait of Fernandez in full armour, bearing a standard, and surmounted by Arms, occupying the full page.

Together 5 pp., 4to, vellum, 13th August, 1623.

A remarkably fine Spanish Royal Letters Patent and of great historical importance, evidently relating to the Juan Fernandez known as "Conquistador," one of the earliest explorers of the New World, and the companion of Pizarro. It also throws additional light on his early history, about which little is known. His fame, however, was such that in 1623 his great-grandson went to very considerable expense in having this certified official copy of the original Letters Patent made with the finely painted frontispiece.

In addition to the Coat-of-Arms in the frontispiece, another Coat-of-Arms in colour appears in the text of the document.

Sabin, 78363. John Carter Brown Library Catalogue, Vol. II, p. 180.

A curious and interest work, endeavouring to stir up popular feeling against Spain, shewing how much England had to fear from the increasing wealth Spain was obtaining from the Indies, and proving that England had prior right to the mainland of America, owing to Sebastian Cabot having, with his English companions, reached the mainland of America a year earlier than Columbus, and shewing the fallacy of the Spanish claims to that Continent. Pope Alexander VI could not give America to Spain as it was not his to give, either by Divine or human right. Spain had no general consent of the natives, as they had not gone any further north than Florida, where they only had two small forts, St. Augustine and St. Helena. Spain could claim no more by conquest than she had conquered.

In speaking of Florida, the author refers to the undiscovered land to the North, and states that its infiniteness is such, as no mortall tongue can expresse, nor eye hath seen, and that the inland inhabitants do not even dream of the existence of any other land than their own, and that the natives on the coast believe the English, French, Dutch, and Spaniards to be all one people.

This work, divided into eighteen "books," deals with the history of Portugal—more especially the military operations of that country—from the days of the first king's father, Henry of Burgundy, Count of Portugal (1090) to the reign of Philip III of Spain in the first decade of the seventeenth century.

The work is of great importance for the history of the Portuguese dominions and conquests overseas in Brazil, Oceania and the Moluccas.

The author, a Portuguese member of the royal household, was born in Lisbon in the eighteenth century; and, though forced to accept the sovereignty of the Spanish King, he very evidently retained his love of his native country and its national heroes. He explained in his preface to the Archbishop of Braga, to whom the book is dedicated, that his work is intended to be a more lasting monument to the heroes of his nation than the statues with which the Greeks formerly honoured their great; and to this end, he has written his work in Spanish, so that it might find a wider field of appreciation than if he had written it in Portuguese. Though written with a touch of pride for the exploits of the Lusitanians, the writer's attitude towards Portugal's enemies is fair and unprejudiced. Antonio de Sousa de Macedo describes it in his Excellencias de Portugal as an excellent book.

1625 A.D. [5049] ALEXANDER (Sir William). An Encouragement to Colonies.

With engraved folding map of Nova Scotia and surrounding parts of New England, Newfoundland and Canada.

London, William Stansby, 1625.

£525

No copy of this exceedingly scarce variant of the First Edition bearing the date 1625, in Sabin, Church Catalogue, or John Carter Brown Library Catalogue.

The Church Catalogue No. 400, in a footnote to the 1624 issue, mentions that some copies were issued with the date 1625.

“This is a record of the Earl of Stirling’s (Sir Wm. Alexander) unsuccessful attempt to found a Scotch Colony in Nova Scotia, to which he gave its name. It gives some account of the French Settlement in New France. Some copies bear the date of 1625. The unsold sheets were re-issued, without the dedication, in 1630, with a new title, as “The Mapp and Description of New England.”

The map displays the country from Cape Cod to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and contains the names of twenty patentees among whom the country was divided by the Council for New England, at Greenwich, in the presence of the King, on Sunday, June 29, 1623. An enlarged copy of this map may be found in the fourth volume of Purchas. On this map the Bay of Fundy is named Argals Bay. New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are together called New Scotland. The only settlements indicated on it are Kebec and Tadousac.”

Sir William Alexander, or the Earl of Stirling, was a celebrated Scotch poet and statesman, and friend of Charles I. At the close of his life he must have been cruelly robbed and wronged, for on 12th Sept., 1640, he died in London, insolvent.

“In 1621 occurred the central fact in Alexander’s political and public career—the grant of Nova Scotia, then known as New Scotland, and (practically) of Canada. In 1611 James had established the order of baronets of Ulster, towards furthering the plantation of north Ireland. This plantation and related order so prospered, that Sir William suggested similar procedure for North America: and on 21 Sept. 1621 he obtained from the king a charter, granting him, ‘his heirs and assigns, whomsoever, hereditarily, all and singular, the continent, lands, and islands, situate and lying in America, within the cape or promontory commonly called the Cape de Sable, lying near the latitude of 43 degrees or thereabout from the equinoctial line northward, from which promontory, towards the sea coast, verging to the west, to the harbour of Sancta Maria, commonly called Sanct Mareis Bay, and thence northward, traversing by a right line the entrance or mouth of that great naval station which runs out into the eastern tract of the land between the countries of the Suriqui and Stechemino, commonly called the Suriquois and Stechemines, to the river commonly called by the name of Santa Cruz, and to the remotest source or fountain on the western side of the same . . . and thence by an imaginary line, which might be conceived to proceed through the land, or run northward to the nearest naval station, river, or source discharging itself into the great river of Canada: and proceeding from it by the sea-shores of the same river of Canada eastward to the river, naval station, port, or shore, commonly known and called by the name of Gathepe or Gaspie, and thence south-eastwards to the island called Baccaloer or Cape Breton, leaving the same islands on the right, and the gulf of the said great river of Canada, or great naval station, and the lands of Newfoundland, with the islands pertaining to the same lands, on the left: and thence to the cape or promontory of Cape Breton aforesaid, lying near the latitude of 45 degrees or thereabout: and from the said promontory of Cape Breton, towards the south and west, to the aforesaid Cape Sable, where the circuit began, including and comprehending within the said sea coasts and their circumferences from sea to sea, all continent lands, with rivers, bays, torrents.'

"Prodigious as was this grant, it was later so much increased that the best portions of the entire northern section of the now United States and Canada were placed under Alexander's jurisdiction. The charter of Charles', confirming James's, gave full powers to use the mines and forests, erect cities, appoint fairs, hold courts, grant lands, and coin money—in short, almost absolute authority in a country larger than all the king's dominions elsewhere.

"The unique gift seems to have lain dormant for some time: but on the accession of Charles in 1625 the charter with all its rights and privileges was renewed and the first batch of baronets created—this honour being conferred on payment of £150 sterling, a sum which entitled the payer to a grant of land three miles long by two broad (Memorials, ii, 179-205).

"To promote the colonisation, Sir William, in 1625, published a weighty and vigorous and statesmanlike Encouragement to Colonies. The new order of baronet, however, involved Alexander in troublesome disputes. Sir Thomas Urquhart of Cromarty, in his Jewel (ed. Edin. 1774, p. 129), is bitterly sarcastic on his fellow-countryman's ambition in relation to these charters. "He was born a poet and aimed to be a King," is only one of many passionate phrases. Spite of all, Sir William showed high-hearted courage, prescient statesmanship, and marvellous resource and insistence in his efforts to colonies. The difficulties were enormous, and the opponents (including France) formidable: but the good knight never knew when he was beaten. He and his son made effort after effort. The facts in their lights and shadows, adventures and misadventures, oppositions and aids, are well worthy of study as part of the mighty story of our colonial empire."

Pages 18 to 27 relate to America, and describe at length how the Dutch captured from the Portuguese the town and district of Todos los Sanctos (Bahia) in Brazil and also Callao, the port of Lima, with a long description of those parts of Brazil and Peru.

"The Dutch Survey," London, 1625, is ascribed to William Crosse, the poet and translator who flourished at that period. He took Orders in 1613 but, obtained no better preferment than that of a poorly paid army Chaplain. "In 1625 he published a poem of small worth but of much pretension, divided into two books, and entitled 'Belgiaes Troubles and Triumphs. Wherein are . . . related all the most famous Occurrences which have happened betweene the Spaniards and Hollanders in these last foure yeares Warres of the Netherlands,'" etc. 4to. 40 leaves. In the dedication of the second book he says that he has written a discourse rather than a poem, and professes to have treated events truly and historically without undue indulging in poetic license. He was later engaged to write a continuation, which appeared in 1627. The Dutch Survey is probably a prose rendering based on this poem, or vice versa.

This poem is excessively scarce, and the 'Survey' is also of great rarity, this being the only copy that has passed through our hands.

"Gaspar de Villarroel was born in Quito in 1587 of parents who were extremely poor, but were said to have descended from a noble family. Villarroel entered the Church and assumed the habit of St. Augustine. Later he received the degree of Doctor. He was elected prior at Cuzco, which office he held until his departure for Spain, where his publications made an impression on influential persons at court. In 1637 he was presented as Bishop of Santiago, where his benevolence and charity found ample opportunity for exercise after the earthquake of May 13th, 1647, when the earth is said to have trembled and fluctuated like the sea. In 1651 he was promoted to the Bishopric of Arequipa, where he was able to expand the field of his charity. Even his library he distributed amongst various monasteries, and shortly after his transfer to Las Charcas, as Archbishop, he died, leaving no earthly possessions, and was buried at the expense of his Chaplain." In 1603 Sir Walter Raleigh was condemned to death for his supposed treasonable views towards King James. His sentence was, however, changed to one of imprisonment. Whilst in prison he devoted himself to the writing of his History of the World. In 1616 he was released in order that he might lead the expedition for the discovery of the great Gold Mines that were supposed to exist in Guiana, on the one condition, that he should not attack the Spaniards. His men, however, ran foul of a Spanish village in Guiana, and were obliged to fight the Spaniards. The mines were never reached, and Raleigh was obliged to return to England as a failure, and was executed on 29th October, 1618, for his attack on the Spaniards. He did not live to finish his work.

It was Sir Walter Raleigh who named Virginia after Queen Elizabeth, the Virgin Queen, and who attempted to found the first English Colony in America, in Virginia.

"The first part of this document consists of an account of various martyrdoms in Japan which occurred between 1627 and 1630. There then follows an account of the martyrdom of two Franciscans in New Mexico, which, as it is not very long, I have here translated.

"On the 22nd of February, 1632, Padre Fray Francisco Letrado, a native of the town of Ocaña and a son of this holy province of Castile, after having reduced to the faith of Christ and baptized many souls in the conversion of the pueblo of the Jumanas and in other places of Salinas, where he erected a famous convent and a very good church, carried away by the fervor of his great spirit, begged of his superiors the new conversion of Zuñi, a land in New Mexico. Here on the day referred to, which was the fiftieth Sunday after Easter, having ordered the bell for mass to be sounded, and seeing that the Indians did not come, he went out of the church to call them. The savages had conspired against him on account of the holy faith which he preached to them, and entering by an alley close to the place where he went out to call the people, the traitors fell on the blessed father and with bludgeons hacked his head to pieces, and executed on him such great cruelties that the blessed father gave his soul to God and flew to a happy country to enjoy the palm and crown of martyrdom which he so much desired.

"On the 27th of February, 1632, Padre fray Martin de Arbide, preacher, native of the town of San Sebastian in Guipuzcoa, a son of the province of the Holy Evangel in Mexico, and guardian of the convent of the Hermes in the land of New Mexico, after having founded an entire pueblo called the congregation of San Diego, of Hermes Indians, with three hundred good houses and a famous church, and where he had converted many souls, guided by his fervid zeal for the health of souls, begged a license of the superior to go to the new conversion of the Cipios Indians. The holy man made a happy voyage, and arrived at the province of Zuñi, where the holy fray Francisco Letrade had been murdered. As the savages were sworn against the ministers of Jesus, they treacherously came upon him and gave him a great wound. The holy man, turning on the heathen traitors to censure their crime, saw a great band of those who were of the conspirators, and called upon God and His Holy Mother. With a musket which they had taken from a Spanish soldier, they fired a shot at him which brought him to the ground, and they giving him many great wounds, he gave his soul to the Lord who created him, to enjoy the happy martyrdom which the holy man many days before had prophesied, speaking of it to the Padre fray Roque de Figueredo, preacher of the conversion of Zuñi."

Sabin 11270. This work is most valuable for the particulars it contains of the cruelties committed by the Spaniards in America, from the year 1493, when they first commenced to inhabit that Continent, to about 1550—cruelties carried on for such a length of time and with a pertinacity so remarkable as to call forth, even in those days, a remonstrance against such inhuman barbarity. It contains accounts of the atrocities in various parts of America, one three-page section being entitled “De la Provence Floride.” Other sections include the Rio de la Plata, St. Juan and Jamaica, Mexico, Guatemala, Trinidad, Venezuela, Peru, etc.

Las Casas went out to America with Columbus, in 1493, at the age of nineteen. On his return to Spain he embraced the ecclesiastical profession in order that he might act as a missionary in America, “there to spend his days in preaching the Gospel to the Indians, and humanity to their oppressors.” Twelve times he crossed the ocean to plead at the Spanish throne the cause of the wretched Indians, and passed fifty years of his life in attempting the amelioration of their lot. The book, especially illustrated, was very popular in the Low Countries, where it was used as a special warning of what the people were to expect should Spain regain her ascendancy over them.

accredited as Ambassador to the King of Persia. He was able to make an extensive tour in Persia, visiting Coom, Cashan, Bagdad, and other important cities. He also visited the Cape of Good Hope, Madagascar, and Surat, and coasted the Eastern shores of N. America on his return to England. His account of these travels is written in a lively and agreeable style, and among the most curious of its contents is a dissertation to prove that America was discovered three hundred years before Columbus by the Welshman, Madoc ap Owen, and Herbert quotes the early Welsh Bards in evidence of Madoc's departure for an unknown Western land with ships and settlers. It is amusing that he points to the name of Cape Breton as a proof that his countrymen were there in the ninth century.

Title reads (in translation):—"True account of the Peace which the Marquis of Baides, the Governor of Chili, has made with the rebellious Araucano Indians. Drawn up from his reports, and letters, and from the Jesuit Fathers who accompanied the royal expedition, which had to be made to effect this Peace, during the past year 1641. Containing the strange wonders that preceded this peace. A volcano that burst out with flaming ashes, and sent large rocks flying through the air, heated the springs and cooked the fish in the rivers. A monstrous beast. . . . Two armies in the air fighting against each other, one led by a famous captain on a white horse, with a large sword in hand. Treating of the liberation of the Spanish captives and the solemnity and ceremonies with which the enemy concluded the Peace, and other things of interest and profit."

"Alonso de Ovalle became more widely known than most of the early Colonial historians, partly from the fact that his 'history of Chile' was one of the first Chilean books of which translations were published in Europe.

"The gentleness and docility of Alonso, his inclination to religious reflection and his wealth naturally suggested to his Jesuit instructors the desirability of attracting him to enter the Order. The necessary steps for his initiation were hastily taken, and without the knowledge of his parents he took the vows and assumed the obligations of the Jesuits. When the father learnt of the son's act, he used every means to induce Alonso to withdraw from the Order and to persuade the Provincial to surrender him, but all without result. The Jesuit authorities to avoid any attempt that might be made to rescue the novice, determined to send him to Cordoba, in the Province of Tucuman. This project came to the knowledge of Alonso's relatives, who proposed to kidnap him on the journey over the Andes. But the Jesuits and their charge completely eluded the armed men sent to the mountain pass to intercept them.

"At Cordoba, Alonso continued his studies, and at the end of his novitiate he returned to Santiago. Soon after his arrival in Chile he was ordained priest, and undertook the moral and religious instruction of the negroes, and on Sundays preached in the public square of the town. He also went as a missionary to the Indians in various parts of Chile, and had unrealized projects of more extensive work, when the authorities of his order directed him to take up the duties of a professor of philosophy. Later he was appointed rector of the Seminario at Santiago. His reputation for learning and religious devotion increased, and when a few years later it became necessary to treat with the general of the Society concerning questions relating to the vice-province of Chile, the members of the order in Chile resolved unanimously to send Alonso de Ovalle to Rome. He undertook the journey by way of Lima and Panama. At Lima he found that his reputation as a preacher had preceded him, and the people pressed to hear him. From Italy, Ovalle went to Madrid, where he was received by the monarch. Returning in 1650, he embarked for Chile by way of Panama. At Piata, not meeting the ship he expected to take him to Colláo, he set out overland for Lima, over an almost trackless region, with little preparation for meeting his need for food and water. He arrived in Lima suffering under a violent fever from which he died a few days later." (Adapted from Dr. Moses—Spanish Colonial Literature in South America.)

A graphic report of the organised revolt by the Sangleys—Philippine labourers of Chinese extraction—against the tyranny of Don Luis Arias de Mora, whom the Governor had appointed as alcalde in charge of the agricultural work of Colamba. The labourers had been in communication with the corsair Yquan Sanglus, and the plot was that they were to enter Manila on Christmas Eve, 1639, take the Spanish residents unawares and overpower them, and literally leave the coast clear for the pirate Yquan to seize the cargo ships that were expected from New Spain. They were, however, completely defeated by the Spaniards, and some friendly Indians.

Innocencio's Diccionario Bibliographico, No. 88, p. 186, Vol. 18.

This curious little tract is practically a catalogue of the towns, lands, etc., which had been lost to the Spanish crown in Philip IV's reign. Amongst this strange report of losses, the reputation of the Spaniards figures as an amusing item, also "not being in a position to pride ourselves upon possessing a single handful of land in France"—the minor possessions in that country having been ceded together with other territory in Europe, by Philip IV in accordance with the terms of the Treaty of the Pyrenees, later, in 1659. Ormuz, Ceylon, Brazil, the Pacific Islands and Pernambuco figure in this catalogue of losses.

The book also enumerates the citadels, armadas and fleets that were lost, one of the armadas having been "completely burnt by the Dutch, off the English coast." The various overwhelming defeats of the Spanish armies are chronicled with much relish, as though the writer had set out to record them in a satirical vein, and intended to represent Spain's military forces in the most ludicrous light. Having set down seven pages of Spanish disasters, the writer concludes: "This is enough for the present, another day will relate the rest."

The Count of Castel Milhor left Portugal with an Armada for Brazil in order to defend Bahia. On the return journey it met with terrific gales and storms, and finally was wrecked off the coast of Cartagena, Colombia, where the Count of Castel Milhor was made prisoner by the Spaniards, and after suffering numerous torments and even being put to the rack, was cast into prison.

Soon the news reached Portugal of the Count's imprisonment, and by order of Joao IV, then newly enthroned King, an expedition was sent out to rescue him. When nearing Colombia, they encountered Dutch pirates, who, thinking the vessel to be a galleon carrying silver and jewels, boarded her. On hearing the story of the captured Count, the pirate captain was moved to compassion, and finally helped to rescue him from the Spaniards.

settled as Minister at a place called Agawam, soon afterwards renamed Ipswich. He joined with the Rev. John Cotton of Boston in framing the first code of laws established in New England, which were passed by the General Court in 1641 under the title of "Body of Liberties." Six hundred acres of land granted him at Haverhill he afterwards gave to the University of Cambridge, Mass. During his stay in New England he took an important part in its history. Early in 1645 Ward began writing "The Simple Cobler of Aggavvam," a prose satire of the time, which he sent to England, and which immediately became popular, and will always associate his name with early American literature. He returned to England in 1646.

Ward was famous for his wit, also for his judgment and gravity, but a becoming gentleness scarcely seems to have been one of his strong points. It was the period of the Irish Massacres, and in "A Word of Ireland" at the end of this present work, he remarks, "Cursed bee hee that maketh not his Sword starke drunk with Irish blood." He was fond of introducing short rhymes into his works such as the following, which he attributes to a lady living somewhere with the Queen of Bohemia!

"The world is full of care, most like unto a bubble, Women, and care, and care and women, and women and care and trouble."

Gregorio Lopez was born in Madrid, on 4th July. He is said to have been of noble lineage, though some doubt exists as to his proper surname. He took the name of Lopez to disguise his family's identity. At an early age he went to Navarre, where he lived with a hermit in great poverty for six years. His father went in search of him, and finally ran him to earth at his hermitage, bringing him back to Valladolid, where the Court then resided, and got him an appointment as Court page, much against his will. Court life not appealing to him, and being anxious to follow the life of a recluse, he proceeded to New Spain about 1563, and after visiting Veracruz, went on to Mexico. Altogether he spent some 33 years in New Spain, "in solitude and sanctity," and died on 20th July, 1596. He is not to be confused with a native Chinese Dominican, Gregorio Lopez, who graduated at Manila, and became Bishop of Nanking, where he died in 1670.

The title reads in translation, "Amsterdam's Street-Talk, on Something Old, Something New, and Something Strange." The work itself relates largely to Brazil, also to New Netherlands (New York), the Dutch West India Company, etc. A certain Mr. van Beeck and a Mr. Ray meet in the great square of Amsterdam and after some conversation are joined by Señor Francisco, a Portuguese, and then discuss the recent peace with Portugal, the affairs of the West India Co., and the charges brought against the King of Portugal, who is defended by Señor Francisco. Meanwhile an Englishman, Mr. Man, appears. He is a director of the W. India Co., and was an actual personage then living. When he speaks concerning the King of Portugal, Señor Francisco reminds him of the execution of Charles I by the English Parliament, and goes on to prove the impossibility of the King of Portugal being able to fulfil the demands of Holland, and that the W. India Company were really at fault. The Englishman goes away and a certain Mr. Onkelbloet arrives. He speaks at length on the W. India Co., and enumerates the cruelties and acts of mismanagement of their agents, and states that it will never prosper.

“Beyond the Seas” refers to America, and more particularly to the West Indies and other English Settlements on the mainland.

This forms one of the Acts by which Oliver Cromwell sought to extirpate piracy, robbery, murder, treason, etc., upon the high seas, or “in any haven, river, creek, or place,” where his Admirals had, or pretended to have power. Cromwell was instrumental in putting down much of the American piracy.

Rodriguez, Bibliotheca Brasiliense, No. 1275.

A rare and important work, printed on 22 pages, giving the rules and regulations for the conduct of the newly formed Brazil Company of Portugal, whose first fleet set sail in 1649.

Joao Fernandez Vieyra, a native of Madeira, organized the Portuguese insurrection in the Dutch Brazilian Settlements, which broke out in 1645. “This insurrection gave birth to one of those wars in which a whole nation, destitute of pecuniary resources, military organization, and skilful leaders, is opposed to a handful of soldiers advantageously posted and well officered. But brute force is unable to contend with scientific valour. Vieyra, who had the sense to see this, repaired to the Court of Portugal, and discovering the weakness and poverty of the executive, suggested the establishment of a Company similar to that which in Holland had proved so successful. His plan, notwithstanding the opposition of the priests, was approved of, and in 1649 the Brazil Company of Portugal sent out their first fleet.” After a sanguinary war Pernambuco and Olinda fell, in the year 1654, and the Portuguese were restored to an undivided Empire in Brazil.

John Carter Brown Library Catalogue, Vol. II, p. 399. "Believed to have been secretly printed at Puebla de los Angeles."

Palau's Manual, Vol. VI, p. 16. Salva, 3373. Bartlett, No. 671.

An address from the famous Bishop of Puebla de los Angeles to the King of Spain, in which he discourses upon the character and abilities of the Mexican Indians, whose cause he champions: "The Indians are the vassals who have cost the Crown the least, yet they are not the ones who have helped least to enrich the Crown"; and are therefore worthy of Royal protection.

Leclerc cites the French edition of 1672, which is a "translation of the valuable Memorial of the celebrated bishop. THE ORIGINAL EDITION IS AN EXCESSIVELY RARE BOOK."

Palafox was second to Las Casas in making known to the Spanish government the unfortunate condition of the Indians, and demanded of it an effort to ameliorate their condition. His zeal and humanity are shown in this appeal to the King, to whom his work is addressed. The work was printed secretly, without title, date, or indication where printed, and is very rare.

The rarity and importance of this work in all inquiries relative to the interesting and much abused aboriginal people of Mexico requires a statement of its contents, which its very brief title conveys no idea of. It is divided into 21 chapters, preceded by an Introductory Address to the King. The object of the work, whose title is Virtues of the Indian, is a panegyric of this people.

(1) On the worthiness of the Indians to enjoy Your Majesty's protection, in view of the meekness with which they accepted the religion of Christ with the Catholic banners.

(2) How much the Indians deserve Your Majesty's protection in view of the fervour with which they practise the Christian religion.

(3) How much the Indians deserve Your Majesty's protection on account of the mildness with which they came under the dominion of your Royal Crown, and their constant fidelity.

(4) On the courage and vigour of the Indians, and that their loyalty and submission to Your Majesty's Crown are not due to any oppression, but to their virtue.

(5) How worthy the Indians are of Royal protection for the utility of their services to the Crown of Spain.

EARLY CHART ON VELLUM OF THE ARCTIC REGIONS.

1650 A.D. [5092] NOVA ZEMBLA. An extremely interesting French Manuscript Chart on vellum, outlined in colour, of Nova Zembla and the adjacent coast of Russia (Samoye) and Siberia. (Size 25 by 33 inches). Circa 1650.

£52 10S

An extremely important early chart of French origin of Nova Zembla. A large number of names of coastal features are given, very few of which appear to be in present use. Two towns are given, Valkenkov and Waigatz. The former of these appears to be now named Klabarova, and the latter has given its name to Vaigach Island. Vaigach Island, however, is not shewn as such, but as part of Nova Zembla, a narrow bay being given in the position of the Kara Strait which separates the Island from Nova Zembla. A note, in French, concerning the mainland coast of Samoye or Samoieda reads, in translation, "It is uncertain whether this is land or sea, but the general opinion is that the coast of Samoyeda is a continuation of that of Grand Tartary and the Strait of Anian given in the map." The Strait of Anian, in this respect, is of course now named Behring's Strait, and divides Alaska from Siberia.

Original early charts of the Arctic Regions of this nature are of the greatest rarity.

A curious and scarce little work. Hunt refers to his having been Governor of Providence Island (i.e. New Providence Island in the Bahamas which had been settled in 1629, although Spain retook it in 1641), since when he had been waiting for an opportunity of making a similar settlement elsewhere, for the glory of God and his native country. He had decided on the Island of Assada, near Madagascar, which he compares with Barbados as to situation, but considers the cost of planting to be only about a tenth of what it would be there. Assada was situated near the northern extremity of Madagascar, about nine miles off the Western coast. He considered it a much more favourable position than the settlement which had previously been attempted at St. Augustin's Bay in the S.W. of the island, and a good point of call for English shipping between England and India. Top margin restored, not affecting the text.

- 1655 A.D. [5103] S. (J.). A brief and perfect Journal of the late Proceedings and Successes of the English Army in the West-Indies, continued until June the 24th, 1655. Together with some Quaeres inserted and Answered. Published for satisfaction of all such who desire truly to be informed in these particulars. By I. S. an Eye-witnesse.

Sabin 74616. The object of the expedition, which consisted of 10,000 men under the command of General Venables and Admiral Penn, was the conquest of all the Spanish West-Indian Islands. The English army was, however, badly defeated by a greatly inferior Spanish force in Hispaniola, but was successful in securing and holding the island of Jamaica.

Contains the famous sonnet placed at the head of the Voyages Aventureux de Jean Alfonse, extolling to the public the charms of travel books, and ending with a patriotic wish in asking that the Dauphin, son of François Ier, should set out to conquer for France an overseas domain.

Si la merveille unie à verité
Est des esprits de delectable pasture,
Bien devra plaire au monde la lecture
De ceste histoire & sa varieté.

Autre Ocean d'autres bords limité
Et autre ciel s'y voit d'autre nature,
Autre bestail, autres fruits & verdure,
Et d'autres gens le terrain habité.

Heureux Colom qui premier en fist queste,
Et plus heureux qui en fera conqueste,
L'un hemisphere avec l'autre unissant.

C'est au Dauphin à voir ces mers estranges,
C'est à luy seul à remplir de louanges
La grand' rondeur du paternel croissant.

“ Pour mettre au devant de l'Histoire des Indes.”

The expeditions referred to of Jacques Cartier, of Roberval and of Ville Gagnon were unfortunate, and the Dauphin did not set sail for Canada. (See chapter V, L'Amérique et le Grand Public en France au milieu du XVIe siècle; vulgarisateurs et Poètes, in Gilbert Chinard's excellent monograph, L'Exotisme Américain dans la Littérature Française au XVIe siècle d'après Rabelais, Ronsard, Montaigne, etc.).

THE CASE OF PALAFOX AND THE JESUITS IN MEXICO.

- 1659 A.D. [5110] SALDANA (or SANTILLANA) (Leonardo de). Transcript of Letters (in Spanish) from Saldana, giving a full description of the events which led to Palafox's recall to Spain, including extracts from the Viceroy's correspondence with reference to the controversies.

228 pp., folio. Puebla de Los Angeles, 1659.

£10 10s

The Manuscript gives a very detailed description of the events which occurred in the Mexican diocese of Juan de Palafox of Mendoza, Bishop of Puebla, and the writer, in a series of 18 long letters (20th August, 1647, to 1659), quotes many extracts from letters from the Viceroy and other officials, relating to the case. The writer is evidently one of Palafox's friends, and as such, his work is particularly interesting. (Some pages are slightly wormed, but the text is not affected. The first page of the manuscript is missing.)

This work relates to the troubles in Brazil between the Dutch and the Portuguese, which resulted, in 1661, in the total loss of that country by Holland.

The title reads, in translation:—"Manifesto or reasons of the war between Portugal and the United Provinces of the Netherlands; with a discussion of the reasons which gave rise to the War. Published at Lisbon in the Portuguese and Castilian Languages in 1657, and now faithfully and clearly translated into the Dutch. Together with a manifesto of the lies and fictions with which it is filled, and also a short and true account of the faithless and perjured proceedings of the King of Portugal and his subjects; and that they are themselves the true reason and even the commencement of this war."

Bernardino de Cardenas, Bishop of Paraguay, was the cause of much disturbance in South America. He fell out with the Jesuits in Paraguay over the question of his authority over the Indian Colonies or "Reductions" there, and nearly proved their ruin. These troubles were eagerly seized upon by the Anti-Jesuit party and formed the theme of a number of writings. (Margin slightly mended and small wormhole in text.)

Father Raymond Breton, of the Order of Preachers; was one of the earliest French Missionaries to the West Indies. His works have become very scarce, and are all the more valuable as knowledge of the Carrib language is almost lost, and they are the only works to shew the language spoken before the arrival of Europeans. Father Breton lived in the Antilles for twelve years, and died at Caen in 1679.

In 1651, a French company obtained from the French Government the cession of Cayenne, which had been abandoned since the death of Brétigny. Four or five hundred colonists left France under the leadership of Royville, and the spiritual direction of the Abbé de l'Isle-Marivault, accompanied by several young priests, among whom was Biet. The Abbé fell into the Seine at the departure of the expedition and was drowned, and Biet was persuaded to take his place, much against his will. The expedition stopped some days at Madeira. During the voyage to Madeira, and whilst there, Royville rather tried to ride the high horse over his associates, and after leaving Madeira, during an illness, whilst sleeping on deck, he was stabbed and dropped overboard. At Cayenne, the colonists and adventurers wasted their time building a new fort instead of repairing the old one and sowing grain for the next year. There was continual strife among themselves, aggravated by the attacks of the Caribbee Indians and the running out of provisions. Those of the colonists who remained embarked in a Dutch vessel for Surinam and so to Barbadoes, where the English gave them a good reception. Biet went on to Martinique to try and arrange for another expedition to Cayenne, but the French there treated him as an English spy. He sailed next to Guadeloupe, whence he returned to France. His work is well written, simply and with candour, and makes quite good reading. At the end is a dictionary of the Caribbee Indian language.

Sabin 50086. This work is sought for its plates, especially for the small engraved view of New Amsterdam, which is "without doubt, the handsomest, and at the same time the most agreeable view of Dutch New York." The 70 plates are in the text and represent the games, festivals, occupations, battles, religious rites, cannibalism, habitations, manners, and customs of the Indians.

Nearly half the work relates to Brazil. The other parts of America are also described, including California, New Amsterdam, Florida, etc., etc.

Some small marginal repairs, not affecting the text.

This work attacks Downing, the English Ambassador to Holland, and the Policy of England towards Holland. Sir Geo. Downing was one of the most remarkable men that New England ever produced. He was in the first class to graduate from Harvard University and his name stands second on the list of the 7,000 alumni of that institution. He went to England and rose to a high position under Cromwell and Charles II and was for long Ambassador to Holland, in which capacity he was responsible for England obtaining New Amsterdam and New Netherland (New York).

and heroes"; a study of the tides throughout the world; winds in general, and those on the Pacific and Atlantic Coasts of America in particular; variations of the compass; and other matters relating to navigation. The folding tables gives particulars of the winds.

This edition was printed at the expense of the King of Spain, to whom the work is dedicated.

The author wrote other geographical, mathematical and nautical works, some of which, however, do not seem to have been published.

Francisco de Seixas or Seijas y Lobera, was a distinguished Spanish navigator and cosmographer. Born at Mondoñedo, he began his travels at an early age, and studied in particular mathematics, cosmography and languages. About the year 1662, he accompanied the French Ambassador Tavernier on his special mission to the Great Mogol; and visited China two years later; passing the Moluccas, and the Strait of Lemaire from the Pacific to the Atlantic on his way back. He then made a long voyage to China and Siam in a mercantile fleet, and took possession of one vessel as his share of the profits. In command of this vessel, he undertook another commercial tour in Europe and the coast of Guinea; proceeded to Lima in 1697, by way of Costa Rica and Panama, and made a special study of metallurgy for the purpose of increasing the output of precious metal in the mining districts of Peru. He studied with the most learned men of his day, and was much respected for his own learning. He compiled an original atlas with the principal ports in the whole American continent, which he mentions in one of the preliminary leaves in this item, but it was apparently never published.

He spent the latter part of his life in Paris, and died after 1704.

Garcilasso de la Vega, the author, was a son of one of the conquerors of Peru, by his wife, Chimpa Oello, a grand-daughter of the great Inca Tupac Yupanqui, the last native monarch of Peru. He was proud of both paternal and maternal origin, and assumed the Spanish name of the first, while he was careful to assert his Inca-rial descent. He was a gentleman of refinement and possessed of much learning, speaking Spanish and Quichua from infancy. A descendant of the proud race of the Incas, he was a most industrious and careful historian of the evil fortunes of his race, as well as a chronicler of the victories of its conquerors.

ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT OF THE ANNUAL LETTER FROM THE FAR EAST.

1689 A.D. [5170] NUEVAS DESDE ORIENTE.

Manuscript in Spanish, beautifully written on 7 pp. of rice paper.

Folio, in buckram portfolio. Cancheu, 14th October, 1689.

£52 10s

This is an original manuscript sent by one of the famous Spanish missionaries, an Aragonese, from Cancheu in China.

It contains news from the missions in the Orient, from India, Manjar, Siam, China, Macao, Manila.

The last paragraphs are entitled "Modo, como van, y vienen las Cartas a este Oriente," in which the Jesuit Father describes the manner, ways, and times, how letters are sent from the Orient to Europe, and from Europe to the Orient. "The advice boat leaves in December, of this year, viz., 1689, from Macao it takes three months to go to Goa, so that it arrives in that city in March. The letters are kept during the whole of the year 1690 in Goa. Thereafter they leave Goa in January, 1691, and arrive in Lisbon in September of the same year, and thence in a month or two they are received in Aragon. So that letters which are written in China here in October, 1689, arrive in Aragon in October, 1691. From Aragon they answer in January or February, 1692; these letters arrive in March in Lisbon, in which month or at the beginning of April the ship for India leaves and arrives in

Goa, in the same year, 1692. The letter wait there till April, 1693 when they leave for Macao, and in three months they arrive here. And so, the letters written in Spain, 1692, are received in Macao in August, 1693, and thence they are sent to the Fathers who are in China here. In this manner it is clearly seen that four years are necessary for an answer to be received to a letter, with the provision that in this calculation there may be some slight difference, more or less, depending on the state of the sea and winds.

“This route via Portugal is very roundabout, but as experience has shown, the safest.

“If only the Portuguese had missionaries in the Orient, letters would come much more quickly. Quite fresh news is received, however, by way of Amsterdam, London and Brest; but, as it is necessary to have correspondents to send the letters on and there are difficulties in the way, this way is most difficult for us. I must not omit to mention the way via Manila, because although the letters are sometimes delayed others come so quickly, that neither via Goa nor via Batavia can they arrive any quicker. As an instance, in this very year 1689, we received the news of the election of our Very Rev. Father Gonzalez, via Portugal in August, but we had already had the news via Manila, in November of last year.” Etc., etc.

Rodrigues, Bibliotheca Brasiliense, No. 1674. Some pages browned.

According to Innocencio, "Of all the volumes, the eighth is the most difficult to obtain," and Rodrigues adds that the complete set is extremely rare.

This monumental chronicle was the work of five authors and took some hundred and thirty years to compile. The first volume deals with the history of Lusitania or Portugal from the earliest times to the Birth of Jesus, the second volume, narrates the history of this country until the time of the Court of Portugal, Dom Henrique; the third volume describes the reign of the first King of Portugal, Dom Afonso Henriques; the fourth gives the history from Dom Sancho I to Dom Afonso III; the fifth contains the history of the first twenty-three years of King Dinis' reign; the sixth part records the last twenty-three years of Dom Dinis' life; the seventh deals with the reign of Dom Afonso IV; and the eighth, which relates the events of the reigns of Dom Fernando and Dom Joao I, to the year 1423, contains an interesting dedication by Fr. Manoel dos Santos, dated Alcobaça, 20th August, 1726, addressed to Prince Joseph I and Princess Marianna Victoria of Brazil, with references to the later fifteenth and early sixteenth century discoveries and conquests of the Portuguese in America.

“This work, according to Charlevoix, was partly the work of Count Frontenac, then Governor of Canada. Mr. Lenox says (Historical Magazine, June, 1858) that this work was strictly suppressed, but that it appeared the following year, without the author's name, under the title of ‘Histoire des Colonies Françaises,’ Paris et Lyon, chez Thomas Amaury, the two volumes corresponding in the number of their pages with this edition. HARRISSE believes this to be an error, the Jesuits being unsuccessful, as he says, in their endeavour to have it suppressed. Another reason which has been given for its supposed rarity is that “although published by order of the French King, it was, in consequence of its containing passages inadvertently favouring the English pretensions, called in and suppressed.”

“The work contains many satirical reflections upon the labours of Le Clercq's brethren of the Jesuit Order, who were equally zealous in the task of Christianizing the Indians. As he lived in the most cordial relations with them, especially with Father Bigot, it is thought that these reflections must have arisen from political motives. The question has been fully discussed by Field in his Indian Bibliography. The work is a well written history of the Recollect missions and La Salle's voyages. From an historical point of view its fidelity to the documents upon which it professes to be founded has never been questioned.

“The work is particularly valuable as containing the first original account of the discoveries of La Salle, by Father Anastase Douay, who accompanied him. From it Hennepin drew the account of his pretended discovery of the River Mississippi.”

This copy contains three leaves of advertisements at the end needed to complete the last sheet.

In 1689 the Governor of French Hispaniola, De Cussy, set out from his headquarters at Petit Goave with a force of 1,000 men, largely buccaneers, against St. Jago de los Cavalleros, in the interior of Hispaniola, and took and burnt the town. "In revenge the Spaniards, supported by an English fleet—war having broken out between England and France—which has just driven the French from St. Kitts, appeared in January, 1691, before Cap François, defeated and killed de Cussy in an engagement near the town, and burned and sacked the settlement. Three hundred French filibusters were killed in the battle."

Eleven chapters of the work describe this Spanish victory over the French buccaneers and the events which led up to it. No mention, however, is made of the help given the Spanish fleet by the co-operation of the British Naval forces.

Chapter XII is of especial interest and importance, and is "devoted to an account of the expedition of La Salle, the occurrences at the bay of San Bernardo (Matagorda Bay, Texas), and the expedition of Alonso de Leon. It is the only contemporary account of the occurrences from the Spanish side that was printed, and on account of its very great rarity, remains practically unknown to-day to all historians who have treated of this episode."—(Wagner, Spanish South-West).

The twelfth and final chapter relates to the suppression of the pirates at "Laguna de Terminos" in the Bay of Campeachy, Gulf of Mexico, and also contains a few details regarding the Spanish settlement of New Mexico.

The dedication of the volume is addressed to the Condesa de Galve, wife of the Viceroy of Mexico, and in it the author states that the work was being written by his command. At the end of the volume are various poems in praise of the Viceroy for the success of his expedition.

A most entertaining work. The author adopted the Buccaneering profession in order to obtain money to pay his creditors and to return to his fashionable life in Paris. According to his own account, he was a man of the highest principles and very devout, never allowing his crew to molest priests, nuns, or churches. After taking a Spanish town, he would attend Mass in the Church or Cathedral with his pirates before commencing his loot. In his work he recounts a love affair with a wealthy Spanish widow in one of his captured towns, and his adventures and ultimate safe arrival back in Paris.

Voyage into The North-west Parts of America: describing a country larger than Europe, inhabited by 200 different Nations; situate between the Frozen-Sea and New Mexico. . . London, Printed for Edw. Castle . . . 1698."

Hennepin's work forms one of the most important volumes in the early history of the United States. He lived for eleven years in North America and penetrated further into the then Unknown Interior than anyone before him. "He was the undoubted discoverer and explorer of the Upper Mississippi or Meschasipi, and the first to lay open to the world that mighty region. That he should have made some mistakes is not to be wondered at, and that when he first saw the Falls of Niagara he should have overstated the 'wonderful downfall of above 600 feet,' is not very surprising; but his mistakes have not entitled him to receive the castigations which have been heaped upon him."

"In Le Clercq's Premier Etablissement de la Foy had appeared an account by Hennepin's colleague, Father Zenobe Membré, giving an account of La Salle's expedition to the mouth of the Mississippi, in which Membré took part. This account, owing to the rarity of Le Clercq's work, was little known at that time, and Hennepin in this work boldly appropriated it with such verbal changes as to make it appear to be a narrative from his own journal of 1680, thus setting up a claim to having been the first discoverer of the mouth of the Mississippi."

Among the other numerous interesting subjects written about by Hennepin in this work may be mentioned: Account of the building of a new Fort on the Illinois named by the savages Checagou (Chicago), and by us Fort Crevecoeur; Description of Fort Catarockouy or Frontenac; Descriptions of the Great Lakes and Niagara; An Embassy sent to the Issati by the Savages that inhabit to the West of them, whence it appears that there is no such thing as the Spreights of Anian, and that Japan is on the same continent as Louisiana; Accounts of the manners and customs of the Indians; La Salle's travels and death; History of the irruption of the English into Canada in 1628, and the capture of Quebec in 1629.

It is interesting to note that Hennepin's work contains the first Picture of the Niagara Falls.

Owing to the enormous distances in Portuguese America, the Faithful found it very difficult to attend their parish churches.

The above catechism was compiled by a priest who, moved by the utter ignorance of those Christians living in Portuguese America, especially with regard to the religious instruction of their children and their slaves, compiled the above catechism, as an easy means for parents and masters to impart religious teaching to them.

Small 8vo, half calf, g.e. Glasgow, 1700.

Sabin, 78215.

This is one of the works relating to the ill-fated Scotch Darien Scheme, which was the project of Wm. Paterson (the founder of the Bank of England) for a Scotch Company with Headquarters on the Isthmus of Panama, as a counterpart to the British East India Co. William III opposed the idea, and the Spaniards and British Colonies in North America did all they could to ruin it; all this, combined with the unhealthy climate caused the colony to be an utter failure. Scotland was an exceedingly poor country at the time, and the loss of the £100,000 invested in the scheme caused great suffering there and much bitterness against England for her refusal to support the colony. England, however, was friendly to Spain at the time, and it was entirely against her policy to cause ill-feeling by encouraging a colony established on what was generally considered as Spanish territory. The author, supposed to be George Ridpath, writes defending the Scotch Colony.

1700 A.D. [5203] [HODGES (James).] A Defence of the Scots abdicating Darien: including an Answer to the Defence of the Scots Settlement there. Authore Britanno sed Dunensi.

Small 8vo, original calf, rebacked. (Edinburgh), Printed in the Year, 1700.

Sabin, 78210.

The volume contains accounts of the life of Wm. Paterson, the founder of the Scheme; of how the Company was floated, and of its leading members; the expedition, and of the occurrences at Darien. The introduction is an appeal to Scotchmen not to waste their money in the Scheme. In one place the Author suggests that having once founded the Panama Colony, it was the Scots' intention to pass

“over that Isthmus to the Phillipin Islands, California, China, and to Japan, if they could turn Dutch Men.”

The whole work is written in an extraordinary satirical manner, and raised tremendous indignation in Scotland, so much so that the Treasury was required to offer a reward of £6,000 scots for the arrest of the author, and the book was condemned to be burnt by the public hangman. At the time a certain Walter Herries was supposed to be the author, but Halkett and Laing attribute it to James Hodges.

Not mentioned in any American bibliography. An extremely rare broadside poem, possibly unique, issued on the occasion of the execution of the famous "pirate," Captain Kidd.

"Whether Captain Kidd ever really deserved such a grewsome renown is more or less questionable. He was certainly no ruffian, but an educated mariner who for the greater part of his life was esteemed a model of integrity. He was probably the son of a Presbyterian minister at Greenock, in Scotland. In his marriage certificate, in 1691, he is styled 'gentleman.' At that time he had considerable wealth and lived in a pleasant home in Liberty Street (New York). In earlier days he seems to have been a navigator in various parts of the world.

No unimportant man has caused more fear, speculation, and gold-digging, than Captain William Kidd. Along the shores of New England and Long Island, from his day to this, men have dug in the dead of night, directed, as they thought, by the witch-hazel or the divining-rod, to find his buried gold, and none have found it. 'The Pirate Kidd' was long a bugbear to frighten children, and a name to arouse the cupidity of men. Privateering has been a respectable business, and the slave-trade was a respectable traffic; and both were engaged in by respectable merchants of New York, Bristol, and Newport, and by merchants in England at the close of the seventeenth century.

"When Lord Bellomont came to America to succeed Fletcher as Governor of the colony of New York, the neighbourhood of New York City was a sort of rendezvous for pirates, and he early began to take measures to suppress their ravages. Colonel Robert Livingston formulated a plan of employing Captain Kidd, who then had a good reputation and a knowledge of the sea. A ship was accordingly fitted out, Livingston and Kidd bearing one fifth of the expense, and Kidd was sent out in 1697 to capture pirates. Instead he turned pirate himself, and while he was never convicted of this charge, he was hanged at Execution Dock for the murder of one of his sailors. Some eminent noblemen, among whom was Lord Bellomont himself, had furnished funds for his fitting out, and they were accused of complicity in his piratical scheme.

"The author of this tract was a 'person of quality,' and 'was privy to all the

Capt. William Kidd,

Who was Executed at Execution-Dock, on Friday the 23d of this Instant May, 1701.
22. May. 1701.

W H E N any Great and Famous Man does Die,
The World expects to have an ELEGY
Produc'd, to his Immortal Memory:
The End of which, we know, is to declare
What those Great Deeds and Noble Actions were Which did compleat his Noble Character.

Well then
K I D D was a Man of such undaunted Spirit,
He'd face Hell-Gates, and all the Devils in it,
Were 't possible, to STEAL: A Golden Prize
Did so bewitch his Heart, and charm his Eyes!
When on the Seas proud Waves he boldly rid,
All strove to fly the Great and Mighty K I D D:
So terrible was he, where e'er he came
To ROB; or PLUNDER, that his very Name
Wou'd cause a Trembling Fear and Dread in those Who were his Friends, as well as in his Foes;
Betwixt which Two, he'd no Distinction make,
But ALL THEY HAD at once he'd freely take:
First, Seize their Lading; next, their Ships destroy. —
In short, No PIRATE cou'd the Seas annoy
More than he strove to do; while in his Pow'r;
For All that came in's Way he did devour.
These Actions rais'd his Fame, and made him Great;
Still climbing high'r, he fell by his own Weight:
GOOD FORTUNE left him, and his POW'R fail'd him,
The DEVIL (ready for him) Goal'd and Hang'd him,
To no one's Sorrow, rather Joy display;
Who weeps to see a Conquer'd BEAST OF PREY?
Thus is he carry'd off this World's wide Stage;
And where it is that he must next engage,
I cannot tell, but leave ye all to guess:
That these are my Thoughts, truly, I confess.
As th' DEVIL is Mankind's Great Enemy,
And K I D D his Humble Servant chose to be Here, while on Earth, his Spirit may be sent To plague with Storms the Watry Element,
And that may Rob, since 'tis a Faculty
That may stick by him to Eternity.
But be it as it will, since hence he's gone,
This EPITAPH 'I'll write on his Grave-stone.

E P I T A P H.

R E A D E R, Near this Tomb don't stand,
Without some Effence in thy Hand?
For here K I D D's stinking Corps does lie,
The Scent of which may thee infect:
He Base did Live, and Base did Die,
Therefore his Tomb and Corps reject.
Pity but he in WHITNEY's Grave did lie,
That all might Piss on him, as they pass'd by?
One rais'd his Fame, by Robbing on the SHORE,
The Other on the SEA. — Both now no more.

Steps taken by the Earl of Bellomont from his first hearing the name of Kidd, till he left England: and in saying so I do in effect affirm, that I was acquainted with every thing that pass'd in that affair.'

"Whatever may have been Kidd's crime, it is clear that he did not have a fair trial, and was found guilty on insufficient evidence." Documents have recently been discovered which should have been produced at the trial, and which would have acquitted him. They were kept back by other persons implicated in the matter.

Sabin, No. 41072.

Colonel Lillingston was Lieutenant-Colonel of Colonel Ffoulkes's regiment of foot in the Martinique expedition in February to October, 1693. His brother, Jarvis Lillingston, an officer of Gustavus Hamilton's (20th) foot, was made Major in Ffoulkes's, and died on the expedition. Colonel Ffoulkes also died on the expedition, and Luke Lillingston obtained the colonelcy. The expedition miscarried, and Lillingston's regiment was put on board the homeward-bound men-of-war at Newfoundland and Boston to supply the place of seamen. The regiment, 670 strong, was broken at Plymouth by order of Lord Cutts, and reformed with six hundred men of the regiment and six hundred of Colt, Norcott, and Farrington (29th foot), in December, 1694, and embarked as a reinforcement for Jamaica in January, 1695. That island, still suffering from the effects of the Port Royal earthquake of 1602, had been harried by buccaneering attacks from the French settlement in Hispaniola (St. Domingo). A naval squadron, under Captain Robert Wilmot, with Lillingston's troops on board, acting in concert with the Spaniards, took and destroyed the French port of Porto Paix, Hispaniola. Thereupon the English troops withdrew to Jamaica, and Governor William Beeston reported that Lillingston's regiment was so weak and sickly that he had to send them into the country for change of air. Lillingston went home to recruit, and made various claims on the Government. His regiment disappeared from the rolls on the peace of Ryswick, and he published this reply to Burchett's account of the Porto Paix affair, to which Burchett issued a rejoinder.

Original calf, rebacked. London, 1705.

£5 5s

This work relates to “one of the most painful and disgraceful episodes in the history of the British Navy.” In August 1702 the British and French fleets met off the coast of Venezuela near Santa Marta. Several of the English vessels refrained from taking part in the engagement, leaving Benbow to take the brunt with the Breda and Falmouth. Kirkby in the Defiance practically fled from the engagement. Benlow was fatally wounded and had to desist from pursuing the enemy. Three of the English commanders, Kirkby, Wade, and Constable were tried at Jamaica by court-martial for cowardice, disobedience to orders, and neglect of duty. The two former were sentenced to death.

20 pp., folio, new boards. (Madrid, about 1706).

Not in Tavera, Medina, etc.

Curious Memorial to the King of Spain by the Franciscan Procurator General of the Philippines in favour of the Franciscan Convent of Santa Clara in Manila objecting to the opening of a Dominican convent which was proposed, and stating that there was no demand for one, owing to the small number of Spanish women on the island. He goes into very interesting details about marriages of the Spaniards there, etc.

Father Agustin de Madrid, a Franciscan, arrived in 1696 at the Philippines, and became vicar of the nuns, President of the San Francisco del Monte, and Provincial Procurator, and was entrusted with the representation of the canonisation of Sister Geronima de la Asuncion, the foundress of the convent of Santa Clara of Manila. He died in Madrid in 1736.

Medina, "La Imprenta en Lima," No. 724.

Although purporting to have been printed in Lima, the author's name, and that of the printer, are unknown in the history of that City. The "Memorial offered by the Illustrious and Generous Spanish Nation by Don Alonso Fernando Gutierrez, Cavalier of the ancient order of Santiago" is an extraordinary appeal to Spaniards under the headings of Convenience, Honour, and Conscience, concerning the trade of England, France, Holland, etc., with America, and other matters. It is supposed to be printed in Lima, but the author's and printer's names are probably fictitious ones.

Sabin 2960. Andrew Battel was a native of Leigh-on-Sea, Essex, and was born about 1565. On April 20, 1589, he sailed with Capt. Abraham Cocke, from Limehouse, for the Rio de la Plata. The weather was bad and they were forced to return along the Brazilian Coast. Landing at St. Sebastian the crew became separated, Battel was captured by the Indians, sent to the Rio Janeiro and handed over to the Portuguese. After four months' imprisonment he was sent across to Africa, and after numerous adventures arrived back in England, having been absent for eighteen years.

on the union of England and Scotland: also as to the danger of Papists, and commenting on their intercourse with the Pretender; further on other matters.

“ . . . Give me leave to informe your Lordship that by the unhappy loss of the Chester and Ruby, it was the fourteenth of June last before I had any Command to proclayme her Majesty Queen of Great Britain. . . . Which I put in execution as soone as received by issuing a proclamation to the severall Countys to that end. And at this place (Annapolis) being the seate of Government, on the 18th of July, having ordered severall Troops of the Militia to Review, and invited the best of Her Majesty’s Subjects here to the handsomest Entertainment the Country would admit me to make them, wee proclaimed her Sacred Maty. Queen of Great Britain, the Act of Union being read on the Court House Hill. After which Her Maty. and many other good loyall healths were drunk, and the guns discharged to ye great joy and pleasure of her Majesty’s subjects. . . .

“ Observing the Roman Catholiques in this Province were very attentive to the late design’d invasion by the pretended Prince of Wales, I thought it might not be amiss to enquire the number of them in the severall Countys, which I might compute their ability in case any misfortune should befall us: which God forbid! and have enclosed the said List, for I am satisfied those people have an illegal correspondence somewhere, they having reported the raising of the seige of Toulon some months, and the invasion by the Pretender several weeks before wee could have any intimation thereof.” Etc., etc.

SWISS COLONY FOR AMERICA.

1710 A.D. [5255] STANYAN (Abraham, 1669-1732). British Envoy to Swiss Cantons. A Friend of Pope.

Autograph Letter Signed, addressed to Lord Townshend, the famous Statesman.

4 pp., folio. Berne, 5th April, 1710.

£15 15S

A long letter of American importance, concerning a proposed settlement in Queen Anne's Dominions in America by the Anabaptists of Bern.

"I trouble your Excy. to-day at the request of this Canton, who just now sent a Deputation to me to let me know they are informed by Mr. de St. Saphorin that the Anabaptists of this Country whom they are sending to America in order to settle a Bern Colony in the Queen's Dominions there, are so powerfully protected by the people of the same sect in Holland that he fears ye States will give them their protection and allow them to stay in their Provinces instead of going to America, unless your Lordp. be pleased to represent to the States General that they are going to one of Her Majesty's Colonies by virtue of an agreement made between Her Majesty and this Canton, the Queen having given them a large tract of land for that purpose and therefore desire that these people their subjects may pass through their Country without being allowed to stay or settle there. These Anabaptists are sent from hence to this Colony against their will, and will endeavour to settle or rather stop in Holland that they may return hither again in a short time; this State has a mind to be rid of them and would be glad to hear they were on the other side of the water; but fear if they desire to stay in Holland the States will receive them, and can find no better expedient for prevailing with ye States to refuse them their protection than by engaging your Lordp. to inform the States that they are going to America to one of the Queen's Colonies by virtue of an agreement with Her Majesty and this Canton." Etc.

1711 A.D. [5256] SETTLE (Elkanah). A Pindaric Poem, on the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts: A Work of Piety so Zealously Recommended and Promoted by Her Most Gracious Majesty.

FIRST EDITION. Small folio, contemporary morocco, the sides elaborately tooled in gold, and with large Armorial Bearings in centre of both covers.

London, Printed for the Author, 1711.

This Poem was written upon the inauguration of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in America. In the Preface, which is in prose, the Author writes:—

“ For now have we seen so many Royal Supplicants, the late Indian Princes, brought over in their naked Simplicity and uncultivated Innocence, as so many kneeling Petitioners before the Throne of BRITAIN for the Plantation of the Gospel TREE OF LIFE, the Knowledge of a GOD amongst them.

“ And here, as the eye of Providence seems more particularly to direct the Blessing of this Gospel Propagation amongst so many Thousands of unenlighten'd Souls in that ye almost unknown. Part of the World, give me leave to display the Triumph of so auspicious and so divine a Commission; So happy these Honour'd AMERICANS from the reception of such generous European Visitants amongst them, beyond their once more hard-fated Indian Neighbours when first visited by the barbarous Spaniard.” Etc.

Manuscript Diary (in Spanish) of the voyage of Prince de Santo Buono, Viceroy of Peru, to Cartagena (America).

The early part of the manuscript describes the departure from Cadiz on 13th Nov., 1715, of the Squadron under the command of the Conde de Vega Florida, the Prince and his family travelling in the Capitana, a Genoese ship of 660 tons, called the Santa Rosa. The daily records of the voyage are given with much precision, the social news including the announcement of the birth of a son to the Viceroy, "who was baptised by the Bishop of Santa Marta, the Bishop of Panama being the godfather." The subsequent death of the Vicereine is described, with a grim pen picture of the funeral rites on board; and of the difficulties experienced at the mercy of contrary winds; the squadron arriving at Cartagena on 10th January, 1716.

An interesting description is given of Cartagena, its fortifications at Boca chica; the garrison; the neighbouring districts; the political and ecclesiastical government; and the various public buildings. Detailed information is also given of the animals seen there—"lizards with mighty hard skins, small lions and tigers in the interior mountain districts"—trees, abundant sugar canes, maize, and many other horticultural products, unknown in Europe. There was also a quantity of gold, "some of which is twenty-two carats and some, only twelve . . . it abounds in the river bed near Antioquia not far from Darien, but all this is in the possession of the (?) Eonacunares Indians, who are heathen."

Sabin, 25926. This work forms one of the most valuable of our early records of the Falkland Islands, and to Frézier we are indebted for the clearest contemporary account of the Navigation of the French seamen there. Most of these navigators, including Frézier himself, were from St. Malo, and thus the islands became known as the Malouines. To Frézier we are also indebted for the statement that "these Islands are certainly the same which Sir Richard Hawkins discover'd in 1593," a statement often quoted later at the time of the English, French, and Spanish claims to the Falkland Islands.

This English edition is preferable to the original French edition of 1716, as it contains Dr. Edmund Halley's Postscript, correcting certain Geographical errors made by Frézier. Halley is of course most famous now as the discoverer of Halley's Comet. At the end is a 13 pp. account of the Joint Settlement in Paraguay. The work also contains an interesting account of guano, at page 147.

The map is important in the history of American Cartography, as it was designed by Joutel, and is the first map showing the results of the last two journeys of La Salle, and gives a very accurate delineation of the course of the Mississippi as far as its mouth.

La Salle set out in July, 1684, with four vessels, and a small party of soldiers, ostensibly to found a colony at the mouth of the Mississippi, but really to push on and secure a favourable base for operations against the Spanish. He landed his soldiers at Espiritu Santo Bay, Texas, and put up a fort, pretending, in order to mask his design, that Beaujeu, the commanding naval officer, had treacherously carried him beyond the Mississippi. Two years were spent here, while he wasted the time in aimless excursions by land, never getting beyond the present limits of Texas.

The promised reinforcements under Peñalosa never arrived, and in January, 1687, he set out with part of his remaining force to reach Canada by way of the Mississippi and so obtain relief. However, when near the Trinity river he was assassinated by some of his followers. Some of the survivors, among whom was Joutel, reached the Arkansas and returned to France by way of Canada.

Charlevoix, who knew Joutel, says that he was a very upright man, and the only one of La Salle's party on whom he could rely, and Parkman remarks, that "Of the three narratives of this journey, those of Joutel, Cavelier, and Douay, the first is by far the best."

The work contains much interesting information gathered during La Salle's two years' stay in Texas.

The writer emphasises the commercial value of Gibraltar on account of its geographical position and suggests that its possibilities should be worked up: "Besides the advantage this important place is, and may be, to Great Britain, we ought to consider how vastly prejudicial it would be in the hands of the Spaniards or any other trading nation. It would then undoubtedly be very expensive or very dangerous for us to carry on any part of our Mediterranean trade; since others, no doubt, would make a proper use of the happy situation of this place which we have thus long neglected; and would consider it, as it is, the key to that commerce."

He observes that Gibraltar "gives us an influence over all the States whose trade obliges their ships to pass that way"; and that, after capturing it in July 1704, "if instead of neglecting the place, a sufficient number of English citizens had been upon this station, how much would such management have promoted our interest; by not only protecting our own trade but by destroying that of the Spaniards and East France to the West Indies . . . which at that time was very considerable, consisting not only of such commodities as supply'd the Spanish fleets with their lading for the West Indies, but of great quantities of woollen manufacture for the consumption of Spain."

Sabin, 14477, and footnote to 49979. Rosenbach, American-Jewish Bibliography, Nos. 17, 19, 20, 21.

Bound in with Colman's Discourse are the three Discourses by Judah Monis, each of which are really separate works. They comprise:—

Monis (R. Judah). The Truth, being a Discourse which the Author delivered at his Baptism, containing Nine Principal Arguments the Modern Jewish Rabbins do make to prove, the Messiah is yet to Come . . . Prefac'd by the Reverend Increase Mather, D.D. Boston: Printed by S. Kneeland for D. Henchman, 1722.

Monis (R. Judah). The Whole Truth: being a Short Essay, wherein the Author discovers what may be the true Reason why the Jewish Nation are not as yet converted to Christianity, etc. Boston: Printed for Daniel Henchman, 1722.

Monis (R. Judah). Nothing but the Truth: being a Short Essay, wherein the Author proves the Doctrine of the Ever Blessed and Adorable Trinity, both out of the Old Testament, and with the Authority of the Cabalistical Rabbies, Ancient and Modern, etc. Boston, Daniel Henchman, 1722.

R. Judah Monis was rather an interesting character. He was a Jew supposed to have been born in Algiers about 1683, but receiving his education in Italy. About 1720 he emigrated to America, made a profession of Christianity two years later, and was appointed Hebrew instructor in Harvard University, which position he occupied for forty years. He was also the author of the first Hebrew grammar published in America.

THE MOST COMPLETE WORK ON MEXICO.

- 1723 A.D. [5295] TORQUEMADA (F. Juan de), Provincial of the Franciscan Order in the Province of Mexico.

Los veinte i un libros rituales i Monarchia Indiana, con el origen y guerras, de los Indios Occidentales, de sus Poblaciones, Descubrimiento, Conquista, Conversion, y otras cosas maravillosas de la mesma tierra.

With 3 finely engraved titles and folding map.

Madrid, N. Rodriguez Franco, 1723.

Medina, Vol. IV, No. 2491, devotes 6 pages to this work.

"This revised edition, edited by the famous Barcia, is more complete than and is preferable to the first, which was printed in 1613 at Madrid."

"This is the most complete work on Mexico. Half of the first volume is devoted to the history of Mexico before its discovery by the Spaniards, and the whole of the second volume is consecrated to the religion, laws, habits, and customs of the Mexicans."

Juan de Torquemada is called by Lucas Alaman the "Livy of New Spain." He studied in Mexico, where he joined the Franciscan Order. He was named Father Guardian of the Convent at Tlatelolco, and was elected Provincial of the Franciscans in Mexico in 1614. He only published his Monarquia Indiana after having collected all he could find on the history of Mexico, and the customs, habits, laws, etc., of its inhabitants. This is an indispensable work for all who wish to study the ancient history of Mexico and its peoples, and nearly all writers of monographs have borrowed largely from this source.

THE GREAT HISTORY OF BARCIA.

- 1723 A.D. [5296] BARCIA (D. A. Gonzalez). Ensayo chronologico, para la historia general de la Florida, contiene los descubrimientos, y principales sucessos, acaecidos en este gran reino, à los españoles, franceses, suecos, dinamarqueses, ingleses y otras naciones, entre si, y con los Indios, etc. Desde el año de 1512 (que descubrió la Florida, Juan Ponce de Leon), hasta el de 1722.

With the folding genealogical table of the Counts of Canalejas, the governors of Florida.

1724 A.D. [5298] RODRIGUEZ (Fray Francisco). Printed text of petition addressed to the King of Spain, requesting some assistance for the Cumana Missions in the ecclesiastical province of Peru.

4 pp. Folio. [Madrid, c. 1724.]

£6 6s

The writer was a Franciscan Missionary in the ecclesiastical province of Peru (which included part of Central America) and had worked in those missions for forty-five years.

He states that the mission consisted of five townships: San Buenaventura de Pamapotar, San Joachin, Santa Rosa de Viterbo, Santa Ana, and the Santissima Trinidad de la Margarita.

Altogether there were nineteen missionaries who administered these places, which were steadily developing, and were providing far too much work. He requests the King to grant a mission of sixteen priests, who might deal with the Caribbees; to continue his grant of money which was due to expire that year; to allow the expenses of the mission to be defrayed by the Royal Treasury; to facilitate the journeys of those Padres who were obliged to seek Indians in the mountains, and the more remote districts beyond the Orinoco river, and who had to contend with the very troublesome Caribbees. He also requests that instructions should be given to the civil authorities to pay the missionaries whatever was due to them, punctually instead of giving preference to secular accounts; and begs that the king should present the mission with churchbells, ornaments, etc., and grant an allowance of wheat to the natives who lived in the mountains and were difficult to convert.

By Capt. George Shelvocke, Commander of the Speedwell, Recovery, &c. in this expedition.

Vignette title, folding map, 2 engraved plates of the Californian Indians, and 2 other engraved plates.

FIRST EDITION. 8vo, original calf. London, printed for J. Senex, 1726.

Sabin, 80158.

"Two histories were published of this Voyage. This, by Capt. Shelvocke, was intended by him as a vindication of his conduct, having been accused of piracy and embezzlement. The other was written by one of his officers, Wm. Betagh, who was treated roughly in Shelvocke's narrative, and wrote his account with the design of exposing Shelvocke. Both narratives are written with plenty of spirit."

Capt. Shelvocke, privateer, and Capt. Clipperton, sailed in 1719 with an expedition for attacking Spanish shipping. After a few days Shelvocke gave his superior officer the slip in a storm and proceeded on his own account. He spent two months on the coast of Brazil, and proceeded to the Straits of Magellan, where occurred the incident of the Albatross which Wordsworth pointed out to Coleridge in Nov. 1797, and which the latter made use of in his Ancient Mariner. Two months were spent on the coast of Chile, where he sacked Payta and captured several small prizes, among them a vessel loaded with guano for cultivation purposes. Two visits were paid to Juan Fernandez, Robinson Crusoe's Island, on the second of which the boat was wrecked. A small vessel was built from the wreckage and Shelvocke sailed up the coast to California, where he noted that the soil was richly auriferous, and conjectured that very probably "this country abounds in metals of all sorts." He next sailed to China, where he sold his vessel and shared out his prize money. On arrival in England he was arrested on two charges of piracy, but was acquitted for want of legal evidence. However, he made a fortune over the expedition and his owners lost one. He was imprisoned by them, but managed to escape to the Continent.

"It is not a little curious, that in this disorderly, semi-piratical voyage mention should have been made of the gold of California, and the guano of Peru, a hundred and thirty years before their modern discovery."

John Ker, a Government spy, in the pay both of the Government and the Jacobites, was in 1713 sent on a private mission to the Emperor of Austria in connection with a scheme for employing bucaniers to harass the trade of France and Spain.

Volume II deals with "the easy access the French have to all our Colonies, on the Continent in America, from Canada to Louisiana, by Land and Water, and that without the aid of our neighbourly Indians it will not be in our power to prevent their Irruptions."

Great importance seems to be attached to the possibility of the French settling in Louisiana, when they would be in a position to ruin the trade with Jamaica, and become the masters of the Gulf of Mexico.

This valuable original manuscript is of exceptional interest from many points of view: it was owned by two eminent princes of the Catholic Church; entirely written in the autograph of a distinguished Italian prelate and poet; and contains the substance of secret manuscripts in the archives of the Holy See, to which the author had access on account of his official position as secretary to the Congregation of the Propaganda Fide.

Nicolas Forteguerrri was the nephew and namesake of Cardinal Forteguerrri, and was known as "the younger," to distinguish him from his uncle. He was a talented poet; enjoyed considerable distinction at the papal court as a savant; and was Papal Legate in Spain in succession to Zondadari. For a time he was a chamberlain to Pope Clement XI, who ordered him to obtain all the available information concerning the apostolic missions in Africa, Asia and America, from the vatican archives.

The result of his labours was this thick volume which was not finished, however, until after Clement XI's death, and which Forteguerra eventually dedicated to the reigning Pope Benedict XIII. It was Forteguerra's great wish to become a cardinal; but it is said that the publication of a piquant poetical romance of his, entitled Ricciardetto, which was intended to follow the lines of Orlando Furioso, was a material obstacle to his advancement in the Church. He published various other literary works.

The section in this manuscript relating to America contains much of the confidential information that had been received relating to the various missions in California, "the greatest island in the world." It will be seen, therefore, that in spite of Father Kino's activities as a cosmographer, there was still a certain amount of geographical ignorance at the Vatican. There are descriptions of Florida, New Mexico, Louisiana, the West Indies, the Philippines, Canada, and South America; with accounts of the people, their customs and their various religious creeds. Similar descriptions are given of the Asiatic and African missions, whence reports were received by the Congregation of Propaganda Fide.

2 pp., folio. (Madrid, c. 1728).

This is the text of an interesting letter, dated from San Joachin, 28th June, 1728, and addressed to the Padre Comisario Frey Diego de Tapia, reporting the progress of the mission in the vicinity of the River Orinoco.

The writer relates how disgusted and grieved he felt at the behaviour of the Caribbees, who had been indulging in revolting cannibal practises: "I could not bear the smell of the human flesh which they were roasting . . . I could not convince them (of their sin) with the word of God; and what heightened my regret was that these inhuman and unjust practises should take place in our king's dominions." He adds that if the king knew of these occurrences, he would devise a means of ending these inhumanities and drawing the barbarians into the pale of the Church; and suggests that a community of Spaniards, Mulattoes, Negroes and half-castes should be established on that part of the Orinoco, in order to keep the Caribbees in subjection and facilitate their conversion.

Medina devotes 6½ pp. to this publication, in his Biblioteca Hispano-Chilena. No. 727. It refers to the vote of expulsion from Chile which had been passed upon Monsignor Fr. Diègo de Salinas y Cabrera, the Augustinian Provincial, by seven Padres whom he had not absolved from certain censures which he had declared they had incurred.

The declaration of expulsion had been made at a clerical conference on the 31st Jan., 1728, at midnight, and by five the next morning, the Provincial was imprisoned in his convent cell in the custody of an alcalde and twelve soldiers. He was made to walk a distance of thirty leagues from the Convent of Santiago to Valparaiso, whence he proceeded to Spain.

The greater part of this publication consists of a discussion of the legal aspect of this action in view of certain specific Augustinian laws and papal bulls applicable to the case.

of 22 he left the University of Coimbra, where he took his degree, to return to Bahia, where he got married. He made up his mind to write a history of Brazil, and he spent years in collecting documents in the Monasteries of Brazil and Portugal, where he went in order to study French, Dutch and Italian for the purposes of his history. In 1728, after 40 years of study, he began to print his history, which appeared in 1730. It was universally well received, and King John V appointed him a member of the household in consequence, yet in a few years the Portuguese government publicly prohibited its being read under the severest penalties.

PASTORS OF BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND.

1730 A.D. [5326] COLMAN (Benjamin, 1673-1747). A famous New England pastor; wrote poems, etc.

Collection of six original documents, three of which are entirely in his autograph and signed by him. The documents also bear the signatures of other well-known pastors of Boston, including John Webb, Peter Thacker, William Cooper, and Joshua Gee. In addition to these signatures, those of Thos. Hutchinson, Edward Hutchinson, and John Ruck, also appear.

In all some 10 pp., folio and 4to. Boston in New England, 1730.

£5 5s

The documents relate to enquiries made in Boston, New England, respecting two of the inhabitants thereof who were entitled to money under the will of Lady Keates. The Rev. Benjamin Colman appears to have had the conduct of the enquiries, and one of the documents in his autograph is his report of the questions put to him to the legates and their replies.

The petitioner, as Franciscan Procurator for the Province of Santa Elena of Florida, states that Fray Geronimo de Valdes, Bishop of Santiago de Cuba, had bequeathed an estate in Havana to the province of Santa Elena de Florida, subject to its first refusal by the Convent of Santa Domingo. The Convent had declined the legacy, but the Governor of Havana had decreed, in 1729, that the King should decide upon the validity of the petitioner's claim on behalf of his province. He requests the king to declare in favour of the Florida province.

Dean Berkeley speaks of his favourite province of Rhode Island and remarks that the numerous sectaries there seem to have worn off part of their prejudices against the Church of England, but, at the same time, the bulk of the inhabitants have worn off a serious sense of all religion, and as for their morals, he apprehends that there is nothing to be found in them to tempt others to make an experiment of their Principles, either in Religion or Government. He states that the native Indians in the colony only numbered about a thousand owing to the havoc wrought by strong drink among them. He also speaks of the negroes and makes various allusions to slavery, and suggests that the conversion of these people can only be accomplished by converting the planters themselves. In the "Proceedings of the Society" at the end particulars are given from missionaries in South Carolina, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, New England, etc., concerning Missionary work in those districts.

1732 A.D. [5342] A True State of the Case between the British Northern-Colonies and the Sugar Islands in America, impartially considered. With respect to the bill now depending in the Right Honourable the House of Lords, relating to the Sugar Trade.

4to, half morocco. (London), 1732.

£2 15s

The author endeavours to trace the reason why foreign West-Indian sugar could be sold in Europe much cheaper than the British West-Indian sugar, thereby threatening the loss of the sugar trade. The reasons he gives are the extravagance of the planters, and that whereas in the old days Barbadoes used to buy up all the other sugars and re-export them at a reasonable price, they had since more than doubled the price and had forbidden the importation of the other sugars, which the Dutch and French in consequence exported to Europe themselves. Also discusses the French timber trade with the Mississippi and Cape Breton, etc.

A scarce and important work on the Navigation of the Pacific Ocean, and the Pacific Coast of what is now United States Territory (California), etc. Blank corner of some leaves renewed.

"The fifth part, beginning on page 292, contains the different routes in the Pacific, description of ports, etc., the route from Manila to Acapulco being described first. From this it appears that the course followed was generally speaking, north east to latitude 36° or 37° and longitude 40° (that is, 140 East) and then east to somewhere near Cape Mendocino, but turning south-east before reaching the coast. If land was not seen at 35°, by continuing in a south-east direction the first land seen would either be Cenizas or Cerros. If land was sighted at 35° or 35½°, they could run along in an easterly direction between the mainland and the islands, of which he states that there were seven large and three small ones. The coast at this point would be found full of trees, where spars could be obtained if necessary."

"On pp. 302-313 there is a description of the coast from Cape Mendocino south. He places this cape in 41½°, Punta de los Reyes in 38½°, and gives a little description of the bay of San Francisco at this point. From his description it appears

De Soto landed on the west coast of Florida, at Espiritu Santo Bay, in May, 1539, with 600 Spaniards, and wandered about the country for nearly four years. Much of his route is very difficult to identify, but he seems to have passed north through Florida and Georgia to the neighbourhood of Mobile, and then N.W. towards the Mississippi, which was reached early in 1541. The following winter was spent on the Washita.

On the return De Soto died, and his body was sunk in the Mississippi. His little army, under Moscoso, floated down the river on some roughly made boats, reaching the sea in 19 days, and so escaped to Mexico.

This interesting work contains a series of twelve accounts of famous sixteenth century shipwrecks, being reprints of the old original editions, with separate title to each account, but with continuous pagination. These accounts comprise:—

Shipwreck of the Great Galleon, "St. João," off the coast of Natal in 1552. This shipwreck is one of the most celebrated in Portuguese History, and was commemorated by Camoens in one of his poems. It gives an account of the deaths of Manoel de Sousa Sepulveda, his wife, child, and companions, among the Kaffirs in South Africa.

Shipwreck of the "S. Bento" at the Cape of Good Hope in 1554.

Shipwreck of the "Conceição" in 1555 on the "Pero dos Banhos" sandbanks off the Indian Coast.

Account of the events which occurred to the vessels "Águia" and "Garça," in 1559. The second part of this account contains a long description of the City of Colombo, by Father Manoel Barradas.

Shipwreck of the "Santa Maria da Barca" in 1559 on its return from India.

Shipwreck of the "S. Paulo" off the Island of Sumatra in 1561.

Shipwreck of Jorge de Albuquerque Coelho on his journey from Brazil to Portugal in 1565. Written by Bento Teixeira Pinto, who was in the same wreck.

Shipwreck of the "Santiago" in 1585, and the journey of the survivors. Written by Manoel Godinho Cardozo.

Shipwreck of the "S. Thomè" off South Africa in 1589, and of the great sufferings of Don Paulo de Lima in Caffraria until his death. Written by Diogo de Couto.

1735-6 A.D. [5358] Ditto, another set. Together with accounts of six other famous shipwrecks, reprinted, from the original editions, each with separate titles and pagination, and in different types bound in one volume.

Together 3 vols., 4to, calf. Lisbon, 1735-6, etc.

£31 10S

The six extra accounts were probably issued as separate reprints at different times by Gomes de Brito. As they all bear the imprints of the original editions, and the old dates of publication, they are apt to be mistaken for them. They comprise:—

1. Memoravel Relaçam da Perda da Nao Conceiçam. Lisbon, Antonio Alvares, 1627.

2. Tratado do sucesso que teve a Nao S. Joam Baptista, e jornada que fez a gente que della escapou, desde trinta & tres graos no Cabo de Boa Esperança, etc. Auzente ao Padre Manoel Gomes da Sylveira. Lisbon, Craesbeeck, 1625.

3. Relaçam da Viagem, e Sucesso que teve a Nao Capitania nossa Senhora do Bom Despacho. Escrita pelo Padre Fr. Nuna da Conceiçam. Lisbon, Craesbeeck, 1631.

6 pp., folio. [Madrid, circa 1739].

As Commissary-General for the ecclesiastical provinces of the West Indies and Central America, the writer pleads for more than the ten religiosos who had been appointed by the Royal Decree dated 17th Feb., 1737, to assist in the new Piritu, Palenque and Cumana missions.

He gives an interesting résumé of the achievements of the mission since its foundation in 1656; there were now fifteen flourishing townships, with churches, houses and roads; the people had some idea of citizenship as well as a grounding in religious instruction and general education. Altogether, ninety-nine priests had worked in that mission for the period of eighty years, of whom two had been martyred: the Ven. Fray Sebastian Delgado and the Ven. Fray Juan Villegas.

The Commissary-General points out that there were only fourteen religiosos working in the missions at that time and their arduous labours had seriously impaired their health. It was therefore imperative that many more than the ten newly-appointed missionaries should be sent out, in order to develop the districts along the banks of the Orinoco to the Marañon and Amazon, "a vast distance, all inhabited by infidels." There were about seventeen thousand natives to deal with; and, although the Franciscans had bravely carried on in the newly converted villages, they were now faced with the alternative of abandoning the missions or begging for the appointment of thirty assistants and financial help from the king.

Sabin, 35712.

"Captain James was a native of Bristol, and undertook this voyage with the sanction of Charles I, at the solicitation and expense of the merchants of that city. It contains some remarkable physical observations respecting the intensity of the cold, and the accumulation of the ice in northern latitudes; the relations interspersed throughout, with the descriptions of the various parts of North America he visited are very interesting. The gallant explorer has been censured for lack of geographical information contained in his book, but the map is assuredly free from any such blame, for it contains a singularly correct delineation of the high latitudes in which Hudson, Baffin, James, and Fox pursued their search for the N.W. Passage."

The voyage was made in 1631-2, and was, of course in many respects a failure, and nearly put an end to N.W. Explorations, but it has left its mark in our Atlas of North America. Capt. James was forced by exceptionally bad weather into Hudson's Bay, and wintered right in the South in James Bay, which has been named after him. This Bay he explored, and has given a small inset plan of it in the large map. Part of the W. coast of Hudson's Bay he named New South Wales, and the small Island in the South of James Bay, where he wintered, he named Charlton Island.

sixteen. He began his career as a private soldier, but afterwards commanded various forts in the interior, and journeyed to the Western extremity of the Lakes. In 1688 he set out with several soldiers and five Indians from Michillimackinac, reached the Mississippi via Wisconsin, and on Nov. 7th came across a river, which he named the "Rivière Longue," which from its size must have been the Minnesota. He tells that he went up this river, coming across various tribes of Indians, among whom were the Essenapes, and the Gnacsitaires, names entirely unknown to other travellers. There has been much controversy as to the truth of La Hontan's statements concerning this part of his journey, some authors, among them being Charlevoix, considering them as fiction.

In March, 1741, Admiral Vernon, with a large fleet, and an army of 9,000 men under the command of Brigadier-General Wentworth, arrived off Carthagena. The divided command, the incompetence and self-conceit of Wentworth, and the natural antipathy between the two characters caused delays which proved fatal. The forts guarding the entrance to the harbour were reduced, and the fleet cut the boom blocking the Boca-Chica, and passed into the harbour. Wentworth delayed his attack on the forts dominating the City for four days, so giving the Spaniards time to recover. When he did assault, his attack was beaten off with heavy loss. The wet season set in, and of the force of 6,000 who had landed more than half were dead or dying. On April 17, the miserable remnant re-embarked, and the fleet returned to Port Royal.

This Diario is the official Spanish Account of this unsuccessful attack on Carthagena, drawn up from the accounts sent to the King of Spain by the Viceroy of Santa Fè and his Adjutant-General.

An interesting broadsheet commemorative of Admiral Vernon's unsuccessful siege of Cartagena in 1741. A brief account of the siege is given at the foot of the woodcut plan, headed "Relation of the siege of Cartagena by the English." Vernon was successful in breaking through into the harbour, but the incompetence of Brig.-Gen. Wentworth who was in charge of the large military force caused delays, and the wet season having set in, more than half of the men died, and the siege was abandoned. Manuscript book (in Spanish), containing an Inventory of the contents on board the warship "Nuestra Señora del Choro," and the record of the consumption of supplies and munitions, etc., during the voyage to Guayra.

Folio, old vellum. 1741-3 (Caracas).

£7 10S

An interesting record of the fifth voyage of the Señora del Choro, begun in 1741, giving full details of the cargo, from guns and munitions to the spices and herbs of the medicine chests. It is the type of book which very rarely finds its way into private ownership. Yet, technically and historically, it is of considerable interest, the inventory describing in detail the different parts of the ship, armaments and other equipment. In the records of the assistance rendered to other ships of the Spanish fleet, references to their encounters with the English off the coast of Venezuela are frequently made. The Señora del Choro's records account for the damaged parts which had to be repaired; as, for instance, in May, 1743, "one gun, damaged in lowering the anchors, to remove the cables laid by the English in front of the citadel of Puerto Cabello," and again, "4½ braces," for the purpose of suspending the warship Isabel which had been sunk at Puerto Cabello to prevent the enemy entering."

in Mexico, being of the opinion that the Governor's report was not derogatory to the Jesuits, had refused. As the passages quoted from the Governor's report, however, are very disparaging to the Missionaries, the manuscript was evidently the work of a Jesuit, or someone who had the Jesuits' interests at heart, and who was anxious to prove that the company of Jesus had a real grievance against the Governor of Sinaloa. For the most part, the contentions arose on a question of administration; the civil and ecclesiastical rulers of the Spanish King's vassals being unable to co-operate for the common good.

The first point dealt with in this manuscript is the allegation that the Yaqui and Mayo Indians had retreated, on account of the bad treatment they had received at the hands of the Jesuits, and that this had caused the sullen hostility of the natives. Secondly, the Missionaries had aggressively usurped the civil authorities' powers and prerogatives. Furthermore, "the whole Island of California is in the hands of the decrepit old Rodrigues and his son, because they allow themselves to be ruled by the missionaries," and Huidobro himself had been deprived of his governorship through the machinations of the Jesuits. Briefly, "it is the Jesuits and their coyote families who are the principal cause of the rising."

Although the story of this dispute is given principally in précis, there are many lengthy quotations from original documents, which add greatly to the value of this manuscript. One of them is a Royal Decree dated 24th June, 1742, in which reference is made to the fact that Huidobro had appealed to the King, and informed him officially of the native rising in March, 1740, and of his difficulty in holding back the rebels with only thirty men, until help came from Nueva Vizcaya, and the rising was quelled on 15th October, 1740; "and that, in spite of this, the religiosos of the Society of Jesus, prompted solely by the fact that since he (Huidobro) had taken up the Governorship, he had opposed their arrogating to themselves superior judicial powers, they had made false accusations against him to the Viceroy, the Duque de la Conquista, who was influenced by the malicious information he had received, and had ordered the Governor to hand over the Governorship of those provinces, to Don Augustin de Vildozota." Instead of the Governor ill-treating the natives, as had been asserted, "it was the Jesuits who wished to acquire absolute power, so that they might, without restraint, make the Indians work like slaves in the cultivation of the land and in other work which would be of benefit to the Jesuits themselves, and not to the Missions which they administer."

IT IS ONLY BY THE RECOVERY OF DOCUMENTS LIKE THESE THAT THE TRUE HISTORY OF CALIFORNIA AND THE ADJACENT PROVINCES CAN BE GRADUALLY UNFOLDED.

La Condamine (1701-1774) was a member of the great French scientific expedition to South America for measuring an arc of the meridian at the Equator. The three principal members of the expedition decided to return from Peru by different routes, so as to increase their opportunities for making observations. La Condamine chose to return by way of the Amazon, and thus made the first scientific exploration of that river, the account of which is given in the first of these works. The second work relates to an unfortunate incident which occurred during the expedition, the King's surgeon, Seniergues being killed in a riot during the bull fighting at Cuença.

Small 4to, wrappers. Lisbon, Officina Sylviana, 1745.

£1 10s

The text of this letter which the publisher, Custodio Barata, offers to the Hamburg Consul in Lisbon, is composed by one Alexandre Caetano Gomes, who writes from Lisbon on 15th August, 1745, to a friend in Brazil, and discourses at some length upon the complicated political situation in Europe. Amongst other things, he expresses the opinion that the Grand Duke of Tuscany will be elected "Emperor of the Romans"; and traces the connection between the sovereign state of Austrasia or Lorraine and the Roman Empire of the East and West, through the reign of Charlemagne and his descendents, to the time of the contemporary claimant.

Original Edition. 8vo, old calf.

Williamsburg (Virginia), printed by William Parks, 1747.

£16 16s

“This work brings the history of Virginia down to 1624. The early charters contained in the Appendix give this work its chief value at the present day. The author had the use of the Collingwood transcript of the records of the Virginia Company. Notwithstanding his diffuseness and lack of literary style, his book has become a high authority to later writers.”

The Appendix has separate title and pagination and is entitled “Appendix to the First Part of the History of Virginia: containing a Collection of such ancient Charters of Letters Patent, as relate to that Period of Time, and are still extant in our publick Offices in the Capitol, or in the authentic Papers and Records. Williamsburg, 1747.”

Sabin 34488.

La Condamine (1701-1774) was a member, with Godin and Bouguer, of the great French Scientific Expedition to South America, for measuring an arc of the meridian at the Equator for more accurately determining the dimensions and figure of the earth. In order to increase their opportunities for making observations the members of the expedition decided to return from Peru by different routes, and La Condamine chose to return by way of the river Amazon, which he did, so making the first scientific exploration of that river, the account of which journey is contained in this work.

A former owner has written inside the front cover "This Abridgement of Condamine's Voyage is so very scarce, that notwithstanding my application to Withers ye publisher, and many more booksellers in London, and examining most of ye catalogues that came out, it was 5 years before I could procure it, and at last by meer Accident. Jo. Brereton, Feb. 12, 1765."

to support in 1748 eight hundred families of destitute Jews from Asia, Africa and America. He suggests that the finances of the congregation will break down under the load, and suggests a remedy, viz., sending the destitute families to the Dutch Colonies in general and to Surinam, Curaçao, Jamaica and Barbadoes in particular, where they would be able to earn their living, if they were assisted to go to the plantations with the same money which was now used to feed and lodge them.

1748 A.D. [5430] ELLIS (Henry). A Voyage to Hudson's-Bay, by the Dobbs Galley and California, in the Years 1746 and 1747, for discovering a North West Passage.

Chart of Hudson's Bay and 9 engraved plates.

FIRST EDITION. 8vo, original calf. London, 1748.

Sabin 22312.

The most important result of this voyage was that it definitely put an end to the idea that the N.W. Passage lay through Hudson's Bay. Ellis' work, although containing many valuable observations on tides, on the vagaries of the compass, and on the customs of the Eskimos, a people then practically unknown, mingles a great deal of speculation on the certain existence of the passage, on magnetism, on fogs, on rust, and other matters, all more or less ingenious. Ellis was afterwards appointed successively governor of Georgia and of Nova Scotia, from which employment he retired about 1770. The expedition was sent out at the instigation of Arthur Dobbs.

Manuscript (in Portuguese) being a translation of Father Thomas Gage's book (The English-American, published in London 1648) in which he describes his travels in Spanish America.

261 pp., 4to, mottled calf. (Circa 1750).

"Although Gage's work has been translated into French [Heredia 6504], German [Sabin, c. 26309], Dutch [Sabin 26310] and Spanish [Sabin 26312], it does not appear to have been published in Portuguese; and the manuscript offered herewith is probably unique.

Thomas Gage was an English missionary and Dominican friar who was born circa 1597 and died in Jamaica in 1656. He graduated at the convent at Valladolid, and in 1625 was intended for the Philippines, but preferred to remain in Mexico, and was for many years Professor of Latin in the Convent of Chiapa, and later of Philosophy in Guatemala. In spite of his superior's prohibition, he resolved to return to Europe in 1637; and after travelling across Nicaragua, he embarked for England on a Spanish vessel. On his return to England, he embraced Protestantism.

His work, "The English-American, his travail by sea and land, or a new Survey of the West Indies," created a sensation on its publication in London in 1648. In it he describes Mexico, and the wealth of South America, commenting upon the ease with which it might be conquered.

Espasa's encyclopaedia states that as a consequence of this, Venables' expedition—"which resulted in the English taking possession of Jamaica"—was sent out in 1654, with Gage officiating as Chaplain.

in 1747, wherein the author speaks of the extensive use of the quipus by the Peruvians."

Prescott remarks concerning the quipu, that it "was a cord about two feet long, composed of different coloured threads tightly twisted together, from which a quantity of smaller threads were suspended in the manner of a fringe. These threads were of different colours and were tied into knots; the word quipu, indeed, signifies a knot. The colours denoted sensible objects; as, for instance, white represented silver, and yellow, gold. They sometimes also stood for abstract ideas; thus white signified peace, and red, war. But the quipus were chiefly used for arithmetical purposes. The knots served instead of ciphers, and could be combined in such a manner as to represent numbers to any amount they required. By means of these they went through their calculations with great rapidity, and the Spaniards who first visited the country bear testimony to their accuracy.

A curious and interesting work.

Sabin 35254, does not mention the supplementary pages 61-76, relating to the passage of Mercury, 6 May, 1753.

An extremely curious and interesting work in the history of the search for the North West Passage, discussing the possibility of a passage through to Hudson's Bay or Baffin Bay, at about the latitude of Queen Charlotte Island, and the existence of a great inland sea, named the Mer de L'Ouest, eastwards of Vancouver Island with exit to the Pacific Ocean through the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Admiral Bartholomew de Fonte or Fuentes, a Spanish or Portuguese Navigator, is supposed to have set out from Callao on April 3, 1640, with four vessels & to have sailed up the coast to California, and thence northwards to about latitude 53°, where he found numerous islands which he named the Archipelago of St. Lazarus, and where he entered a great river or strait running towards the East and sailed through a great extent of rivers and lakes until he came across an English vessel belonging to Major General Gibbons of Massachusetts in charge of Captain Shapley, which had come from Boston—presumably from the East. Having taken over Capt. Shapley's charts he returned to Lima, and wrote a long letter detailing his explorations and discoveries. Various long discussions took place among numerous savants as to whether Admiral Fuentes' accounts were true or only imaginary, and in this work these explorations are discussed in full, the author being among those who believed in them, and various suggestions are made as to how Capt. Shapley's vessel had sailed through to the west coast of America.

If Fuentes' account is based on truth the probability is that he sailed among the numerous islands north of Queen Charlotte Island and mistook the straits as rivers and the wider stretches as lakes, & that if he met there a vessel from Boston, that vessel had sailed round from South America. Whatever be the truth of the matter, the book is extremely interesting for the early history of N.W. exploration.

An interesting manuscript, written in diary form, describing the voyage from Lisbon to Pekin and back, on the occasion of the special embassy sent in 1753-4 by King Joseph of Portugal to the Emperor of China, with a view to maintaining friendly relations in the far East, for the sake of the Catholic Missions.

The man whom the King appointed as Ambassador was Francisco Xavier de Assis Pacheco e Sampayo; and the writer of the diary was a member of his family, Diogo Baduem da Serra, who accompanied him with a numerous suite.

There are detailed descriptions of the places visited en route, and a full account of the Emperor's reception at the royal palace and the many entertainments arranged in their honour; with records of noteworthy facts relating to the social and political conditions prevalent in China. There are descriptions of Mozambique; and an interesting account of the ambassador's reception at Rio de Janeiro, where he landed in America, as the writer relates, while the guns of the forts boomed out their welcome, and those of the fleet responded. The writer records that the Constable Manoel de Silva died and was buried at sea; and that some English vessels were met on the way home. Incidentally, the fleet carried back to Portugal a cargo of a million-and-a-half arrobas of diamonds from Brazil.

The water colours, which are nicely executed, represent scenes in China, and include an interesting architectural plan of the royal palace at Pekin.

"The History of the Missions of the Jesuits in Paraguay, where they exerted an extraordinary influence and obtained almost supreme power, is full of interest. Most books on the subject are written by members of the order; but the fact that Muratori was not a Jesuit, has given his history a character of impartiality, not claimed for other authors. It was composed in great part from documents written by various Jesuit Missionaries and travellers, furnished by Muratori by Father Gaetan Cattanio, a missionary in Paraguay."

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE No. XXIII).

Military Commander. In 1756 he was appointed Captain General and Governor-in-Chief of the Province of Virginia and Commander-in-Chief of the British forces in America. He arrived at New York on 23rd July and immediately repaired to Albany to assume command of the forces assembled there. Affairs were in great confusion, and the home authorities were slow in adopting measures to cope with the crisis. The French had made themselves masters of Forts Oswego and Ontario. To conceal his plans for a siege of Louisbourg, Loudoun on 3rd Jan., 1757, laid an embargo on all outward bound ships, a measure which was reprobated both in America and England. Afterwards when he had collected a force deemed amply sufficient, he wasted his time at Halifax, apparently unable to decide on a definite course of action, and was therefore recalled to England, General Amherst being named his successor.

The Original Issue of this almost unique pamphlet, of which only two other copies are known, including that in the Church Library, which was found by Henry HARRISSE among some others relating to Canada, printed at Grenoble by Cuchet, between the years 1754 and 1760, which seemed sufficient evidence for attributing the work to his press.

This very important relation gives an account of the outstanding military event of 1756. Oswego was a strong strategic point between the French and English settlements. Commanding the fur trade as it did, its possession was of vital importance to the French. In August, Montcalm suddenly appeared before the place, and on the 14th it fell into his hands. The French took 16,400 prisoners and 113 pieces of cannon, five war vessels on the lake, etc. After destroying the fortifications Montcalm returned to Fort Carillon. He wrote to the minister of war, "Les dispositions que j'avois arrêtées sont si fort contre les règles ordinaires que l'audace qui a été mise dans cette entreprise doit passer pour temerité en Europe."

This attack and capture was one of the boldest undertakings of the war, gave great encouragement to the French, and produced the greatest effect in France; hence this plaquette.

De la prise des Forts de CHOUEGUEN, ou OSWEGO; & de ce qui s'est passé cette année en Canada.

LES nouveaux préparatifs que les Anglois ont faits pour envahir le Canada, malgré les mauvais succès de leurs entreprises de l'année dernière, ont été aussi publics en Europe qu'en Amérique. L'on s'y étoit attendu; & indépendamment des dispositions qui ont été faites dans cette Colonie pour sa défense, le Roi y a envoyé un renfort de Troupes avec des provisions de toutes les especes.

Dès la fin de la Campagne de l'année dernière, le Marquis de Vaudreuil, Gouverneur & Lieutenant Général de la Nouvelle France, prit des arrangements pour faire harceler continuellement les Anglois dans leurs propres Colonies. Il a tenu, durant tout l'hyver, en campagne des Détachements de Canadiens, de Soldats & de Sauvages. Ces Détachements ont fait des incursions de tous les côtés. Les Sauvages ont tué beaucoup de monde. On a enlevé une quantité considérable de bestiaux. Il y a eu un grand nombre de maisons & de magasins brûlés. Les campagnes ont été abandonnées dans plusieurs endroits des frontieres des Colonies Angloises; & tous ces mouvements ont servi efficacement, non-seulement à augmenter le mécontentement qu'avoit causé parmi elles l'injustice des projets de leurs Gouverneurs, mais encore à faire naître des embarras & des difficultés qui ont empêché l'exécution de ces projets dans le printemps.

Le Marquis de Vaudreuil ne s'en est pas tenu là. En prenant toutes les autres précautions qui lui ont paru praticables pour pourvoir à la sûreté de toutes les frontieres du Canada, il a formé le projet d'attaquer les Anglois eux-mêmes dans leur Etablissement de Choueguen sur le Lac Ontario.

Tout le monde fait que cet Etablissement est une invasion qu'ils ont faite en pleine paix. Il n'étoit question d'abord de leur

This is the Portuguese translation of Sir William Johnson's "Letter dated Camp at Lake George, Sept. 9, 1755, to the Governours of the several Colonies who raised the Troops on the present Expedition; giving an Account of the Action of the preceding Day."

In 1755 a four-fold blow was planned against the French in North America. Braddock was to lead an expedition against Fort Duquesne, Shirley against Niagara, Col. Wm. Johnson against Crown Point, and Lt.-Col. Monckton against Acadia or Nova Scotia. This present relation is concerned with the third mentioned expedition and with the defeat of the French at Lake George.

In July 1755 Johnson had collected a force of 3,000 men near Albany comprising farmers and farmers' sons from the New England homesteads, the New Hampshire Regiment, some forces from New York and Rhode Island, and about 300 Mohawks. With these forces he moved up the Hudson to a spot called the Great Carrying Place, where fort Lyman was being built, and thence the expedition moved on towards Lake George. In the meantime the French Canadian forces under Baron Dieskau advanced from Ticonderoga to try and seize Fort Lyman. Three miles from this place they learnt of the movement of the English forces and Dieskau planned a trap. The English scouting column under Lt.-Col. Whiting fell into this trap and was nearly wiped out, the engagement being known as the "bloody morning scout." The survivors were able to fall back on the main camp, which had received warning by the sound of the firing, and had been put into a state of defence. Dieskau's forces had got beyond his control and attacked the English camp in a disorganised manner, and were repulsed. Both Johnson and Dieskau were wounded, Lyman taking over Johnson's command. After about four hours' fight the English forces made a general assault on the Canadians and their Indian allies, drove them back, and put them to flight, so winning the battle of Lake George, Dieskau being among the prisoners taken.

Johnson failed to follow up his success although urged to do so by Lyman, and so the Crown Point expedition practically ended in a failure. Johnson was undoubtedly rather jealous of Lyman, and in his report makes no mention of him whatsoever.

"This work is the first history of New York. The author was graduated from Yale College in 1745, became a distinguished lawyer, and later was Chief Justice of the Province. Being a loyalist during the Revolutionary War, after the contest was over he moved to Canada, where he was also appointed chief justice. This work as published only brought the history of the Colony down to 1736. In it the writer anticipates some of the events of the 1754-60 war, which took place whilst he was writing it."

- 1757 A.D. [5483] HODGSON (Robert). Some Account of the State of that part of America called the Mosquito Shore, in 1757. Contemporary manuscript account written by W. Jones, who was probably Secretary to Robert Hodgson, of the latter's report on the Mosquito Shore. Manuscript on 47 pp., folio, original boards. Circa 1757.

This interesting manuscript was published at London and Edinburgh in 1822, when there was considerable interest in the Mosquito Territory owing to Sir Gregor Magregor's proposals for a colony there under Spanish and Indian sanction.

At the end of the 17th, and during the 18th century numerous small British settlements, mainly Scotch, were formed along the Mosquito Shore in Nicaragua, and in 1740 Lieutenant (afterwards Captain, and then Colonel) Robert Hodgson was sent by the Governor of Jamaica, Sir Wm. Trelawney, to take possession of that territory in the name of the King of Great Britain. He wrote this present memoir describing his visits to the various English settlements, and his travels to the unexplored interior, and giving a general account of the Territory and of the Indians, and the Indian-Negro tribe the Samboes, and their manners and customs. At the end he gives the "Declaration of Edward, King of the Mosquito Indians, in the presence of God, under the British Standard, set up at Senock Dawkra, on Sunday the 16 March, 1739/40," in which the King of the Indians acknowledges the sovereignty of Great Britain, and promises to help all the Indian Nations to throw off the Spanish yoke.

On the author's death, his son, also Robert Hodgson, was appointed Superintendent, Agent, and Commander-in-Chief, a position he held for nine years, until he was recalled owing to the settlers complaining of his neglecting to visit the various settlements. In 1783 the Territory was made over to Spain, and evacuated by the British settlers in 1786.

“Juan and Ulloa’s Travels may be selected as the most entertaining and satisfactory work of its kind; they are the acknowledged source of much that has been published in other forms.”

“Ulloa’s Voyage arose out of the desire of the French Govt. to send certain members of the Academy of Sciences to measure a degree in the equinoctial countries of Peru. This request was not only accorded in the most courteous manner, but the King of Spain conceived the idea of sharing the honour of a scheme devoted to the advancement of knowledge, and sent two of the most scientific officers of the Spanish navy to accompany the expedition. The party carried on a series of operations of unexampled difficulty, and encountered hardships and sufferings which demanded the strength of the strongest constitutions and the energy of minds stimulated by a love of science. Much information was collected and published, which has been reproduced in other works on South America.”

Sabin, 36813.

“Juan and Ulloa’s Travels may be selected as the most entertaining and satisfactory of its kind; they are the acknowledged source of much that has been published in other forms.”

“Ulloa’s Voyage arose out of the desire of the French Govt. to send certain members of the Academy of Sciences to measure a degree in the equinoctial countries of Peru. This request was not only accorded in the most courteous manner, but the King of Spain conceived the idea of sharing the honour of a scheme devoted to the advancement of knowledge, and sent two of the most scientific officers of the Spanish navy to accompany the expedition. The party carried on a series of operations of unexampled difficulty, and encountered hardships and sufferings which demanded the strength of the strongest constitutions and the energy of minds stimulated by a love of science. Much information was collected and published, which has been reproduced in other works on South America.”

An extremely important manuscript. In 1750 a Treaty was signed between Spain and Portugal by which Portugal agreed to hand over to Spain her settlements along the Rio de la Plata coast of Uruguay, including Colonia do Sacramento, in exchange for which she was to receive regions in the Upper River Uruguay known as the "Missions," including the seven Mission towns, thus advancing the borders of Brazil some fifty miles further Westwards in that part. The Indians of Misiones, however, having been brought up on stories of Portuguese atrocities towards the native population, refused to come under Portuguese rule as subjects of Brazil, and revolted. A combined force of Spaniards and Portuguese was sent against them, and they were finally defeated and their towns destroyed. Portugal then refused to exchange her settlements for these ruined places. These events, from 1750 till 1761, are related in this manuscript.

8vo, original binding of mottled calf, one gilt line on sides, Frances Judah's copy with morocco label with her name on the front cover (in case).

New York, printed by W. Weyman, in Broad St., 1761.

Rosenbach, American Jewish Bibliography, No. 41, could only trace five perfect copies of this book, of which this is one.

This is the first volume of prayers for use on the Jewish holidays, printed in America. A reproduction of the title-page is given in Charles R. Hildeburn, Sketches of Printers and Printing in Colonial New York, page 64.

This book is the subject of an important article by Dr. David de Sola Pool in The American Jewish Tribune, September 5, 1924.

Frances Judah must have been a member of the famous American family of Judah, members of which settled in Newport, R.I., New York, Charleston, Richmond, Philadelphia, Montreal, Jamaica, and Surinam. We are unable to trace further details of the life of Frances Judah, but no doubt they can be found in the publications of the American Jewish Historical Society.

- 1763 A.D. [5530] LA ROCHELLE. Prominent Quebec Merchant; special agent in Paris for Bigot.
Autograph Letter Signed to a High French Official in Canada.
4 pp., 4to. Paris, 1st April, 1763.

£2 10s

An important letter concerning his correspondent's precarious position in Canada after the capture of that country by the English, also concerning some Canadians imprisoned in the Bastille and awaiting their trial.

(Trans.):—" . . . Your stay in Canada even would not have been an obstacle if there had not been delay in all the measures taken in reference to the King's officers living in the Colony. There will be nothing decided in regard to this, until after the grand trial. What effect will this trial have on you and on the people concerned in it? None, doubtless, but we want to make one and the same work for all who look at our poor country generally. . . Your stay in Canada can no longer but be unpleasant for you, and at every age sorrows change and shorten our days. I have cause to believe that Mme. de Beaujeu will follow you to France. The hope which kept you in Canada is unfortunately destroyed. Public news will have told you, Mons; that I have been appointed by decree of the Council to receive the notification of Canadian papers. I am sure that you will have participated in what such a commission has of flattery and advantage for me. . . .

"That affair about the Canadians being detained at the Bastille draws nigh, and will be judged in a month or two, everyone is talking about it with different opinions. For my part, I confess that it looks very bad for the accused." Etc., etc.

This is but the first part of the journals of this noted American partizan. It commences in 1755, and terminates with the year 1760. The second part of the Journals, announced in the advertisement at the end of the volume, was never published. "From the specimen of the work now before us, it appears that the accounts of Major Rogers may be depended upon by the Public; they are undoubtedly as authentic as they are important and necessary to those who would acquire a thorough understanding of the nature and progress of the late military operations in North America. The author writes like an honest, sensible, and modest man; and he has given throughout his whole conduct, undoubted proofs that he is a brave and skilful officer." Monthly Review.

"Major Rogers was a native of New Hampshire, and son of James R. Rogers, an early settler in the town of Dunbarton in that State. After the outbreak of the Revolutionary War he joined the Royalist party, and made himself prominent as captain of the Queen's Rangers. He died in obscurity about 1800."

Paris, Durand, 1767.

This famous work contains the History of California from its earliest discovery, and accounts of the various voyages and expeditions there, the attempts made for its settlement, and the surveys made of its interior, its Gulf, and shores.

In the fourth part, Venegas brings his work up to date by a series of Appendices, in the Introduction to which he states that although "California, considered in itself, is the most disagreeable, barren, and wretched country in the World," yet Spain must conquer and settle it so as to prevent any other power settling there and so endangering her other colonies in America. These appendices comprise:—

- I. Gomara. Short description of the outward coast of California.
- II. Capt. Sebastian Vizcaino's Voyage in 1602 for surveying the Western Coast of California.
- III. Father Fernando Consag's Voyage in 1746 for surveying the Eastern Coast of California and the river Colorado.
- IV. Description of California by Capt. Woods Rogers in 1710.
- V. Extracts of some passages in the Voyage of Commodore Anson, 1740, relating to California.

Published according to Act of Parliament by Mary Ann Pickers, Engraver to His Royal Highness the Duke of Gloucester, in the Strand.

The author declares as untenable the theories of Grotius, De Laet, Hornius, and other writers on the origin of the American, that America was peopled (before the Deluge), by a race superior to the present, that the Deluge did not extend to America, and that the principal theories of the Deluge are erroneous, particularly that of Whiston. He gives his own theories on all these points as well as upon many others of equally high interest, not excluding the origin of the negro.

£10 10S

A military letter, seeking permission for his brother, Captain Henry Monckton, to purchase from Major Gates, a majority in the 45th regiment of foot.

Included is a Report from Lord Townshend in reply to the same, endorsed, "For Mr. Lee, in answer to General Monckton's Letter."

"As your Lordship has been pleased to allow Majr. Walter of the 45th Regt. of Foot to retire in favour of Majr. Gates I flatter myself your Lordship will be so good as to continue us your favour. And allow Majr. Gates to sell to my Brother, Capt. Henry Monckton—agreeable to my first request of your Lordship. Lord Granby has been so good as to say he would write to your Lordship upon it." Etc.

An extract from the enclosed letter reads:—

". . . General Monckton now desires that His, the General's Brother, Capt. Henry Monckton, who is a Lieutenant in the first Regt. of Guards, may be permitted to purchase the Majority in the 45th of Major Gates . . . whether if Major Gates has Permission to sell, the Captains in the 45th decline Purchasing of His. If they decline it, there will be no difficulty, but it will be deem'd a Hardship, if they are willing to purchase, that they should not have the first offer."

This manuscript gives an excellent account of the history of the Royal Mint at Popayan, and of the mines, to the middle of the eighteenth century.

The author declares that if the Crown took over the mint at Popayan, it would be no use either to the Crown or the Mint, but probably would be prejudicial to the Royal finances, the State, the Commonwealth, and the general good of those Provinces.

This pamphlet forms Burke's reply to Grenville's manifesto against the Rockingham party, entitled "The Present State of the Nation." In it, after a brilliant criticism of Grenville's economic statements concerning the proposed taxations, he considers the proposed remedies; he rejects the idea of an enlarged franchise, on the ground that "it would be more in the spirit of our constitution by lessening the number to add to the weight and independency of our voters," and sets aside the proposal for American representation in the English Parliament as "Contrary to nature," and remarks "that some of the most considerable provinces of America, such for instance as Connecticut and Massachusetts Bay, have not in each of them, two men who can afford, at a distance from their estates, to spend a thousand pounds a year."

Wagner's Spanish South-West, No. 159. Sabin, 56262. Not in Paul's Manual.

This work contains regulations concerning the guarding of the Mexican Frontiers and relates to Texas and New Mexico, etc. Mr. Wagner writes concerning this work, “ This Reglamento grew out of the tour of inspection of the Marques de Rubí and contains the substance of the Instruccion which was prepared in Mexico and printed in 1771. It was in effect for a long time as can be seen from the number of editions printed. The line of presidios (frontier garrisoned posts) marked out, was maintained, with a few exceptions, until the Revolution, and in fact even later. The Republican Government in Mexico made a few changes in location, but generally speaking the system lasted until nearly 1850.”

1774 A.D. [5619] (DRAPER, Sir Wm.). The Thoughts of a Traveller upon our American Disputes.

8vo, half levant morocco, gilt, g.e. London, Ridley, 1774.

Sabin, 20904.

A remarkable pamphlet. Sir Wm. Draper is noted for his capture of Manilla in 1762 and for his encuing correspondence with "Junius." In 1769, on the death of his wife, he left England for a tour in the Northern Provinces of America, arriving at Charlestown, N. Carolina, in Jan., 1770. He journeyed north through Maryland, where he met with a distinguished reception, and at New York, the same year, married the daughter of Oliver De Lancey, who was afterwards Brigadier-General of loyalist provincials. When the War of Independence broke out Draper's name was suggested for the second in command of the reinforcements. He wrote several times to the papers at the time concerning the troubles. In this pamphlet, which is in some respects remarkably prophetic, he pleads for forbearance towards the Colonists, and whilst not denying the legal right to tax the Americans, sets forward the folly of trying to do so. He points out that England's old enemies will at once take advantage of any war with the Colonists to join with them, and that such a war can only result in unnecessary loss to England and America.

Sabin, 80511.

"A golden speech unspoken, which illustrates the wisdom, justice, foresight, and eloquence of the good bishop. It will not be unpleasant for Americans to hear his opinion—'My Lords, I look upon North America as the only great nursery of freemen now left upon the face of the earth.'"

- 1774 A.D. [5622] (COOPER, Myles). A Friendly Address to all Reasonable Americans, on the subject of our Political Confusions: in which the necessary consequences of Violently opposing the King's Troops, and of a General Non-Importation, are fairly stated.

8vo, half morocco. New York printed, London reprinted for Richardson and Urquhart, 1774.

Sabin, 16587.

An important pamphlet discussing the effect of the Boston Tea Party, and action taken in the Provinces of Massachusetts-Bay, New Jersey, New York, South Carolina, etc., in regard to the tea duties, etc. Also comparing the treatment of the Colonies with that of Canada, with particular reference to the establishment or toleration of the Roman Catholic Religion in Canada.

A contemporary manuscript note on the title attributes this pamphlet to Dr. (T. B.) Chandler of New Jersey. Another copy, according to Sabin, bore a contemporary note attributing it to General Charles Lee. Dr. Chandler wrote a pamphlet in answer to an attack on this one.

- 1774 A.D. [5623] POSTLETHWAYT (Malachy). The Universal Dictionary of Trade and Commerce: with large Additions and Improvements, adapting the same to the Present State of British Affairs in America.

THE DISCOVERY OF THE ALEUTIAN ISLANDS.

1774 A.D. [5625] STAEHLIN (J. von). An Account of the New Northern Archipelago, lately discovered by the Russians in the Seas of Kamtschatka and Anadir. To which is added a Narrative of the Adventures of Four Russian Sailors, who were cast away on the desert Island of East-Spitzbergen: together with some observations on the Productions of that Island, &c. Translated from the German Originals at the desire of several Members of the Royal Society.

8vo, contemporary calf. London, C. Heydinger, 1774.

£4 4s

An important work in the history of the exploration of the Aleutian Archipelago and N.E. Asia. The map marks the routes followed by the various Russian expeditions, including that of the Russian ships which were supposed to have sailed right through the Behring Straits in 1648, Expeditions of Behring in 1728 and 1741, and of St. Sindo in 1764-8. The map shews the Peninsula of Alaska as an Island.

1774 A.D. [5626] JAY (Sir James). A Letter to the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, &c. in respect to the Collection that was made for the Colleges of New York and Philadelphia. Being a Vindication of the Author, occasioned by the groundless insinu-

Presentation copy from the author. Sir James Jay had been appointed to act as treasurer for a subscription which was being organised for the Colleges of New York and Philadelphia. When a sum of £1,500 had been collected a certain Mr. Alderman Trecothick hinted that the Colleges should draw on Sir James Jay for the sum of £4,000. This threw suspicion on Sir James Jay's character and caused a rupture between him and the College Authorities in America.

1774 A.D. [5627] HUTCHINSON (Thos.). The Letters of Governor Hutchinson, and Lieut. Governor Oliver, &c., Printed at Boston, and Remarks Thereon. With the Assembly's Address, and the Proceedings of the Lords Committee of Council.

FIRST EDITION. 4to, half morocco. London, Bowyer and Nichols, 1774.

Sabin, 62572.

This expedition was undertaken for the purpose of discovering a route to India through the North Polar regions. North of Spitzbergen the sea was absolutely blocked with ice and the vessels had to return. Although unsuccessful the voyage was an important addition to Nautical Science, and the account of it contains a descriptive catalogue of the natural productions of Spitzbergen. The expedition is also of interest from the fact that Lord Nelson, then fourteen, accompanied it as a midshipman

These are Barrington's celebrated "Tracts on the possibility of approaching the North Pole." They comprise three separate pamphlets, the "Probability of reaching the North Pole" (which contains five parts), and the two supplements, but the pagination was continued throughout the three. The author lays down the results of numerous enquiries addressed to whaling captains, especially to those who frequented the coasts of Labrador and Greenland, and his researches resulted in the memorable voyage undertaken by Captain Phipps. The 'tracts' were re-issued in a large collection of curious papers known as his 'Miscellanies,' published in 1781. The original issues are very scarce.

Portuguese manuscript with folding map. 21 pp., 8vo. 1775.

The text consists of a description of the journey by land from the Island of Sta. Catharina, along the Atlantic coast to São Pedro do Rio Grande, which the Portuguese Field Marshal Diogo Funck undertook in 1775, for purposes of official survey. The interesting map consists of some thirteen folded 8vo pages, and gives minute details of distances, roads and bridges, &c., in addition to the geographical position of towns, rivers and lakes. In addition to the general description of the journey, there is an itinerary, giving the exact distances between all points passed en route, "in order to facilitate the journey for other passengers." The full distance covered over 100 leagues.

Two most remarkable pamphlets. "At a time when no Member of Parliament had sufficient decision of mind to propose the Independence of America, Major Cartwright suggested the expediency of an Union between Great Britain and her Colonies under separate legislatures." He continues to state on the title that his work contains "the essential materials for a proposed Grand British League and Confederacy, to be entered into by Great Britain and all the States of British America. The whole of which shews, beyond denial or doubt, that by granting the Colonists an unrestrained civil Freedom and Legislative Independence, we may most effectually secure their future Commercial Dependence upon, and consequently shall best promote the Interest and support the glory of, Great Britain."

The letter begins, obsequiously: "As keenly aware of the duties of a subject am I, as of the old obligations imposed by a due sense of gratitude. My blundering hand therefore takes up the pen to write these few crude lines in order to satisfy your curiosity regarding the places I have so often seen. . . . First, there are the Indian dwellings, and the homes of the English settlers. . . . According to Sergeant Martin Padillo, Evaristo Pamales, and other ancients of the Castle at Golfo Duice, Costa Rica, as far as they can remember, about forty years ago, they entered the River Sarstoon in a small vessel, and on that day found along the river bank so many paths cut, and so many remains and evidences of recent occupation, that they feared to come in contact with the many people they believed must be occupying those parts, and, terrified, wended their way back. I could also testify to the evidences of an earlier occupation, but I do not wish to weary you. . . . The English are to be found on the hilltops, engaged in cutting wood and cultivating oak . . . there are four hundred and eleven ranches and three thousand two hundred negroes and seven hundred and twenty white men. Their little homes are nicely arranged; constructed of wood and freshly painted inside and out. . . . Everywhere there is an abundance of beautiful flowers and trees of all kinds. . . . They keep goats, pigs, and fowls, which are bred on the ranches in great numbers, and supply the food for the merchants who attend to the loading of their cargo-boats. . . . A few progressives have raised plans of this haven, setting their hands to draw what their eyes have never beheld. I have seen them, and they seem to me like the work of Praxiteles when he painted the bird resting on a sprig."

Josiah Tucker became famous for his pamphlets on the American War. "He maintained that a separation was desirable, and that the supposed advantage of the colonial trade was a delusion." On the other hand, he maintained that the colonies turned adrift would fall out with each other, and be glad to return to political union. This policy pleased nobody in England, and Tucker, though his views were approved in later years by many of the 'laissez-faire' economists, was for a time treated as a 'Cassandra,' under which name he published some contributions to the papers."

The work met with success, and was continued to the year 1784; it contained every authentic paper relative to the American Revolution, whether published in England or in America. Vol. I passed through several separate editions, the first edition in demy 8vo, conforming in size with the subsequent volumes, and containing several maps, but being deficient of several papers contained in the later editions. This present vol. contains a very interesting series of papers relative to the outbreak of the Revolution, and the opening actions of the War. The map is different from those in the first edition, and the volume is complete by itself.

- 1776 A.D. [5689] [DALRYMPLE (Sir John).] The Rights of Great Britain Asserted against the Claims of America: being an answer to the Declaration of the General Congress.

London, T. Cadell, 1776.

Sabin, 18347.

"This celebrated performance is said to have been written, printed, and liberally distributed both in Great Britain and in America, at the instance and expence of Government, but whether this be true or not, the work itself, we are afraid, will answer no other purpose than to exasperate the people of Great Britain against their brethren of America; and, by inflaming misrepresentations and invectives, aggravate the evils of our present civil discord."

- 1776 A.D. [5690] LEONARD (Daniel). Massachusettsensis: or a Series of Letters, containing a faithful state of many important and striking facts which laid the foundation of the present troubles in the Province of the Massachusetts-Bay; interspersed with Animadversions and Reflections, originally addressed to the People of that Province, and worthy the consideration of the true Patriots of this Country. By a Person of Honor upon the Spot.

Sabin, 40100.

£4 4s

“These political essays, in the form of seventeen letters, first appeared anonymously in the Boston newspapers. They were then supposed to be from the pen of Jonathan Sewall, Attorney-General of the Province of Massachusetts. They took the side of the Government against the Colonies, and are written with great ingenuity. Tudor, in his ‘Life of Otis,’ characterizes them as ‘the most able papers on the Government side during the dispute. John Adams also speaks of their merit and ascribes them to his friend Sewall.’”

- 1776 A.D. [5691] VALIN (René Josué). Nouveau commentaire sur l’ordonnance de la marine, du mois d’août 1681.

“Swift to the Congress with my Freight

“I’ll Speed, and on their Heads its Weight

“Souise with such Skill and Care;

“That Putnam, Washington beneath

“And grasping Lee shall wish to breathe

AMERICAN WAR OF INDEPENDENCE.

1776 A.D. [5693] DAY (Thomas). The Devoted Legions: a Poem. Addressed to Lord George Germaine, and the Commanders of the Forces against America.

4to, boards. London, G. Kearsley, 1776.

£5 5s

Sabin, 18982.

This poem is based on the disastrous expedition of Crassus and the Roman Legions, against their allies the Parthians, and on Atteius' denunciation of that Expedition, and is meant to be symbolical of the War against America.

Thos. Day was the author of "Sandford and Merton."

1776 A.D. [5694] PAINE (Thomas). Common Sense; Addressed to the Inhabitants of America, &c.

A New Edition, with several Additions in the Body of the Work. To which is added an Appendix; together with an Address to the People called Quakers.

Philadelphia, Printed and Sold by W. and T. Bradford, 1776.

£3 3s

"Paine met Franklin in London, and was persuaded by him to emigrate to America. He settled in Philadelphia in 1775, where in the following year, at the suggestion of Doctor Benjamin Rush, he wrote and published this work, for which the legislature of Pennsylvania voted him £500. The work was so successful that it went through several editions in Philadelphia and the other colonies, not less than 100,000 copies of it being sold.

"It was written for the purpose of inducing the British colonists in America to renounce the sovereignty of the King, and declare their independence. The American editions contain reflections on the King and Government of Great Britain, which were omitted in the English editions.

"This famous work first appeared January 8th, 1776, at the most opportune time, when a multitude of people were eager to read anything in confirmation of the views which, in a great measure, they already held."

- 1776 A.D. [5695] [ROBINSON-MORRIS (Matthew, Lord Rokeby).] A further Examination of our Present American Measures and of the Reasons and the Principles on which they are founded.

FIRST EDITION. 8vo, old calf, rebacked. Bath, printed by R. Cruttwell, 1776.

Sabin, 72154.

An ably written work, against the American policy of Lord North. The author speaks of the totally inadequate forces England was sending to America, and discusses the just causes of America's revolt, among other statements, remarking, "that no reason can demonstrate the right of Great Britain to tax America or of America to tax Great Britain."

- 1776 A.D. [5696] A Letter from Governor Pownall to Adam Smith, LL.D., F.R.S. Being an Examination of several points of Doctrine, laid down in his "Inquiry into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations."

4to, half morocco. London, J. Almon, 1776.

Sabin, 64823.

"The author was born in England in 1722. He came to America in 1753, was a member of the Congress at Albany in 1754, Lt.-Gov. of New Jersey in 1755, Gov. of Mass. 1757-60, and Gov. of S. Carolina, 1760-1. He returned to England in 1761 and was elected to Parliament seven years later, where he opposed the oppressive measures of the Ministry respecting American affairs. He died in 1805."

PLEADING ON BEHALF OF THE COLONISTS.

- 1776 A.D. [5698] TUCKER (Josiah, Dean of Gloucester). A Series of Answers to Certain Popular Objections, against separating from the Rebellious Colonies, and discarding them entirely, being the Concluding Tract of the Dean of Gloucester, on the subject of American Affairs.

FIRST EDITION. 8vo, half morocco. Gloucester, printed by R. Raikes, 1776.

£2 2S

Josiah Tucker became famous for his pamphlets on the American War. "He maintained that a separation was desirable, and that the supposed advantage of the colonial trade was a delusion." On the other hand, he maintained that the colonies turned adrift would fall out with each other, and be glad to return to political union. This policy pleased nobody in England, and Tucker, though his views were approved in later years by many of the laissez-faire economists, was for a time treated as a Cassandra, under which name he published some contributions to the papers."

- 1776 A.D. [5699] Journal of the Proceedings of the Congress, held at Philadelphia, May 10, 1775. Published by Order of the Congress.

- 1776 A.D. [5704] WATSON (Richard, D.D.). The Principles of the Revolution vindicated in a Sermon preached before the University of Cambridge, on Wednesday, May, 29, 1776.

8vo, half bound. Cambridge, J. Archdeacon, 1776.

£2 2s

Written in reference to the War in America and in favour of the colonists. This sermon gave lasting offence at court and was supposed to have interfered with the author's promotion. John Dunning, first Baron Ashburton said "it contained just such treason as ought to be preached once a month at St. James's." Several pamphlets were written in reply to it.

1776 A.D. [5705] ESTWICK (Samuel). A Letter to the Reverend Josiah Tucker, D.D., Dean of Gloucester, in answer to His Humble Address and Earnest Appeal, &c. With a Postscript, in which the present War against America is shewn to the Effect, not of the Causes assigned by Him and Others, but of a fixed Plan of Administration, founded in System: the Landed opposed to the Commercial Interest of the State, being as the Means in order to the End.

FIRST EDITION. 8vo, half morocco. London, J. Almon, 1776.

Sabin, 23079.

Estwick attacks the Dean of Gloucester's proposals for and ideas concerning the total liberation of America, and puts forward what he considers the true and just causes of America's revolt, and after hoping that the unity of England and America might soon be re-established utters the plea "May the authors, whoever they may be, of this Machiavelianism, or art of ruling tyrannically over a free people, like Machiavel, starve in gaol."

Sabin, 65452.

"The Author of the above 'Observations,' must be ranked among the most respectable writers on the affairs of America. He does not attempt to engage our attention by the specious and flaming declamation of a party zealot, or the factious invective and rant of modern patriotism. In him we see the warm pleader, united with the sound reasoner, the intelligent politician, and above all, the independent man, the uninfluenced friend of his country."

"This amiable Lady accompanied her Husband to Canada in the year 1776, and during two Campaigns, underwent such fatigue and distress as female fortitude was thought incapable of supporting, and once she narrowly escaped with life from her tent, which was set on fire in the night. The Event here commemorated deserves to be recorded in History. In the unfortunate Action between G. Burgoyne and G. Gates Oct. 7, 1777, Major Ackland was wounded and made Prisoner, when his Lady received the news she formed the heroic Resolution of delivering herself into the hands of the Enemy that she might attend him during his Captivity. For this purpose with a letter from G. Burgoyne to G. Gates, accompanied by the Rev. Mr. Brudinell who carried a Flag of Truce, one female servant, and her Husband's Valet, she rowed down Hudson River in an open boat towards the American Camp, but night coming on before she reached their outposts the Guards on duty refused to receive her and threatened to fire upon her if she moved until morning. In this dreadful situation for 7 or 8 dark and cold hours, she was compelled to wait on the water half dead with anxiety and terror. The morning put an end to her distress, she was received by Gen. Gates & restored to her husband with that politeness and humanity her sex, quality, & Virtues so justly merit."—Inscription on plate.

Sabin, 66994.

John Christopher Roberts had been appointed Commissary General for Quebec, by a patent of George III in 1768, for the term of his life, or in the event of that post being discontinued he was to receive an adequate pension. Soon afterwards, however, a Mr. Day was appointed to the same post, Mr. Roberts being entirely ignored in the matter, the English Authorities holding that his patent of appointment was not legal. This pamphlet sets forth his claims in the matter.

Sabin, 36300.

In 1761 Commodore Byron took possession of the Falkland Islands, on the ground of their discovery by the English under Davis in 1592. In 1769 the Spaniards from Buenos Aires sent a demand that the English should leave the Islands, and the next year followed up their demand by an expedition from Buenos Aires. The English Settlement at Port Egmont was forced to leave, and an English fleet was sent out, war nearly breaking out over the dispute. In 1771 Spain yielded the Islands to Great Britain. This work contains the letters and papers which passed between the English and Spanish representatives on the subject, edited by the famous Doctor Johnson.

£1 5s

Sabin, 65444.

"The author of the above 'Additional Observations,' must be ranked among the most respectable writers on the affairs of America. He does not attempt to engage our attention by the specious and flaming declaration of a party zealot, or the factious invective and rant of modern patriotism. In him we see the warm pleader, united with the sound reasoner, the intelligent politician, and above all, the independent man, the uninfluenced friend of his country."

- 1778 A.D. [5734] Proceedings of a Court Martial, held at Cambridge, by order of Major General Heath, commanding the American Troops for the Northern District, for the Trial of Colonel David Henley, accused by General Burgoyne, of ill treatment of the British Soldiers, etc. Taken in Short Hand by an Officer, who was present.

1778 A.D. [5739] [TICKELL (Richard).] Anticipation: containing the Substance of His M——y's Most Gracious Speech to both H——S of P—L—T, on the Opening of the approaching Session, together with a full and authentic Account of the Debate which will take place in the H—e of C—ms, on the Motion for the Address, and the Amendment. With Notes.

FIRST EDITION. 8vo, half morocco. London, Becket, 1778.

£3 3s

A very celebrated satirical skit dealing with events in the American War of Independence, etc. The author published this just before the opening of Parliament, giving the supposed speeches of King George III, David Hartley, Mr. Wilks, Lord Howe, Burke, Fox, Barré, Lord North, etc. Most of the Members of Parliament read it before the opening and Burke and Fox were said to be very pleased with their supposed speeches. At the opening of Parliament the House roared with laughter when Mr. Barré, who had not seen the pamphlet, used words and phrases which were attributed to him in it. Mention is made of Washington and Franklin, and of the dispute between Adm. Keppel and Vice-Adm. Palliser over the naval engagement with the French fleet the previous July.

Sabin, 66647.

“This very candid author (Wm. Poulteney, Esq.), a member of Parliament for Shrewsbury, appears to have written on purpose to prepare our minds for a plan of reconciliation, which, it is much to be apprehended, will come too late to prevent the loss of America.” He reviews the political affairs between England and her American Colonies from 1754, and believes that the Americans might yet become reconciled to England, in spite of the Declaration of Independence, etc.

£52 10s

An interesting and important naval letter referring to one of the fiercest fights ship from the other and for fear I should by mistake fire into the Serapis instead of the Enemy I shortened sail in order to draw the attention of another Frigate that was then coming up under my Stern, and engaged her for the best part of two hours, but she soon had the Advantage, by disabling me in my sails and rigging, and what by the firing of my own guns; and what by the Enemy, that I had seven guns dismounted, (and seeing that Frigate that first engaged me coming up; in that situation I thought it would be in vain to contend with such superior force as I could see no prospect of success. I struck to the Pallas of 32 guns & 275 men a French Frigate but in Congress's Service; I had 4 men killed and 20 wounded some of which are since dead. I had no officer killed and only the Gunner Master Mate and myself wounded, indeed my wounds was so slight as not to confine me a moment it was by two Splinters one took me on the left Arm and the other on the right leg. which

THOMAS PIERCY.

AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED.

DESCRIBING THE NAVAL ACTION BETWEEN THE Bonhomme Richard AND

in history, the battle between Captain Paul Jones of the Bonhomme Richard and two other vessels, the Alliance and Pallas, against two British vessels, the Serapis, commanded by Capt. Pearson, and the Countess of Scarborough, commanded by Thomas Piercy.

The battle raged for three and a half hours, when the British ships surrendered.

“ . . . I shall say but little of our engagement for I do not doubt but you have seen Captain Pearson's letter to the Lords of the Admiralty; the little share I took in the action is scarce worth mentioning for you must know how badly the ship I commanded was calculated for fighting haveing her guns so divided and the Ports under the Half deck so small that I was sometime engaged before their guns were of any use. I was first attack'd by a Frigate of 36 guns and after exchanging 4 or 5 broadsides she dropt so far astern that I could not bring my gun to bear upon Her. I then made a sail up to the Serapis to see if I could give her any assistance, but she and the enemy being on board each other, and it being dark, I could not distinguish one ship from the other and for fear I should by mistake fire into the Serapis instead of the Enemy. I shortend sail in order to draw the attention of another Frigate that was then comeing up under my stern, and engaged her for the best part of two hours but she soon had the advantage; by disabling me in my sails and rigging, and what by the firing of my own guns; and what by the Enemy shot, I had seven guns dismantled; and seeing the Frigate that first engaged me comeing up; in that situation I thought it would be in vain to contend with such superior force as I could see no prospect of success. I struck to the Pallas of 32 guns & 275 men, a French frigate, but in Congress Service. . . I hope it will not be long before we get exchanged for I am very tired of Confinement. Captain Pearson and his officers are on board the same ship with me and my officers; we make ourselves as happy as people in our situation generally do; we are very well treated and have everything we could wish but our liberty which is dear to an Englishman.” Etc.

1779 A.D. [5759] Considerations upon the French and American War. In a Letter to a Member of Parliament.

8vo, half levant morocco, gilt, g.e. London, J. Almon, 1779.

Sabin, 16032.

A most remarkable and outspoken pamphlet taking the side of the American Colonists against the Government. "This measure has been called a rebellion by some, who ought to have been more moderate in their expressions; for my part, I consider it merely as a secession of one part of the people, from the domination of the other." The fact that such outspoken pamphlets as this one were published openly in London during the War with the American Colonists shews how strongly much of public opinion was opposed to the Government and its measures.

FIRST ENGLISH EDITION. 8vo, half morocco. London, Becket, 1779.

Presentation copy from the author.

An extremely clever and amusing satirical skit. The author, whilst on a visit to Mademoiselle du Thé, pretended to have discovered a small green box containing private correspondence of Mons. de Sartine, the famous French statesman who was also paying that lady a visit at the same time. Not troubling any further about his visit he made off with the box, the supposed contents of which are here published. The contents relate to the intervention of France in the quarrel between England and her American Colonies and include the French envoy Gerard's Account of Compliments between himself and Congress; Letter of Franklin's to De Sartine regretting that nothing had come of the Keppel riots in England; Account of Secret Service expenses; Letter from Franklin complaining of his reception by other foreign envoys. Etc.

- 1779 A.D. [5767] An Examination into the Conduct of the Present Administration, from the Year 1774 to the Year 1778, and a Plan of Accomodation with America.

Second Edition, with corrections. 8vo, half morocco. London, Almon, 1779

Sabin, 23346.

"The writer proposes that the whole force of Great Britain should be employed against France. France being subdued, the Americans, he concludes, will naturally propose such terms of union as could be accepted, without derogating from the natural dignity or interest."

- 1779 A.D. [5768] [WILMOT (John Eardley).] A Short Defence of the Opposition; in Answer to a Pamphlet intituled, "A Short History of the Opposition."

8vo, half morocco, t.e.g. London, Printed for J. Almon, etc., 1779.

£2 2^s

1780 A.D. [5773] LAFAYETTE (Marie Jean, Marquis de, 1757-1834), French General and Politician, Fought in America. Letter Signed to M. de Sigogne.

1½ pp., 4to. Light Camp, Harrington, 3rd October, 1780.

A very early and important letter written while in America. It is dated the day after the execution of André as a spy, through the perfidy of Arnold, Lafayette having signed the judgment of the Court, which condemned him to death. The "affair of General Gates" referred to was the Battle of Camden, 16th August, 1780, where Gates was completely defeated and the American Army shattered.

(Trans.):—" . . . As you were not in the list of the dead and wounded in the affair of General Gates, I have every reason to hope that you were not among the number. I shall be very happy to have your confirmation of this, as well as news of all my acquaintances in the Army of the South. I beg you to present to them a million compliments from me, especially to Colonel Arnaud and General Smallwood. Tell them that there is no news here, except the treason of Arnold, who has fled to New York, and the judgment of the Adjutant General of the English Army (André) arrested while acting as a spy. If you are within reach of General Gates, I beg you to remember me to him." Etc.

sippi in the summer, as well as winter months; stress being laid on the need to proceed carefully in the region of the Chandeleur Islands during the foggy winter period, and to "listen for the sound of the gun which is fired from the centre island of the three." There is also a route directing the ship's course from the Mississippi to Havana, showing the variations to be observed with regard to the increased volume of water flowing from the river during the months of February to July. There are some interesting hints as to the locality of the coast which is determinable by the colour and quality of the sands.

Volumes VI to IX inclusive, relate to America. J. R. Bartlett's Catalogue of the John Carter Brown Library gives a copious list of the contents of each volume. This edition is generally preferred to the original because it has the advantage of being systematically arranged. "Fontenelle said 'that he had never read a work which answered better to its title.' Of the accuracy of those 'Lettres' and the works of Du Halde and Gaubit, the author has often heard the late Sir G. Staunton speak in the highest terms."

Madg.* Collection of 44 original manuscripts of the reports written by the Portuguese Envoy Extraordinary, on the negotiations with regard to Guinea.

(Together about 140 pp.), folio and 4to. Circa 1780.

£5 5s

These interesting original reports are for the most part in the Ambassador's autograph, and refer to the period of the United States Independence. He mentions a social function at which he met Mr. Adams and makes various other references concerning him, and also speaks of a discussion he had with other Ministers as to whether America would declare war, as had been rumoured, or not.

The reports deal with the rights of Portugal to navigate and trade on the Guinea coast and between Africa and America, and their dealings with the Compañia de Indias Occidentales, whose claim to the exclusive right to trade on that part of the coast was contested. The text is given of a treaty between Mr. Hope of the Netherlands and Sr. Don Luis da Cunha, the Portuguese Minister for Foreign affairs, with regard to the trading and sailing privileges of ships from Brazil to the African coast, and original rough notes of a draft report of various conferences. In fact, all these manuscripts are the originals of the official reports forwarded by the Portuguese Plenipotentiary, roughly written down for his own guidance. There is therefore no formal heading, address, or date, as would have been recorded in the official documents. From the context, however, it appears that the writer was accredited to the Netherlands Court.

1780 A.D. [5789] SMELT (Leonard). An account of Some Particulars relative to the Meeting held at York, on Thursday, the 30th of December, 1779.

8vo, half morocco. London, Becket, 1780.

Sabin, 82257.

“This meeting was one of a series held in the English counties to protest against the continuation of the American War, and the policy of the ministry generally; and indeed, it was charged by the government, to organize more than a parliamentary opposition. At this meeting Mr. Smelt spoke against the government and king with great freedom and severity. His speech was at once printed by the enemies of the movement and Smelt complains in this second edition of his pamphlet that “in the repeated publications of the Speech attributed to him at York, neither the mode of expressing his sentiments, the order in which they were delivered, nor the intended application of them to their object, has been accurately observed. Much has likewise been added, and much left out. Mr. Smelt would have been very happy if he had found reason to impute this, to the common fallibility of memory, and the inaccuracy of notes only; but their general and uniform tendency towards the establishment of conclusions the most unjust, obliges him to withhold such a proof of disinterested candour.” This Account, which is anonymous, contains the speech as he claims to have delivered it, disguised as the remarks of A Freeholder.

- 1780 A.D. [5790] BURKE (Edmund). A speech at the Guildhall, in Bristol, Previous to the late Edition in that City, upon Certain Points relative to his Parliamentary Conduct. FIRST EDITION. 8vo, half morocco. London, Dodsley, 1780.

Sabin, 26475. Not in Medina.

Galvez's account, in diary form, of his operations against the British under Chester and Campbell, in Florida, and of his capture of Panzacola, and West Florida for Spain. Mentioning the Destruction of the village of Mobile. The last 14 pages contain the Articles of Capitulation.

Panzacola, town and port of Florida, situated on the Bay of St. Marie de Galvez, was taken by the French in 1719 and ceded to England by the Treaty of Versailles in 1762. In 1781 the Spanish, under Galvez, captured it from the English.

An extremely rare relation. Medina, in his "Imprenta en Mexico," No. 7195, gives another issue of the same report, but in an entirely different printing. The spacing of the title-piece also differs.

DIARIO

De las operaciones de la expedicion contra la Plaza de Panzacola concluida por las Armas de S. M. Católica, baxo las órdenes del Mariscal de Campo D. Bernardo de Galvez.

FRustrada por el uracán la Expedicion que salió de la Havana contra Panzacola en 16. de Octubre de 1780, regresó su Comandante Don Bernardo de Galvez al Puerto de la salida el 17. de Noviembre con el dolor de ignorar el paradero de las embarcaciones de su comboy, de las quales dispersadas por el temporal, unas fueron à parar à Campeche, otras al rio Misisipi, algunas à otras partes, y se cree haber perecido una mediante no saberse su suerte. Luego que llegó à la Havana el referido General reiteró sus antiguas pretensiones de que se socorriese el Fu rte de la Mobila con víveres y tropas, asi por hallarse escasisimo de aquellos, como por estar amenazado de un ataque. En fuerza de sus instancias mandó la Junta de Generales se habilitasen los buques correspondientes al transporte de 500. hombres, y alguna cantidad de comestibles, y este pequeño comboy se hizo à la vela en 6. de Diciembre al mando del Capitan de fragata D. Joseph de Rada; pero sin embargo que à pocos dias de navegacion arribò felizmente à la boca de la Mobila, no se determinó a entrar en su bahía por haber encontrado (segun aseguró) alguna variacion en el canal, y se hizo à la vela en derechura à la B lija del rio Misisipi, à cuya entrada dexó el comboy y se restituyó à la Havana.

Esta circunstancia, la de haber entrado dos fragatas Inglesas en la misma bahía de la Mobila cinco dias despues, y la noticia de haber sido atacado el destacamento del Village, movieron à D. Bernardo de Galvez à instar, para que yá que el estado de las cosas no permitiese renovar la expedicion desde la Havana, se le diese alguna tropa con que reforzar las guarniciones de la Luisiana y Mobila, y desde allí, se hallase una oportunidad feliz, empeñar para un nuevo esfuerzo à los habitantes

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS WITH AMERICA.

- 1781 A.D. [5796] SACKVILLE (George Germain, 1st Viscount).
Secretary of State for the Colonies during the American War of Independence.

Letter signed as Secretary of State for the Colonies, to the Commissioners for restoring Peace.

2 pp., folio. Whitehall, 7th March, 1781.

£6 10s

An important historical letter concerning an application from the American Colonies for pardon and restoration to the privileges of British Subjects.

" . . . I shall be very happy to carry to the King an Application to you from any of the revolted provinces for pardon and restoration to the privileges of British Subjects.

"The narrow Limits to which you have reduced your exceptions and the generality of the assurances you have given of a restoration of the former constitutions were, I doubt, not well considered and judged necessary and expedient, but as there are many things in the Constitutions of some of the Colonies, and some things in all which the people have always wished to be altered, it is necessary to be attentive that neither your Acts or Declarations preclude any Disquisition of such subjects." Etc.

the results of numerous inquiries addressed to whaling captains, especially to those who frequented the Coasts of Labrador and Greenland.

The last section, occupying 90 pp., is especially valuable, as it contains the "Journal of a Voyage in 1775, to explore the coast of America, Northward of California, by the Second Pilot of the Fleet, Don Francisco Antonio Maurelle, in the King's Schooner, called the Sonora, and commanded by Don Juan Francisco de la Bodega." This comprises Maurelle's dairy, which he claimed "served as the only record for later Navigators."

Other curious Essays comprise:—Whether the Turkey was known before the Discovery of America; Account of Mozart, a very remarkable young musician; Accounts of Mr. Charles Wesley and Master Samuel Wesley; On the Torpidity of the swallow tribe when they disappear (the belief that swallows hibernated under the ice during winter); etc.

1781 A.D. [5799] [BLAKE (Admiral).] Remarks on Com. Johnstone's Account of his Engagement with a French Squadron, under the Command of Mons. de Suffrein, on April 16, 1781, in Port Praya Road, in the Island of St. Jago.

8vo, uncut, and sewed as issued, enclosed in buckram case.

London, J. Debrett, 1781.

Sabin, 36395.

From 1763-1767 Johnstone was Governor of West Florida, with his headquarters at Pensacola. In 1779 he was appointed Commodore of a small squadron and early in 1781 was given the command of a small expedition being sent against the Cape of Good Hope. On the Journey he put into Porto Praya in the Cape Verde Islands and at a moment when his fleet was in a general muddle the French Commander Suffrein appeared on the scene and immediately attacked, only being supported, however, by one of his vessels. Johnstone was fortunate in being able to drive him off but made no attempt to follow up his success until too late, although Suffrein's vessel was practically disabled. Johnstone was a hot-headed and incompetent man and fond of criticising the exploits of some of his more famous naval contemporaries. In 1778 he had been appointed one of the commissioners to treat with the American Colonies, but attempted to seduce one of the American commissioners and was obliged to withdraw from the Commission. Several references are made to naval movements in the West Indies.

With the original autograph signature of Miss Anna Seward at the end of the Poem.

Major André was chosen by Sir Hy Clinton to conduct the negociations with General Benedict Arnold for the surrendering of West Point Fortress, was captured in the American lines when dressed as a civilian, and was hung as a spy. He was, perhaps, the best loved officer in the British Army, and his execution caused a storm of feeling against Washington, who, however, had performed his duty at a great sacrifice to his own feelings. Miss Seward was one of André's earliest friends, and her work shews considerable poetical merit, and contains valuable biographical notes.

With engraved frontispiece showing the four parts of the world figuratively, a large number of woodcuts of costumes, and folding engraved map of the world.

8vo, half calf. Nuremberg, 1781.

On pages 1079 to 1210 America north and south is very carefully described, both historically and geographically, and 30 woodcuts are devoted to pictures of American Indians, including those of New Mexico, California, Florida, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, New England, and Canada.

It is interesting to note that according to this book (which was very up to date and revised in 1781), the greatest rarities of New York are: I. A kind of costly porcelain which the wild Indians make out of small shells. II. A kind of root which is found here and which is an antidote against rattlesnake poison. III. The black snake which is the swiftest amongst all the snakes which are found here, its bite is neither poisonous or dangerous. If one shows it a stick or attempts to attack it it turns round quickly and flees. If one, however, runs away and has not the courage to oppose it then the snake curls round the man's feet so that he must fall, then it bites him several times in the leg, or wherever it can reach him and then goes back on its way. This snake has the power to charm birds and squirrels, because if it is lying under a tree and looks at a bird or a squirrel which is sitting on the top then the bird or squirrel must come down from the tree straight into its jaws and it then swallows it. The rattlesnakes do the same.

With regard to New England there are many notes about tobacco and about the strange costume of the Indians who place coloured ribbons and pieces of tobacco pipes in their ears for ornament.

- 1782 A.D. [5805] CRUDEN (John). Autograph Letter Signed to His Excellency Sir Henry Clinton regarding the capture of an English Vessel, the "Lady Mansfield," by an American Privateer, in the Gulf Passage from Jamaica bound for London, a Report of the Preparations then being made by General Campbell of Jamaica to put the Island in a State of defence against a combined attack from the Spaniards and French, and news of a revolt against Spain in Caraccas.

6 pp., 4to. Charles Town, 19th February, 1782.

An extremely interesting letter. The author writes:—

"He informs me that Govenor Dalling was on board one of the British Frigates, that General Campbell Commanded at Jamaica, and that he was straining every Nerve to put the Island in a State of Defence, that the Spaniards had completed Barracks in Cumberland Bay in the Island of Cuba a place opposite to Port Antonio in Jamaica, equal to receive 10,000 men and that in Jamaica they expected an attack from the Combined Force of France and Spain. Admirals Graves, Rauley and Parker, were all in Kingston Harbour, and the first of which had not been on Shore from the time of His Arrival. The Master of the Rebel privateer informed Mr. Schaw that Don Galvez was certainly gone to Consult with the French Commanders and that they were confident of being able to carry the Island of Jamaica.

"On board of the Lady Mansfield was a passenger a Mr. Owens, formerly of Carolina and who was lately a prisoner with the Spaniards in Cuba who informs me that an expedition intended for St. Augustine was obliged to sail for So. America in order to quel a Revolt in that country. Mr. Owens says that the Insurrection is truly serious and alarming, that the Insurgents assembled, are in three large Bodies the first in the Kingdom of Peru, next Chile, and the other on the Borders of the Carracas, and that they have murdered many of the Kings officers in the latter Province.

“Anxious to do my utmost for the good of my country, I offered sometime ago to raise a Corps to consist of 700 men at my own expense but Col. Balfour did not think himself authorized to accept of the offer without your Excellys previous Sanction.

“I meant to raise them from Amongst the people that were employed by me in various parts of the Province, and who escaped from the Barbarous Bandittie that overrun the country, and from the North and South Carolina Refugees, and by oining a few Companys of determined Negroes, and to employ them as a Corps of Independent Marrines. The knowledge I have of the people in the South Provinces leaves me no room to doubt that I should if your Excelly approves of my plan make many good and Loyal men very useful.” Etc., etc.

“The Lady Mansfield, Commanded by Captn Robert Schaw, sailed from Kingston the 16th ulto in Company with a fleet of Ten Sail consisting of Two Frigates and Eight private Ships, all Bound to London. In their passage through the Gulph they fell in with Two Ships of the line, one Frigate and an American privateer. The British frigate immediately made the Signal for all the vessells to scatter and make the best of their way, in doing which the American privateer came up and made a Prize of the Lady Mansfield and informed the Master that the Ships of the line were Spanish, and the Frigate French bound to Hispaniola with his Excelly Don Galvez on board and upwards of One Million Sterling in Specie. . . . The American Privateer having many prisoners with a considerable sum in Specie on board pillaged the Brig. and gave her up to the Master and Crew not being able to spare men to Navigate her. Mr. Schaw, the Master of my vessel, very prudently rather than attempt to prosecute the voyage to London brought her here.

The first voyage contains an account of de Pagès' voyage from France to New Orleans, and a long account of his journey through Louisiana up the Mississippi, along the Red River, up to Natchitoches, and his stay in that place. His journey from Natchitoches across Texas, to San Antonio, his stay amongst the Adaissees, and at Nequadoch. Journey from San Antonio to the Rio Grande, and crossing at Laredo into Mexico, and on to Saltillo. Then via Charcas, San Luis Potosi, etc., to Mexico City, and so to Acapulco. The journey through America occupies 130 pp., and contains many interesting details of the places visited, and of the Indians. From Acapulco, the author sails to Guam (Marianna Islands), and after a stay there, on to the Philippines, stopping at Manilla, then back to France, via Bombay (with an account of that part of India) Mesopotamia and Palestine. A very fine folding map is given of the route through Louisiana, Texas, and Mexico.

The plates include a fine large whaling scene.

An interesting episode in the history of the West Indies. James Cockburn had seen thirty-six years meritorious service, he fought under Wolff at Quebec and in the subsequent conquest of Canada, and in the American campaigns of 1775-6, including the battles of Bunker's Hill and White Plains. Later he was promoted to the command of the Island of St. Eustatius, which had been captured from the Dutch, but on Nov. 26, 1781, he was surprised by a small French Naval Squadron, and captured together with his garrison. For this he was tried by a general court-martial, and cashiered, dying soon afterwards.

3½ pp., 4to. 18th October, 1784.

£5 5s

A most interesting political letter concerning the debate in Parliament on the preliminary articles of peace, relative to the cession of Florida to Spain, when the greater part of the English population left the province and went into the adjoining States.

"Your papers purport the decision of the point of right by Lord North, an opinion which, however respectable, it would yet be wise to ascertain, and establish by reference to the History of that Settlement in general. . . ."

"The Degree of force which menaces the Tribes, or the Settlements; the natural means of defense, or opportunities of succour, do not appear in these papers.

"But I think the nature of the subject, whatever may be its situation in those respects, make it the fit subject of direct communication with Spain. Your subjects have a settlement there of long standing under express and avowed regulation of your Governor of Jamaica, which they hold under the Tribes. The latter have a claim to the countenance which useful and old allies may naturally expect. Your Interest is to a certain degree, I don't know the extent of it, engaged in the Protection of both: and the National Honour is also engaged directly in providing for the safety of your Subjects, indirectly perhaps in the rest." Dionisio Alcala Galiano, brigadier in the Spanish Navy, was born at Cabra, Cordoba, in 1762, and died in 1805 at the Battle of Trafalgar. He entered the Navy in 1775, and on account of his special talent for science, was sent on various scientific expeditions, one of the earliest being the expedition to the Strait of Magellan (described in this manuscript) under the command of Don Antonio de Cordoba. Two years later, he was commissioned to accompany Tofiño's expedition to the Azores and to assist in charting these islands; while the following year, 1789, he joined Malaspina's expedition of more ambitious scope, which, following the programme of Cook and La Pérouse, proposed to make a tour round the world. During that voyage he accompanied Malaspina on the Descubierta, and made many valuable nautical and astronomical observations; and, at Malaspina's suggestion to the Viceroy of New Spain, Galiano was placed in charge of two schooners, the Sutil and Mejicana, for the purpose of exploring the Strait of Fuca with a view to ascertaining whether that was the channel, indicated by Ferrer-Maldonado, which led from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

Galiano was reputed to be the first man to solve in a precise and original manner "the problem of finding the latitude by means of the height of the polestar observed at any distance from the meridian."

When war broke out between England and Spain, he conducted a vessel from Veracruz to Cadiz, forcing his way through the blockade. During the Battle of Trafalgar, where he was mortally wounded in the head, he commanded the warship Bahama "with much valour and heroism." He left a Memoria on the subject of latitude, and another on the calculation by trigonometry of the height of mountains. Accounts of his voyages to the Azores, Fuca and the Magellan Straits, have been published. Navarrete devotes seven pages of his Biblioteca Maritima Española to Galiano, adding: "Much more could be said of him in addition to these notes, if his scientific works and personal merits were not already so well known through the medium of many publications."

The expedition to the Magellan Strait, of which Galiano gives so excellent an account in this manuscript, was commissioned for this purpose "of making an exact survey of the strait and dispelling the many doubts that exist with regard to the openings and unknown channels, a point of great moment to navigation and geography." Instructions were received by Captain Antonio de Cordoba on the 1st September, 1785, sent by the King of Spain through Admiral Luis de Cordoba, Commander-in-Chief of the Royal Armada, to prepare a frigate and a smaller vessel for the voyage. They were to make for the strait as quickly as possible and explore as much as possible while the southern summer lasted, proceeding later to the port of Concepcion in Chile, where they were to spend the winter; and, when the season permitted, returning to the Strait from west to east, whence they were to return to Europe. The order was that the Commander should take with him a captain or lieutenant as second-in-command, and two officers well versed in astronomical observations. "Consequently, he chose the frigate Nuestra Señora de la Asumpcion, of French construction, lined with copper and fitted out for navigating in the Mediterranean. Indeed, the quantity of sail aboard this ship and the condition it was in, promised a speedy voyage to the Strait. Not finding a smaller suitable vessel to accompany the frigate and carry sufficient supplies for the crew, the commander notified the Court, stating that, in the event of their failing to provide such a vessel, he would equip his launch for the survey and navigation of the interior of the Strait. On the 6th of the same month the order was communicated to Lieutenant Alexandro Belmonte and me, that we should leave the frigate Sta. Lucia (where we were under the orders of Brigadier Don Vicente Tofiño, who had been commissioned to make a chart of the coast of Spain) and go aboard the Asumpcion, and her commander ordered us to give him a report of the astronomical and mathematical instruments we should require for carrying out our commission. We asked for one of the six collection made in London under the direction of Señor Juan Jacinto Magallanes for the use of our court, two of Fernand Berthoud's mariner's clocks for longitude, including the No. 10 on account of its accuracy and table of temperature.

"On the 17th an order came from the Court, forbidding the choice of a copper-lined frigate (such as the Asumpcion) and on that day, the commandant selected and took command of the frigate Sta. Maria de la Cabeza, of the same tonnage and construction as the other. On the 26th the commander chose the crew, and on the 27th, the artillery being mounted and the ammunition on board, she was towed by the carack, with a garrison of thirty men; and there being insufficient wind to sail, she was moored close to the Puerta de la Clica, in front of the citadels of Puntales and Fort Luis to water and collect supplies.

"As far as we were concerned, Don Alexandro Belmonte and I, detailed for astronomical observations had, since the 7th, set in motion our Berthoud clocks Nos. 7, 9, 12, 14, 15 and 16, which were in the observatory at Cadiz. Don Vicente Tofiño considered the No. 10 indispensable to the continuation of his commission. We noted that the best clocks were the Nos. 15 and 16, judging by a series of calculations by the sun, which we had taken almost incessantly from the 7th to the 29th, the No. 16 being the most accurate and regular in its movement. On the 1st October the clocks were taken on board the frigate and set in motion. As the observatory was not visible from the frigate, it was not possible to signal to her and compare the clocks with the astronomical pendulum . . . we were therefore obliged to adopt the means of comparing the pendulum with a reloj de Arnold de Faltriguera [a watch] which Belmonte bought, go on board immediately, compare it with the clocks and returning on shore, make a third comparison; and the clocks having been proportionately adjusted to the pendulum, observe whether they had altered.

"On the 3rd October there was a review on board the frigate, and on the 5th the troops and crew received four lots of pay, while the officers received eight sums each. . . .

"On the afternoon of the 6th the frigate Lucia entered port from Algeciras, and the next day, Brigadier Don Vicente Tofiño handed us, by order of the Court, the collection of instruments. During the time from when the clocks were taken on board until the 7th either my companion or I went on board daily to wind them up, and when the tide did not permit of this, the mate on guard was given a key and shown how to wind them up. . . . On the 8th while transferring the collection of instruments on board, the glass tube in the barometer burst and all the quicksilver was spilt. It had not been knocked, and it seems that it had either not been properly purified, or the quantity was not right, and therefore, to our regret, we were deprived of the use of this precious instrument."

Following upon the statement that the crew had received their pay in advance, his next record is amusingly naive: "We would have sailed on the 8th but for the fact that 96 seamen were missing! We fired some guns to recall them and hauled the main top-sails, but to no purpose. We therefore were obliged to remain until the 9th, and although we were still thirty men short, we set sail at six in the morning on an outgoing tide and with a lax north-east wind; and during the morning, little boats continued to arrive with some of the missing sailors, so that eventually the number missing was reduced to 14."

With equal wealth of detail and conscientious precision, Galiano records the story of his expedition; and although his position on board demanded special attention to the scientific aspect of the voyage, he does not allow this to obscure the historical view.

They touched at the Cabo de las Virgenes, the mouth of the Strait of Magellan about the 20th December, 1785, where they noticed many candeladas [sudden blaze from straw or brushwood], on which he comments, "its use seems to be general amongst the Indians of this continent as with those of Tierra del Fuego [Land of Fire] and it was this which moved the earliest navigators to give that name to this vast archipelago." The experiences within the Strait are described with much charm and scrupulous care, his references to Sarmiento's earlier records being of special interest. Many interesting pages are devoted to their meeting with the Patagonian and other Indians; the land, mountains, birds and snow of the bleak district which they surveyed; but above all, it is a work of the utmost geographical interest and of considerable importance, in spite of the fact that Galiano himself was preceded—in point of time—by Magellan, Drake and Sarmiento. He refers to a bottle which was found by a sailor in February, 1786, when he and his companion were making observations for a plan of the Strait. This bottle contained a Latin inscription commemorating the voyage of Bougainville in 1768. "We thought we would copy out this inscription—we have not been able to find Wallis's bottle which passed through this Strait the previous year and which perhaps will remain, as is stated thereon: 'Monument which may remain in this place until the ending of the world.' We also, wishing to leave a record of our visit, made an inscription which we placed in a bottle under a heap of stones," at Santa Cruz, and this inscription, like that of Bougainville, contained a list of the expeditionary party.

There is a summary of the observations made in the Magellan Strait, and additional notes, the text ending with the entry for Sunday, the 11th June, 1786, when they arrived at Cadiz.

At the end of the book there are five manuscript maps: "Creek of Villena, to the north of the Magellan Strait"; "Plan of the Port of Guayror"; "Plan of Ancon de Posadas"; "Plan of Galiano Bay"; "Plan of Ponce Bay"; which were designed by Galiano, Capt. Miera, Ensign Joaquin Blanco, and the second pilot, Don Antonio Castellanos.

land as adjutant to his regiment, and was severely wounded at the Brandywine River. At this period he offered to raise a special corps of Negroes for service at Boston, but his offer was not accepted. On 15 Oct. 1777 he was nominated major commandant of a new provisional corps called the Queen's Rangers, composed almost entirely of American Loyalists, which he brought to a high state of efficiency, and which was continually in action during the years 1777-1783, and was conspicuous by the self-restraint exercised in victory. Simcoe strongly urged the adoption of Indian scouting methods. He was captured in 1779, released, and again taken prisoner with Lord Cornwallis at Gloucester Point in 1781, and returned to England, invalided, in Dec. 1781. In 1791, on the division of the Canadas, he was appointed the first Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada, where he served with great distinction. In 1806 he was appointed Commander-in-Chief in India, but died before he could assume that post.

“Fathers Serra and Palou were among the earliest of the Catholic missionaries sent to California; they established the first missions in that country which had a great influence upon the natives, and brought most of the tribes under their control. The letters from Father Serra to Father Palou, which chiefly make up the volume, give not only an account of the founding of the missions but interesting details of the various Indian tribes, their manners and customs, together with descriptions of the country.” This book is valuable as the only contemporary biography and relation of Serra's activities—the subject-matter of various nineteenth and twentieth century works, containing the very scarce engraved map. The author states that he wrote the book “in the new Mission at the port of San Francisco, amongst gentile barbarians, without the aid of books, or the companionship of learned men with whom to consult.” Fray Francisco Palou, who was a native of Palma, and a pupil of Serra, accompanied him to America and was his constant companion during the whole course of his career as a missionary in California. After Serra's death, Palou returned to Mexico, where he became the Superior of the Franciscan Convent of San Fernando. He died at the college of Sta. Cruz de Queretaro in 1789. Fray Junipero Serra was a Franciscan, who was born at Villa de Petra, Majorca, in 1713, of humble parentage. He was baptized on the day of his birth (24th November), receiving the names of Miguel Joseph; and from his earliest years, was encouraged in his religious training by his devout parents. He assumed the name of Junipero, after the companion of Saint Francis, on completing his novitiate in 1731. His indomitable zeal overcame his physical disadvantages: he mentioned himself that he was "always so ill, and so small of stature, that I could not reach the chorister's desk, or help my fellow novitiates in their daily round of duties, but was employed by the Father Maestro to assist with the Mass"—and enabled him to realize his great ambition to go out to America and convert the natives, regardless of hardships, of which he endured many, one notable example being his walk from Veracruz to Mexico.

He was at one time professor of Theology at the Lullian University of Majorca; and subsequently became Commissary of the Holy Office for the whole of New Spain, President and Founder of the Mission in Upper and Lower California, and founder of the Establecimientos of Monterey.

He left Cadiz with his fellow missionaries on 28th August, 1749, and arrived at Veracruz on 6th December; and the thirty-five years that followed were dedicated to the work of founding the Missions at San Carlos, San Gabriel, San Antonio, San Luis Obispo, San Francisco de Asis, San Juan Capistrano, Santa Clara and San Buenaventura; travelling incessantly (and usually on foot) in the pursuit of his object, leading an exemplary life, and overcoming the opposition of certain Spanish officials in California to gain his desired end. He died at Monterey on 28th Aug., 1784.

An interesting series of letters relating to Rodney's capture of the Dutch West Indian island St. Eustatius. Immediately on war breaking out with Holland in 1781, Rodney was given orders to attack this island. The Dutch there were expecting no hostilities and the island was at once taken, together with merchandize to the value of two to three million pounds. Much of this treasure belonged to the English merchants there, whom Rodney accused of being traitors for supplying the revolting American Colonies with goods. Most of the booty was shipped to England, falling however into the hands of the French on the way. Numerous law proceedings were started in England against Rodney, on his return, so he published these documents to show his actual proceedings at the capture of St. Eustatius.

With 22 engraved plates and charts.

4to, original calf. London, Goulding, 1789.

£5 5s

Three visits were paid to the Hawaiian Islands, the second being for a period of three and a half months; and long accounts of the Islands are given. The most important result of the voyage was the exploration work done along the N.W. Coast, particularly at Queen Charlotte Island. Captain Cook had already denoted the general outline of the coast, but the detail was still wanting, and much of this was filled in by Dixon. Both Portlock and Dixon had sailed with Cook in the Resolution. This voyage was made for obtaining furs. The ships separated and worked independently of each other. Portlock also issued an account with exactly the same title, but of course covering different ground. Dixon's account was actually written by his supercargo, Mr. Wm. Beresford.

1789 A.D. [5884] COOPER (Rev. Mr.). The History of North America. Second Edition. 2 vols., 8vo, fine copy in the original calf, gilt backs. London, printed for William Lane, 1791.

Sabin, 1367. This edition is rather better produced than that of 1789; the next edition, 1792, bore the author's name.

"Mr. Thos. Anburey, the author of these travels, was an officer under Gen. Burgoyne, and whose conduct, in his unfortunate campaign, one object of this publication appears to have been to vindicate. The Monthly Reviewer states: "He sometimes diverts us with anecdotes concerning the speeches, customs, or manners of the people, as he passed among them, which, though droll, or even ridiculous enough, are of that kind to which something similar may be met with in all countries." Anburey obtained some of his information from Burgoyne's Narrative, also from Burnaby, Peters, and Smyth.

1791 A.D. [5913] BRISSOT DE WARVILLE (J. P.). Nouveau Voyage dans les Etats-Unis de l'Amerique Septentrionale, fait en 1788.

Sabin, 8035.

"The author came to the U.S.A. just before the French Revolution, for the purpose of selecting a suitable place for establishing a colony of respectable persons, who had determined to abandon the then despotic government of France. M. Brissot was commissioned to collect every necessary information, prior to the execution of the plan. These volumes contain the result of his assiduous labours and minute enquiries, and sufficiently manifest that he was qualified to accomplish such an arduous undertaking."

"From the protesta of the author and the space allotted to the life of Father Antonio Margil de Jesus it seems possible that the immediate cause of the publication of this work was the active proceedings taken in that particular year, 1792, in the Causa of his beatification.

The entire first book is devoted to the life of Father Antonio Margil de Jesus, while book II contains the lives of other illustrious members of the College, many of whom had been active in Texas. A long account is given of Fr. Francisco Hidalgo.

Pages 321-386 contains an account of the missions of Texas down to the time of the visit of the Marqués de Rubi, and pages 394-444 the history of the missions of Sonora beginning with the entry of the Franciscan Fathers into that province in 1768.

Book IV contains the account of Father Garcés, with his various journeys and final massacre on the River Colorado. For a long time this book was the principal, in fact only source for the history of the travels of Father Garcés and his two expeditions to California. To-day, however, we have the diaries of these expeditions, which have to a large extent superseded this work; nevertheless the author has extracted from the said diaries most of what is of any great importance."

The first voyage contains an account of de Pagès' journey from France to New Orleans, and a long relation of his journey through Louisiana, up the Mississippi, along the Red River, and up to Nachitoches, with his stay in that place. His journey across Texas or Tegas from Nachitoches to San Antonio. Visit to the Adaisse Indians, and at Naquadock. Journey to Laredo on the Rio Grande, and so into Mexico; passing via Saltillo, Charcas, San Luis Potosi, etc., to Mexico City, and on to Acapulco. From here the author sails to Guam (Marianas) and to the Philippines, and back to France via Bombay (with an account of that part of India), Mesopotamia, and Palestine.

The author makes numerous observations on the manners and customs of the natives of Texas, and on the places he visited there. Especially amusing is his account of the conversion of the Indians by the Franciscan Missionaries. In recruiting from the savages "they use the thong, and lace them like wild horses. As soon as a savage has been caught, he is bound hand and foot and carried to the residence of a Missionary, who makes it his business, by threats, persuasion, severe fasting, gentleness, last of all by marriage, to tame and civilize the manners of his prisoner. Having been instructed in the existence of a Supreme Being, Providence, and the more peculiar doctrines of Christianity, he is admitted to the privilege of baptism."

This work contains the history of the Mission of the United Brethren among the Indians in North America. "The labours of this Mission lay chiefly among the Delawares, the Nautikokes, the Shawanese, and other tribes in Pennsylvania and New York, upon which it is the best authority, both as to tradition and facts, having been drawn up from the accounts furnished by Gottlieb Spangenberg and David Zeisberger, missionaries among the Indian tribes during forty years. Among the subjects narrated is that of the Massacre of Gnadenhutzen and Salem." This Swedish account is two years earlier than the English account.

Of great historical interest, sending Washington's orders against privateering and mentioning the names of some privateering vessels.

In 1793 Washington issued his proclamation of neutrality in the war between France and England. In violation, privateers were fitted out in the United States, notably at Charleston. Believing the privateers might lead to war with England, Washington issued, through the War Department, this strict order to preserve neutrality.

"It has been heretofore made known that the fitting out of privateers in the ports of the United States was considered as incompatible with our present state of neutrality. The executive, after trying other measures in vain to prevent a continuance of the practice, finds itself at length constrained to resort to means more decisive than have been hitherto employed. To avoid therefore a further infraction of our rights, and a further commitment of our peace, the President of the United States, after mature deliberation, has decided that no armed vessel, which has been or shall be originally fitted in any part of the United States as a cruiser or privateer by either of the parties at War, is to have Asylum in any of the ports of the United States. . . .

"And the President has further directed me to request that in case any such vessel shall have sent or brought subsequent to the fifth instant, or should hereafter send or bring any prizes into any port or harbour of your State, that you would cause such prize or prizes to be immediately secured by the Militia for the purpose of being restored to the former owners." Etc.

A most important series of Official Documents, dealing with the aftermath of the American War for Independence, and showing the distrust of the newly emancipated Colony for the Mother Country.

" . . . Last summer was spent in fruitless negotiations with the Indians, for the Congress were of opinion, that the best time for obtaining favourable terms of peace with them, was, after they had beaten us twice in the field, & were flushed with success; The Indians, however, refused to treat with our Commissioners, unless they would agree, to make the River Ohio the boundary between them and the United States, instead of the middle of the Lakes, which was fixed on, as the boundary by the treaty of peace with Great Britain. When the season for acting was past, our small Army was ordered to march against the Indians and we are in daily apprehensions of hearing of its defeat, as the Indians have had much time to prepare themselves.

" Our newspapers magnify the Bankruptcies in England, and a number of those who are disposed for a Revolution. So little do the people here understand the state of your Country, that they affirm that all the bankruptcies have been occasioned by the capture of Vessels by the French, and the loss of the trade, which England had with that nation. I think England was never in so great danger as at present, having so many enemies at home, as well as abroad, for if the friends of the French Revolution among you, should succeed in prevailing on Govt. to desist in the present War, it would no sooner cease in France, than it would begin in England, as the Revolutionists among you, who correspond with the French mob, would seize the first moment of peace, to bring over half a million of Assassins, and needy Villians, from France, who with the help of your own mob, might overturn the Government, and expose all the property of the Nation to pillage, as they have done in their own Country; so that nothing can save our Government, but the continuance of the War, which cuts off all their communication, between your Revolutioners & their Brethren the Sans Culottes. Your people seem to be liberty-mad, but if they would come over, to this country, they would be cured of their fondness for it, by seeing how little people have got it. A friend of mine, who lately made an excursion to Canada, this summer, informed me, on his return, that he found many Emigrants, from the states of New York, Vermont, Massachusetts, and Connecticut, in that Country, who assured him, that many thousands of their Country-men who had fought through all the last war, to avoid becoming British subjects, had now of their own accord, settled in Canada, & taken the oaths to the British Government, altho' it is absolute in that Country, having left Liberty, Equality, and the rights of Man, their former Idols, behind them; and what is still a greater Satyre on the friends of Liberty and Republicanism, he likewise assured me, that great numbers of Irishmen, who had abandoned their own Country, for want of Liberty, & a Reform of Parlt. on finding their Settlement, in the United States, difficult, by the extorsions of the Land-Jobbers, had settled in Canada where they had no Parlt. to reform. They could not endure the British Government in Ireland, where it was limited by law, but they have readily submitted to it in Canada, where it is absolute and unlimited. Altho, one of their professed design of emigration was to avoid paying tythes to the Protestant Clergy, yet they readily submit to pay tythes to the Roman-Catholic priesthood. I had heard of these things, several years ago, but did not believe them, and I am now assured that Emigration to Canada still continues, & that numbers have emigrated this present year." Etc.

"It is said here that the British vessels, in the Delawar, are to be seized by way of an indemnification for 111 American vessels, seized by the English Fleet, in the West Indies. There is another Scheme of those who have been provoking a war against Great Britain, ever since the French Revolution, altho Genet is disgraced, and his party in France executed, yet the mischief that he did here, is likely to remain. He has taken the oaths to our States, in order to prevent his being apprehended by his successor, and sent to France. I hope the violence and barbarity of the French, and their declared resolution, to annihilate England, have reconciled your people to the War against France. If your Fleet and Army succeed in the West Indies, it will have the best effect in this Country, as our people will naturally side with the Victors, in that Quarter. Should our people still think of going to war, the English fleet, if they drive the French out of the West Indies, will have it in their power, to burn our Sea ports, one after another, in spite of any thing that the United States, & the Sans Cullottes could do to prevent it. Our people indeed, talk of fortifying their ports, but they forget that they were all taken last war, after all the care that has been taken to fortify them. If the English did not then burn their towns, it was only because they hoped to possess them, but it cannot be expected, that they would be restrained by this consideration, when they make war against us as a Foreign Nation. I am at a loss to guess, on what pretensions the English consider our people as Enemies, unless it is, because they have owned a treaty whereby they are obliged to guarantee the possessions of France in the West Indies. But this appears to be very narrow ground, for making a war, as no overt Act has yet taken place on the part of the United States in consequence of their acknowledging the said treaty. The attempts of Genet, to raise an Army in this Country for attacking the English in Canada, and the Spaniards in Florida, have become abortive both by a prohibition, on the part of our Govt. and by the revocation of the Commissions, on the part of the French. If a War should now take place, between Great Britain and this country, I am persuaded it will be a war of passions, on both sides. America might be profitable to England, by taking their Manufactures, if our people could be brought to pay their debts, and England might be profitable to America by furnishing us with such articles, as we could not obtain from any other country, and least of all from France, to which the wild people of our Country would wish to confine all our Commerce. I hope that the interest of the British merchants, who have such large sums due to them, in this country, will prevent England from making war on us; Those, however, who are deepest in debt in England, are the most eager for a war, in hopes of getting free of their debts. Hence the reason, why they cry out that those of us, who are for peace, are under the influence of Great Britain. The blind attachment of the people here, who are in the interest of the Sans Cullottes, places this Country in danger of an intestine, as well as of a Foreign War. . . .

“The consequence of a war with England would be fatal to this country, and would reduce our people, to the condition of Naked Savages, for I believe, there is not as much wool in this Country, as would furnish all its Citizens with Caps of Liberty. The French party here, talk big on account of the evacuation of Toulon, without reflecting that their Marine have suffered more, from that event than from the two last wars with Great Britain, and that they have gained nothing but what was their own, before.” Etc.

Sabin, 56007. Medina, 5649. Cowan, p. 198.

The first letter only. This important work, written by a Dominican Monk at the San Miguel Mission, California, gives most important details concerning California, and the author attempts to correct some of the mistakes made by Venegas. These letters, together, or separate, are exceedingly scarce, as they were suppressed by order of the King.

THE FOUNDATION OF THE BRITISH CLAIM TO OREGON.

1794 A.D. [5948] MEARES (Capt. John). Voyages de la Chine à la Côte Nord-Ouest d'Amerique, fait dans les années 1788 et 1789; Précédés de la relation d'un autre Voyage executé en 1786 sur le vaisseau le Nootka, parti du Bengale; d'un Recueil d'Observations sur la Probabilité d'un Passage Nord-Ouest; et d'un Traité abrégé du Commerce entre la Côte Nord-Ouest et la Chine, etc. Traduits par J. B. L. J. Billecocq.

With an Atlas containing an engraved portrait of Meares; 10 important engraved folding maps of parts of the N.W. coast of America, Alaska, British Columbia, Queen Charlotte Is., Vancouver Islands, and Oregon, etc.; and 17 engraved plates, including view of the entrance to Strait of Juan de Fuca, view of Macao, portraits of natives of Hawaii and Vancouver Is., views at Nootka Sound, various views of headlands, etc.

3 vols., 8vo, and 1 vol. 4to, contemporary half calf. Paris, F. Buisson, 1794.

Sabin, 47262. Cowan, Californian Bibliography, p. 152. Martin, Essai de Bibliographie Hawaïenne, p. 11.

"This narrative is a most important work. It was on these discoveries by Meares that the claim of Great Britain to Oregon mainly depended. In the treaty between England and Spain which followed the Nootka affair the Spanish claims were disallowed, and the Spanish withdrew. Subsequently, in the arbitration on the Oregon question, England finally yielded to the United States much territory claimed under the discoveries made by Meares."

Like his French contemporary Capt. Péron, Meares was also engaged on the fur trade between British Columbia and Canton. His vessels were seized by the Spaniards at Nootka Sound, who claimed all that coast as Spanish. War nearly broke out between England and Spain over the question, and Spain had to give way.

1794 A.D. [5949] FRASER (General Simon, killed 1777). The Burial of General Fraser at Behmisse Heights, 1777, where he was mortally wounded.

Large plate showing the body being lowered in the grave, chaplain reading the service, group of officers standing round, battle scene in distance to left.

A very important work. "Of this first and best edition there are copies on large paper. It was the first of a long series of Arctic Voyages and Travels which reflect so much honour on the British Press. Its publication is due to the celebrated French navigator La Perouse, who captured Fort Albany, Hudson's Bay, and found the Manuscript of Hearne. The fort was afterwards surrendered to the British, but La Perouse stipulated for the publication of this work by the Hudson's Bay Company, which stipulation was honourably fulfilled in this beautiful volume. The author will always be remembered as the first white man that ever gazed on the dreary expanse of the Arctic or Frozen Ocean from the Northern shores of the Continent of America."

Moreau-Saint-Méry was born at Port Royal, Martinique, in 1750. At the age of 19 he went to Paris, where he became a Counsellor of State, and a great advocate of reforms in the French colonies & in the better treatment of the blacks. Hearing that Robespierre intended to have him arrested he fled from France and in 1793 went to the United States. Having lost all his property he turned his attention to business and established himself at Philadelphia as a bookseller and printer. In 1798 he was able to return to France, where he finally died in 1819. His works on the Island of Santo Domingo & other parts of the West Indies, are of great interest.

PLANNING THE CONQUEST OF CHILE FROM NEW SOUTH WALES.

- 1798 A.D. [5976] Original Manuscript Report from the Archives of Henry Dundas, 1st Viscount Melville, Secretary of War, 1794-1801; Treasurer of the Navy, 1782-1800; First Lord of the Admiralty, 1804-5; endorsed: "Project for taking possession of the Spanish Settlement at Chili, with a Sketch of the Commercial Advantages which would arise to Great Britain from the Measure."

21 pp., folio. Circa 1798.

An extremely interesting and important manuscript putting forward plans for the conquest of Chile by British forces using as their base the then recently founded settlement of Port Jackson, New South Wales. The paper is water-marked with the date 1796, and the document was drawn up shortly after that date.

The author writes, "My object is to point out the easy and certain means of acquiring a Possession which cannot fail of opening a most lucrative and extensive trade to this Country; or, if this should be looked upon as a Consideration secondary to that of offering a most important Restitution to one of the Powers at War, the alternative may be adopted with great advantage at the Time of a Treaty."

The author then discusses at length the importance and products of Chile, and methods advisable for conducting trade there, and quotes the famous navigator La Perouse concerning the great fertility of the soil there. He criticises previous expeditions which had been sent against South America, and states why the losses incurred were so great.

Among the benefits to be derived from the possession of Chile, the writer states that "Chili would send corn, wine, butter, salt meat, Fruits, leather, and hemp to the Cape of Good Hope. . . The Island of St. Helena might be cheaply and abundantly supplied with all kinds of Provisions, and the Settlement in New South Wales might receive from Chili numberless articles of grain and cattle of which it cannot as yet produce a sufficient quantity to maintain its Inhabitants."

Discussing the ways and means for effecting this conquest, the author considers that the force required should comprise 3 ships of the line, 3 frigates, and 5,500 men. "The general rendezvous . . . to be at the Cape, or, which will put the real object of the Expedition further out of sight, at Port Jackson. The adoption of this Port as the point of rendezvous may furnish an opportunity for taking a force from New South Wales that will supercede the necessity of drawing any troops from India: tho' the Bengal Artillery and the Lancers would be of most important service in such an enterprise. If it should be objected that this latter arrangement would add considerably to the length of voyage, it may be answered, that in point of time, the difference would be comparatively nothing: as the westerly winds which blow regularly from N.S. Wales to the shores of the Pacific Ocean would carry the proposed armament with so much rapidity and certainty to its destination, as far to counterbalance any inconvenience that might be feared from the increase of distance. . . . The junction should be formed in the month of November, . . . the armament might then take advantage of the best season for going round Cape Horn; and the southerly winds which prevail in Decr. in the Pacific Ocean will in a few days bring them to the Bay of Valparaiso which, it is submitted, would be a proper place to effect a landing." Etc.

An unpublished Spanish manuscript.

268 leaves, folio, dark blue morocco, gilt border and arms on sides, gilt back.
g.e., by Hering. 1799.

This manuscript on the northern Border-provinces of New Spain, is divided into three parts: the first, containing descriptions of the various provinces, with chapters on the native races, and the political situation in regard to the Spaniards' Anglo-American neighbours. The second, contains a history of the Apache nations; while the third, deals with other native races, such as the Seris, Pimas, Papagas, living in the vicinity of the Mississippi, Missouri, Colorado, and the coast of Upper California. This last section includes the text of a diary kept by the Padres Silvestre Veley Escalante and Fray Francisco Atanasio Dominguez during expeditions into New Mexico in 1776-7.

The author was a Spanish engineer officer who had served in New Spain; and had studied the political developments in America with some misgivings. The book does not seem to have been published, and is not cited by Palau or Medina.

The index contains the following important indications:—

Part 1. Section 7. On the European Nation which most easily could invade the Spanish Colonies of North-West America.

Section 8. Dangers which the neighbourhood of the Anglo-Americans threaten to the northern part of Spanish America.

Part 2. History of the Apache Indians.

Section 1. Lands occupied by the Apache and other Indians to the north of the Province of New Mexico.

Section 2. Of the beliefs, superstitions, and marriages of the Apaches.

Section 3. Of the Apache language.

Section 4. Of the lands which the Apaches choose for living on and for their cattle.

Section 5. Of their food and drink.

Section 6. Of the Apache clothes.

Section 7. The state of agriculture, arts and trade of the Apache Indians, and the use they make of money.

Section 8. About the commandment of their ranches, the reasons for moving them, and their favourite sport.

Section 9. The reasons for uniting several ranches, and the precautions which are taken for the safety of the territory occupied by the Apaches.

Section 10. Of their grand hunting expeditions.

Section 11. Of the arms used by the Apaches.

Section 12. Of war between the Apaches.

Section 13. The death of an Apache, mourning and funeral.

Part 3. Section 1. Of the Indian tribes dwelling on the east of the Rio Grande.

Section 2. Of the Caribe Indians dwelling on the Coast of Texas and neighbouring islands.

Section 3. Of the tribes on the right bank of the Mississippi, description of the Missouri River and of its banks.

Section 4. Of the tribes dwelling to the east of northern New Mexico and of the tribes of Upper Sonora, of the Seris, Tiburones, and Pepocas, of the Pimas, Papogos and Cocomarcopas.

Section 5. Of the tribes of the Colorado River and of those who dwell on its banks to the west and north-west as far as the coast of Upper California.

Section 6. Of the Indian tribes living on the NNW. of New Mexico.

Section 7. Diary and route of the new discoveries of land to the north and north-east of New Mexico by Fathers Escalante and Dominguez.

1800 A.D. [5994] DOUGLAS (Sir Howard). Wreck of the Transport Phillis on the Coast of Newfoundland.

Manuscript neatly written on 36 pp.

4to, full contemporary straight-grain morocco, g.e. Circa 1800.

£10 10s

The Phillis transport sailed from Cowes for Quebec on 25 August, 1795, and was wrecked off Newfoundland on Oct. 7. The sufferings of the survivors were intensified by their failure to reach a settlement, and an attempted Mutiny of the soldiers, which was stopped by the resolute conduct of Lt. Douglas. The castaways were rescued by a trader and carried to Great Jervis, a remote unvisited fishing station of Labrador, where they passed the winter. Subsequently they were rescued and carried to Halifax, Nova Scotia, where Douglas served three months, thence proceeding to Quebec, where he remained a year, during which time he was employed in command of a small cruiser, scouting for the French Fleet said to be making for Quebec. In 1797 he was detached to Kingston, Upper Canada, where he passed two years chiefly hunting and fishing among the Indians, and was employed by the Canadian Government on a mission to the Cherokees.

Douglas saw much distinguished service and was the author of a number of important naval and military works.

The present manuscript relates to the voyage of the Phillis, and to the adventures of the survivors until their arrival at Halifax.

Diaz del Castillo was one of the Conquistadores who accompanied Cortes in his conquest of Mexico. Dr. Moses, in his Spanish Colonial Literature in South America, remarks: "It is noteworthy that some of the most striking accounts of exploration in Spanish America were written by common soldiers. Bernal Diaz del Castillo, Cieza de León, and Ulrich Schmidel are instances. They interpreted the thoughts and sentiments of the subordinate class, and help one to see how the private soldier or the common man viewed the enterprises in which he was engaged. The position of men of this class made a sharp contrast between their writings and the writings of leaders."

The author spent nearly 25 years in America, saw Washington, in 1774, come to the first Congress fresh from his farm, witnessed his extraordinary career, and in 1797, saw him retire to the private life of an agriculturist. His experience, therefore, enables him to give much information and personal gossip not readily found elsewhere." The portrait of Washington is an interesting one, "Gravé d'après le camée peint par Madame Bréhan à Newyork en 1789." There are also two portraits of Kesketomah, an Onondagua sachem, and of Koohassen, an Oneida warrior. "This work is distinguished by its valuable details on the aboriginal tribes, and their gradual disappearance. No other writer has so well described the Indian great councils, or assemblies, where they deliberate on their public interests."

An interesting Portuguese manuscript giving a contemporary history of the state of Bahia dos Santos and other towns in Brazil, in the form of seven letters from a writer in Bahia to a friend in Lisbon. The first chapter describes the city of Bahia and its history from the earliest times, its produce and trade with Europe; the contemporary conditions of life there; and statistics of official revenue and expenditure. The second chapter continues the description of the city and its buildings, etc.

In the third "letter," the writer discourses upon the political and economic position, and refers to the pitiful straits of the native blind and crippled paupers, particularly to the unhappy lot of old slaves who are left to the doubtful mercy of the world when their masters die, and they are too feeble to work. The fourth treats of public health, and the best means to combat epidemics from which the town frequently suffered. The fifth refers to agriculture and the production of cane sugar. In the sixth letter, a detailed description is given of the fortifications at Salvador and Bahia, and the question of the further development of interior and coastal defences, is dealt with.

The seventh, and last, letter gives a comprehensive account of the military strength of the garrison, with tables of statistics concerning all ranks.

Account of one of the most celebrated vagabonds that ever lived.

Carew (1693-1770?) belonged to the well known family of the Devonshire Carews. His father was Rector of Tiverton. Owing to a school escapade he ran away and joined the gipsies, of whom he finally became the king. After a long series of entertaining swindles he was transported to Maryland and escaped to the woods to the Indians. Later he went to Pennsylvania and at a prayer-meeting passed himself off to the celebrated Whitfield as a Quaker, and received money from him. He then went to New York and other towns, and finally returned to Bristol, England, from New London. He was again transported, and this time got away to Boston. Accounts are given of the people, and various towns visited by him. Carew is said to have dictated this life himself.

Translation:—"New Spain, with the interior Provinces, has a population of 5,764,700 individuals, distributed over 81,114 square leagues of land, which is equal to 71½ inhabitants to the square league. This country being five times bigger than Spain (which has 15,700 square leagues of area with a population of 10 millions), it extends from 16° to 38°, its greatest length from S.S.E. to N.N.W. being 490 nautical leagues of twenty to a degree; and its greatest breadth from east to west at 30° latitude from the river Colorado in Texas as far as the Island of Tiburon, 292 leagues. . . .

"The dimensions stated, have been calculated by Don Juan Jose Oteyza and myself, for which purpose we used the map of this country which I made from my own astronomical observations, and all the available material in this city. He then gives particulars of the snow-covered mountains and the seasons at which the snow thaws, with the consequent effect upon the atmosphere; whilst he attributes the lack of water in the central portion of the Country, to the "scarcity of trees, aggravated since the conquest, the artificial channels, and the scorching sun over extensive plains; which make agriculture impossible in some districts. The coast enjoys more humidity, excepting Yucatan, but the miasma produced by the putrefaction of so many organic parts in a soil so heated by the sun's rays, and other chemical causes which have not yet been fully investigated, produce diseases which, on the east coast, are aggravated by the influx of Europeans and other nations from the Temperate zone. . . . In the northern countries, the Sierra Verde on the East of Timpanagos at 41° of latitude, is the source of two valuable rivers, the River Bravo and the River Colorado, the course of the former being 410 leagues, and that of the latter, 200.

“It is impossible to gauge the exact population of this country before the conquest; for although it was certainly considerable, historians have greatly exaggerated the figures, which frequently happens in newly-discovered countries. . . .”

The writer then gives the statistics which the Viceroy, the Conde de Revilla Gigedo, published in 1793, and the approximate increase in the population during the decade that followed, bringing the total up to five and three-quarter millions.

In giving statistics of the causes of death, he states that the working of mines does not militate against the well-being of the natives, as in Peru, where the Indians are conscribed for work in the mines, and are sent compulsorily from one place to another where the climate varies, and is consequently prejudicial to their health. These Indians were called “Mitarios” (from “mita,” a Peruvian system of distributing native labour for mine service), but they were unknown in the northern provinces of New Spain, where “in no other kind of work do the natives enjoy so much benefit and freedom to enjoy the fruits of their labour as in the working of the mines there.”

“The number of miners in the whole country, including borers, labourers, and those who work with picks, is scarcely thirty thousand; which represents two thirds per cent. of the entire population.

“The taxpayers do not exceed 480,000 in the whole country, in other words eight per cent. In Durango which consists of 121,000 inhabitants, there is not a single taxpayer.

“In the province of Sonora, amongst thirty-eight thousand inhabitants, there are only two hundred and fifty taxpayers; whilst in Sinaloa, in a population of fifty-five thousand, there are about 1,850. The Indian population of New Spain composes two-fifths of the entire population.

“In the northern countries beyond the tropics, with the exception of California and Sonora, there are hardly any Indians; and this is the reason of the scant population, which does not exceed thirteen persons to the square league, whereas in Puebla, where the Indians compose sixty-five per cent. of the population, there are 521 inhabitants to the square league.

“The continual emigration of the northern nations towards the south, even perhaps before the journeys of the Tultecas in the year 648; the Chichimecas and Nahuatlacos in 1170; the Aculhuas and Mexicans or ‘Alztecós’ towards the end of the twelfth century, and the barbaric state in which the entire northern region of Anahuac used to be, did not permit the Europeans to find in those provinces more than a few scattered tribes who retired to Bolson de Napimi, the River Gila and the Navajoa. . . . The Spaniards, or white caste, born of European parents, probably

America apparently had her own problem of the 'superfluous woman' in those days, for the statistician observes: "It is a general opinion in America that in the matter of sexes, nature does not maintain the same balance as in Europe, and that amongst the tropical races, there is an excess of females." He adds, however, that this opinion is not altogether based on fact, and gives the relative numbers of the sexes in the population of various districts. In Sinaloa and Guanajuato they were about equal, whilst in Sonora and California, the males preponderated; but in the cities the females were invariably the more numerous.

Statistics are given of the relative Indian and Spanish population of Peru, Chile, etc. The writer states that the population of Old California is 9,000 to an area of 4,669 square leagues; that of New California, 15,560 to an area of 1,360 leagues, or eleven persons to the square league"; the former, therefore, being shown in a tabular list of provinces as seventh (as to size), New California being placed eighteenth on the list; their order, as regards population, being Mexico first and California last.

He gives a long and interesting account of the principal cities and towns, mentioning that Old California has "four thousand wild Indians, five thousand subdued Indians, and sixteen Missions which are beginning to decline; whilst in New California the population has increased so rapidly that in 1793 the population in both Californias did not exceed 12,666 and in 1801 and 1802 they baptized 4,728 in the eighteen missions. Since 1769 they have baptized 33,717 people." An interesting list of statistics then follows, including the record that there were 17,400 horses in New California, nearly 8,000 head of cattle, 107,000 sheep, etc. A large quantity of wheat, and maize was sown there, and we are told that wine and oil were to be found in San Diego.

1804 A.D. [6029] HOPE (Charles, Lord Granton). Autograph Letter Signed to Henry Dundas, Lord Melville, First Lord of the Admiralty, enclosing a manuscript project entitled "Hints as to the Conduct of this Country, in the event of a Spanish War," suggesting that various settlements be made on the coasts of South America, and in the South Seas, as British trading centres.

document he was Lord Advocate. He assumed his title of Lord Granton a few days later.

In his letter Lord Granton writes concerning a previous conversation he had had with Lord Melville concerning the event of war with Spain, and the prosecution of the war in Mexico and South America, and states, "The Mexican expedition, being more under the control of Government at home, may be more easily officered. The Southern will require the ablest and most confidential officers. I should think that Sir John Warren and John Hope would be excellent Chiefs for that Service." Etc.

In his long manuscript project he states that Spain would be an unwilling enemy, being forced to become one by France, and that "it should be our object to conduct our hostilities against her in such a manner as to conduce more to our own permanent aggrandisement than her humiliation." For this end he thinks it unwise to conquer and annex Spain's American colonies, but advisable rather to take various coastal towns, etc., to be formed into centres for British trade with Spanish America. He advises that Havannah, Cartagena, Porto Bello, etc., be left alone, as they would be very difficult to capture, and "would distress Spain with little benefit to ourselves, . . . and would infallibly be restored at the Peace."

"I would on the Eastern Coast of America possess ourselves of Vera Cruz in the Gulf of Mexico, and I would hold this merely as a factory. . . . Whether it may be worth while to occupy any Port on the Eastern Coast of South America, in the Province of Carthagena, or St. Marta, I am not sufficiently informed. Perhaps the possession of Trinidad and Curucoa sufficiently answer the purpose. But if it should be advisable, the Town of St. Marta itself I believe would answer. This would be the object of one of the Commercial Armaments.

"The other would be directed against, or rather to, the River La Plata, and the South Seas, and this, I consider, as the more important of the two, as naturally connecting itself with our Commerce to the East Indies.

"With reference to this it may be proper, as the voyage is long and hazardous, to establish at the same time Ports for refreshment and equipment somewhere between La Plata and the Straits of Magellan, if it be found that we cannot occupy Buenos Ayres itself or some other Port in the River La Plata.

"Arrived in the South Seas, I would be for possessing ourselves of the Ports of Valdivia and Valparayso on the Coast of Chili, and of one or two Ports on the Coast of Peru, in the neighbourhood of Lima. Perhaps also it may be proper to possess ourselves of the Island of Juan Fernandez or one of the Gallipagos or both.

"It may also be wise to establish on some of the Otaheite and Sandwich Islands, in order to secure refreshments to ships which may be driven out of their course from the Coast of America to the East Indies.

"I should imagine 3 sail of the Line with 4 or 5 frigates carrying 2000 Land forces would be sufficient against Vera Cruz.

"On account of the length and hazard of the Voyage, the force to the South Seas ought to be larger—say 5 or 6 Sail of the Line, with a proportion of Frigates carrying 5,000 land forces. Both these Armaments ought to be accompanied with a small squadron of merchantmen loaded with the commodities adapted to the respective Markets." Etc.

Congratulating Collingwood on the Trafalgar victory, and honours bestowed on him. Commenting also on the death of Nelson.

“ . . . I congratulate you on your glorious achievements and honours so well earned and deservedly conferr'd. The Immortal Hero who fell in action died a death of envy rather than regret, for tho' we lost his life, he will never die either in the page of History, or in the Hearts of his grateful countrymen who tho' oppressed with sorrow for the loss of so distinguished a Hero, will read his achievements with admiration and astonishment. Sir Richard Strahan had completed your Victory by capturing the 4 Van Ships of the enemy you mentioned having escaped. The Enemy's Line must have been transformed in an uncommon manner, and the mode of Lord Nelson's attack equally so.” Etc.

Not in Sabin.

In 1792 Thos. Douglas, 5th Earl of Selkirk, undertook an extensive tour through the Scotch Highlands, and was convinced that emigration hence was unavoidable, and he saw the need of some controlling hand to direct it as far as possible towards the British Colonies, and he conceived the idea of a settlement at the Red River in Canada at the site of what is now Winnipeg, which, however, did not materialise until 1811. This present work was partly written as a defence against various reports which had been spread concerning his colonization schemes, and is "a strikingly clear, well-written work." In it he speaks of the tide of emigration to the U.S.A., and suggests that this emigration might be turned to Canada. He also speaks at length of the success of his settlement at Prince Edward Island, which he had founded when his first attempts at the Red River had not met with success.

"In 1772, Stedman, who was in the Scots Brigade in Holland, volunteered to accompany an expedition sent out by the States-General to subdue the revolted negroes in Dutch Guiana. His narrative of this service is a model of what such a book should be. Its rules for marching and fighting amid tropical swamps anticipate those laid down for the Ashanti expedition. The field of his curiosity embraced not only all branches of natural history, but also economical and social conditions. His description of the cruelties practised on the negroes, and of the moral deterioration resulting to their masters, forms one of the most vivid indictments of slavery that have ever been penned. A contemporary manuscript note on the third page of "the British Treaty," states "The Author of this Pamphlet is the wood-legged Mr. G. Morris, formerly Ambassador from the United States to the Court of France. Published in New-York, at the close of the year 1807, or the beginning of 1808." Sabin leaves the work unascrbed, and says it was probably printed at Philadelphia in 1807.

At the commencement of the volume are 68 pages of manuscript notes and newspaper cuttings, and the signature A. de Borgh. Anno. 1808. These notes, etc., relate to the subject of the American embargo on trade with England, in 1808, and the closing of American ports to British shipping, and comparisons of American policy towards England and France.

The two scarce printed pamphlets relate to the same matters, and to trading trouble in Louisiana, Mississippi, etc.

On Jan. 10, 1806, the Dutch Colony at Cape Town surrendered to Sir Home Popham. Shortly afterwards he heard that Buenos Aires and Monte Video would welcome an English force as liberators, and on his own responsibility sailed with a force of 1,200 men. On June 25 he landed with a force of 1,600 men, including Marines, and on July 2 Buenos Aires surrendered and was taken possession of by Beresford. A few days later, however, the inhabitants, who had discovered the smallness of the invading force, rose in thousands and made prisoners of Beresford and his garrison of 1,300 men. Popham could do nothing beyond blockading the river until the arrival of reinforcements enabled him to occupy Maldonado. On Jan. 5, 1807, he was ordered to return to England and was arrested for having left the Cape of Good Hope without orders. He was tried, found guilty, and 'severely reprimanded.'

In 1806 General Beresford had captured Buenos Aires, but had later been forced to surrender, so in 1807 a large force was sent over under Lt.-Gen. Whitelocke. Buenos Aires was entered but owing to mismanagement a large part of the forces were cut off & captured by the Spaniards, who threatened to put all their prisoners to death unless Buenos Aires & Monte Video were evacuated. Whitelocke agreed to this and the forces returned to England. His trial lasted seven weeks and he was found guilty on all the charges and was cashiered. His conduct in this expedition led to the toast among the soldiers, of “Success to grey hairs, but bad luck to white locks.”

An extremely interesting copy, being prefaced by 79 pp. in manuscript of various correspondence written previous to the trial, concerning the arrest of Whitelocke and the preparations for his trial. At the end are a further 8 pp. in manuscript concerning the sentence passed on Whitelocke.

A correspondence of great interest and importance, referring to the search for papers of the American ship "Maddison," and other vessels. The references to the American ships are of importance, as they relate to the war with America (1812-15), which arose out of the severe action of England towards neutral vessels in the war against Napoleon. America retaliated by placing an embargo upon all trade with both France and England.

" . . . It was so late last night before the Report was made to me of the result of the search for Papers on board the American ship the Maddison, that I had only time to write hastily a line to Sir Richard Bickerton on the subject, which I doubt not you have seen. I shall underneath state to you the description of the Papers which were found, and they will this evening be forwarded to Mr. Bishop, the King's Proctor." Etc.

"You have written a private Letter to me respecting the Papers on board the American ship Maddison which one of my Cruizers brought into this Port, and the Paper I enclose caught my eye this morning, I have thought it would not be amiss that I communicate to you the circumstances relative to it.

"Mr. Morris the person there mentioned came to me immediately on the arrival of the Maddison, and shewed me his Passport for leaving France to proceed to America in that ship as an American subject, declaring to me at the same time that he had no intention to proceed to that Country, but took the Passport for the purpose of getting out of France, meaning to land in England with the other passengers, intimating to me that he was confidentially employed by His Majesty's Government, and as is stated in the paper, expressed his desire to proceed immediately to London to communicate with Government, and accordingly proceeded to Town." Etc.

" . . . I am thoroughly convinced the Paragraph in the Morning Herald of yesterday referred to in your letter, did not originate from any information obtained from my Office. The escape of the Frigate was a notorious fact, and I doubt not mentioned in many Letters from the Cherburgh Squadron; and it is probable that the day she was supposed to have effected it, might have also been stated. It appears to me, to be certain, that the Editor of the Herald must have acquired his information in London; for had it been otherwise, the wording of the paragraph would have been quite different.

"To my own part I feel and I dare say the other Members of the Court Martial on Lord Gambier will equally feel, much indebted to you, for the manner in which you defended us against the gross insinuations of Lord Cochrane, insinuations, which in every liberal mind, will more reflect on the liberality and discretion of his Lordship, than affect the reputation of the Members of the Court."

"I perfectly agree with you as to the similarity of writing in the Boatswain's Expense Book of the Naiad, and that in the Mutinous Letter. Captain Hill will spare no pains to make every practicable discovery for ascertaining whether it be possible to prove that David Hunter wrote the Letter." Etc.

"In reference to your private letter of the 7th ultimo respecting David Hunter belonging to the Naiad, who has been strongly suspected of writing the anonymous and mutinous Letter to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, I enclose you herewith a letter I have received from Captain Hill of that ship, by which there is every reason to believe that this man was drowned." Etc.

"Ever since the permission was given for the Implacable to re-stow her Hold, every exertion had been made to do it, and shall be continued, but it will not be completed before Thursday night, if quite so soon. Agreeably to the first Orders about this Ship, to make her ready for sea with the utmost dispatch, her Provisions and Water had been completed, when the directions arrived to allow of her hold being re-stowed, which very considerably increased the work to be done for that purpose."

"The Milan, which ship left Lisbon on the 12th instant, brings no intelligence different from what we received by the Tenet. They feel very bold at Lisbon. Admiral Berkeley has been constituted Commander in Chief of the Portuguese Fleet." Etc.

". . . Sir Home Popham meeting light and variable Winds, sent his Dispatches on shore at Bridport. I never desire to possess secrets, but I learnt so much that he had conference with the Juneta at Corunna, and has account from them of their views and capabilities for co-operation against the Enemy. He has in consequence, submitted, I apprehend, certain propositions for the consideration of Ministers." Etc.

"The inimitable Cervantes never composed for his Hero Don Quixote a finer adventure than has been produced by the Captain of the Cyane. Chased all the morning by Ships fast at their Anchor. No wonder that the purser stated to me that the Cyane had the heels of them!" Etc.

"The American Sloops of War from Havre has just arrived at Spithead. An officer from her went on board my Flag Ship pro forma, and reported that news arrived at Paris on the 28th ultimo, of Massina having been beaten by Lord Wellington."

"This we disbelieve. The Tennant is just arrived from the Tagus, & we think, brings no such intelligence, tho' she must have left Lisbon as late as the 24th, but we cannot be quite sure, as our Telegraph message has been confused by the fog."

"Your kind attention in sending me the good news from Portugal is very gratifying to me. The affair has indeed been very brilliant. It will elevate the spirits of the Portuguese (the British need no elevation) and must certainly depress the French; and Lord Wellington having obtained such important advantages from the cautious and defensive conduct he has hitherto pursued, I hope he will not be induced to adopt other measures by any partial discomfit of the Enemy." Etc.

“ . . . Short is the memory of those about the Commander in Chief. Lieutenant Colonel Torrens, represented to the Admiralty by directions of his Chief, that the Public Service would be much forwarded if the Deserters from the French Army, and other Deserters, desirous of serving in the German Legion, could be sent to the Foreign Depôt at Lymington, at which place arrangements have been made for their reception. Not a word of notice required—‘arrangements were made for their reception.’ In future I will acquaint the Commanding Officer at Portsmouth when any arrive.” Etc.

“ I have received your private and confidential note of the 6th instant, together with the Copies of the Proposals on the part of the British Government, to the Government of France, for an exchange of prisoners. I shall take every opportunity that may occur for putting them on shore on the Coast of France. There will soon be a considerable number of Invalid Prisoners of War sent home, but owing to the nature of the observations which precede the Proposals, and particularly those after the conclusion of them, I should apprehend none of the Prisoners would venture to carry the Pamphlet to France. Had these observations been omitted, and between ourselves, I wish they had, I have no doubt that the returning Prisoners would without dread, have taken the simple Project with them, because it is nothing more than a bare publick Document. I would recommend the printing the Project without any comment whatever, and distributing copies of it amongst all the Prisoners in this Country; for if those who are to go home should not venture to take the copies with them, they would be able to communicate in France the Terms offered by the Government of this Country.”

“ . . . I have employed in a confidential manner an intelligent person to endeavour to discern, from any Men who have had communication with the American Frigate Constitution, whether any British subjects are on board that ship, but as yet I have received no information on the subject. The Constitution has this day removed from Spithead to near the Motherbank, but before, she lay near the Havanah, and I have questioned the first Lieutenant of that Ship, whether he had observed any Boats belonging to His Majesty’s Ships, have communication with the American Frigate, and he has informed me that he knows of no other boats than those of the Havanah, which boats have been twice alongside her, but he did not learn from any persons who were in the boats, that any subjects of His Majesty’s were on board the American Ship.” Etc.

“ . . . I really thought we were proceeding much too hastily respecting the American Frigate. I thought we were about to unsheath a two-edged sword, the wounds of which would be more injurious to the party who drew it than to those against whom it was drawn.

“ The result of my enquiries from Vessels & Boats that have been alongside the Frigate is this—that no person whatever was allowed to go into the ship, nor was any Man belonging to her permitted to appear on the Gangways or on any other part of the ship—that when Water or Provisions were put on board her, the people belonging to the Vessels slung the Casks, and they were hoisted into the ships without a word being spoken; so that I know of no means of ascertaining whether any British subjects are on board, or not, except by search.” Etc.

“ . . . I received also this morning an invitation from the Lord Mayor and Corporation of London to dine at Guildhall on Saturday next, and have sent an excuse on account of ill health, but before I wrote my answer there was a great conflict in my mind, between desire, and prudence. I am yet weak and have often strong symptoms of remaining infirmity; therefore considering the length of the journey and other inevitable fatigue, I determined to stay at home, for if my late disease burst forth again, all the world could not save me. I am not a little mortified, I assure you, for although among the astonishing Blaze of Military and Naval Merit which will be there, my always feeble, but now nearly extinguished Sight would be scarcely distinguishable; yet I should have had inexpressible gratification at being in the throng. But who can control his Fate. Othello's occupation's gone!” Etc.

“ . . . I have ever considered our claim to the Sovereignty of what we call the British Seas, as a vain, empty, and pernicious pretension, never generally admitted, and as it appears, has been sometimes very discreditably abandoned. It placed officers in situations of perplexity and peril: If according to his Instructions he enforced the Claim, he might, if the politics of the time were deemed to require it, be sacrificed to temporary considerations; and on the same grounds, he might be punished for not conforming to his general Orders. The article in our old Instructions relative to enforcing the taking in the Flag and lowering the Topsails, was I know, considered as a mischievous and ridiculous Order by many now deceased Officers, of sound understanding and great distinction, but as it flattered the pride and prejudices of Englishmen, the Government had never resolution enough to annul it. Many years ago I had a conversation on this subject with an Officer of very high rank, with whom I was for a great length of time intimately connected, and whose professional abilities and correctness of Judgment, I shall ever hold in the greatest respect. I was reasoning on the folly and indeed cruelty of retaining in the Book of Instructions, an article which placed Officers in command, in so unpleasant and dangerous a situation, and warmed with the subject, I said, if it fell to my lot, I would obey my orders, let what may be the consequences. The reply was short—‘then you will do a very foolish thing, and a man possessing so little discretion ought not to be trusted with Command.’ This shews however, that the great Man to whom I allude, considered the Article in question, by no means advisable, but fraught with mischief.

“I have observed that the more early writers on our Martime affairs, did frequently stile what we call the British Channel, the Sleeve.

“Nothing has so much contributed to make us hated by other Nations as our Naval insolence, which on many occasions, has been carried to a pitch, absolutely insufferable. . . .

“Were our pretensions to supremacy in the British Seas, universally admitted, what advantages could result from it? The real Sovereignty will ever be in that Nation, who can send thither the strongest Naval Force. Shall we then contend for an unprofitable Phantom?” Etc.

These papers relate to the encounter between H.M.S. "Leopard," and the American Frigate "Chesapeake," in 1807, and of the ensuing correspondence between the two Governments concerning the incident. It appeared that several deserters from the Royal Navy had enlisted on board the U.S.S. "Chesapeake." The captain of H.M.S. "Leopard" demanded that they should be handed over, which was declined. He thereupon attacked and boarded the "Chesapeake" and seized four of her crew, whom he claimed as deserters.

THE SERVICES OF A CALIFORNIAN EXPLORER.

1810 A.D. [6096] MAURELLE (Francisco Antonio). Relacion de los veritos y servicios del Capitan de Navio Don Francisco Maurelle, natural de Cosmé, en Galicia.

4 pp., folio, half morocco, t.e.g. Madrid, Privately Printed, 1810.

£15 15s

An account of the services of Don Francisco Antonio Maurelle, giving an account of the positions he held in the King of Spain's navy, the time he served therein, the names of the ships and their commanders, the dates of their departure and their arrival, and their destination.

He also gives an account of his fights, and mentions the fact that the importance of his services have caused them to be mentioned in the works of "Captain Cook."

During the years 1775 to 1792 Maurelle made no less than six voyages, the object of which was the exploration of California and its neighbourhood. Maurelle was the pilot of the "Sonora" on the famous voyage to explore the coast of America, northward of California, under the command of Don Juan Francisco de la Bodega, who in his cockle-shell, thirty-six feet "over all," reached 58 degrees, discovered Bodega Bay, and anchored at Monterey on October 7. A deal of coast had been laid bare, but naught of the Russians had been found, save, by Pèrez, a bayonet and part of a sword in the hands of Indians on Prince of Wales or Queen Charlotte Island. In 1776, therefore, a third expedition to the north, with Heceta and Bodega y Quadra in command, was ordered by the King. It was to take place in 1777, and this for a specific reason. The rumour of 1773—that the English under Admiral Byng were about to seek California by way of the Pole—had proved false; but in March (1776) it had come to the knowledge of Spain that Captain James Cook was preparing with two ships to sail for the South Sea and the Northwest Coast. That Anian, whether as an outlet to the bay of James, of Baffin, or of Hudson, was a myth, had been proved to the satisfaction of Bucarely by the exploration of 1775; yet in quest of it, and of possessory rights over the territory about it, Cook evidently was coming; that, too, stimulated by a Parliamentary grant of twenty thousand pounds contingent upon success; and it behooved Spain to be represented in northern waters when he arrived.

This project was prevented by lack at San Blas of a vessel that could be spared for the purpose, the Santiago being destined to Peru; and it was not until 1779, the year of Bucarely's death, that the expedition (two frigates, the Princess and the Favorita, built respectively at San Blas and Lima, and commanded, the one by Lieutenant Ignacio Arteaga, and the other by Lieutenant Bodega y Quadra) was able to set sail. It quitted San Blas on February 11, but on July 1 was forced back by scurvy, making on the way an examination of Drake's Bay and anchoring at San Francisco the middle of September. Meanwhile (1778) Captain Cook, unchallenged, had visited the Northwest Coast, stopped long in Nootka Sound, and striking across the Pacific to the south-west, had met death in the Sandwich Islands.

“In the Middle of the Atlantic Ocean, after a chase of three days and nights; she was bound from New York to Bordeaux with a cargo value 50,000L. The Schooner was a most superb Vessel of 300 Tons burthen carried Ten 18 Carronades and one long 18 pound swivel between her main and foremast with a complement of 80 Men and 2 Ferocious Dogs. She had twice surrendered to the Hermes previous to falling in with the Belle Poule and endeavoured to effect her escape each time by hauling off on a different tack while the ship was in the act of taking in sail and rounding to. The crew of the American made a desperate effort to regain possession of their Vessell after being boarded by the boats of the Hermes by 20 Armed Men and the Two Dogs suddenly assailing them, which after a severe struggle were overpowered.”—Inscription on plate.

Church Catalogue, 1306.

“The mystery which surrounded the authorship, history, and origin of this very rare volume, has been slowly dispelled by successive fragments of information. So few copies have survived the holocaust to which it was devoted, that its very existence was unknown to the most zealous collectors of Indian and Vermont history. Published anonymously, without preface, it was known to but few that the author was the Rev. Daniel Clark Sanders, President of the University of Vermont. Immediately after its appearance, some person (said to have been Professor John Hough), evidently a personal enemy of the author, published an acrimonious criticism upon the book, in the ‘Liberal and Philosophical Repository’ for Nov., 1813. The vindictiveness of the critic was shewn, not only by the bitterness of his language, but by his ignorance of the subject of Indian Wars being more profound than that of the author of the book he attacked. Such was the effect of the article, however, that the work was suppressed, and very few copies could have escaped. In fact, so nearly complete was this destruction, that the book was even forgotten by Sander’s biographers, Thompson, Williams, and Hemmenway.”

At a period about a hundred years ago, one of the sights of London was the Panorama at Leicester Square, where each year the proprietor, H. A. Barker and later Robt. Burford, exhibited large panoramic views of four famous cities, battles, etc., formed from paintings and models, and with various lighting effects. This collection comprises:—Lisbon, 1812; Badajoz, 1813; Berlin, 1814; Rome, 1818; Venice, 1820; Naples, 1821; Edinburgh, 1826; Mexico City, 1826; Pompeii, 1826; Geneva, 1827; Battle of Navarin, 1828; Rio de Janeiro, 1828; Genoa, 1828; Amsterdam, 1830; Sydney, 1830; Description of a View of the Continent of Boothia, discovered by Captain Ross, in his late Expedition to the Polar Regions, 1834; Calcutta, 1830; Hobart Town, 1831; Quebec, 1831; Florence, 1832; Stirling, 1833; Siege of Antwerp, 1833; New York, 1834; Falls of Niagara, 1834; Thebes, 1833; Jerusalem, 1835; Lake Maggiore, 1835.

THE BLOCKADE OF THE AMERICAN COAST AND WAR ON THE LAKES

THE OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF

1812-4 A.D. [6122A] WARREN (Admiral Sir John Borlase). Commander-in-Chief on the North American Station from the close of 1812 to the Spring of 1814. Admiral Warren's official correspondence with Lord Melville, First Lord of the Admiralty, during his American Command, from the time of his appointment till his recall in 1814. Comprising 37 letters, mostly of very considerable length, and all, with a few exceptions, entirely in his Autograph.

Accompanying these letters are a large number of enclosures, mostly of captured correspondence, including a four-page Autograph Letter, signed with initials, from Thomas Digges, the Commissary General for Prisoners in England during the War of Independence; also two Manuscript Plans of Old Point Comfort, Hampton Roads, and Craney Island, Elizabeth River, and a long letter from Sir George Prevost concerning the War on the Lakes.

202 pp., 8vo, 4to and folio, enclosed in a levant morocco case by Rivière.

Dated from London; Halifax, Bermuda, and on board H.M.S. "San Domingo," 1812-1814.

£525

A most remarkable series of historical letters covering the whole of Admiral Warren's appointment as Commander-in-Chief of the British Naval forces blockading the United States Coast during the years 1812-1814.

This correspondence comprises:—

1. A.L.S. 4 pp., folio. London, Aug. 8, 1812. Concerning instructions relating to his command. "Having considered the Instructions that Lord Castlereagh did me the honor of explaining to me the other day: I am anxious to have further information. . . ."

"First. In the event of any alteration in the sentiments of the Eastern States respecting Great Britain . . . or Resolution of any particular State to conclude Peace . . . Whether I may be authorised to suspend Hostilities with such State.

“Secondly. In the event of a Union & Confederacy of the Eastern States North of the Hudson River, and Separation from the General Union. Whether in that case I may be authorised to suspend hostilities with such States.”

Thirdly. If any states made peace would he be authorised to help them?

Fourthly. Would he be authorised to agree with any measures decided upon by such States in regard to those States which remained hostile.”

2. A.L.S. 2 pp., 4to. London, Aug. 9, 1812. Concerning the appointment of Mr. Montagu Colbeck as his second Clerk, and announcing his intention of leaving for Portsmouth the next day.

3. A.L.S. 2 pp., 4to. Portsmouth, Aug. 12, 1812. Stating that he hopes to set sail for Halifax as soon as his final orders arrive and H.M.S. “Poictieu” and “Tenedos” join company. Also asking that reinforcements might be sent should any French squadron sail to intercept him.

4. A.L.S. 4 pp., 4to. Halifax, N.S., Oct. 7, 1812. Announcing his safe arrival, and stating “I was much chagrined to learn the capture of “La Guerrière” by the enemy: an event that has occasioned great regret in this Province and much exultation to the Americans . . . the War seems to be more popular on the American Continent and every exertion is made use of for equipping their navy. The Privateers are innumerable, there being not less than 10 off the Island of Cape Breton. . . . the Land Forces have been very considerably increased also to attack Lower Canada. . . . There is a report in the U. States that Bonaparte has pledged himself to send them 20 Sail of the Line, a division of which may be shortly expected: I earnestly hope that the Troops for Quebec and this place are far advanced on their passage; or it is possible Sir G. Prevost may be much pressed by the large force assembled at Burlington against him.” Etc., etc.

Enclosed with this letter is a cutting from an American newspaper and a letter from the widow of the late Commander-in-Chief of the North American Station, Sir Andrew Mitchell, concerning an increase in the amount of her pension.

5. A.L.S. (initials). Halifax, Oct. 7, 1812. 3 pp., 8vo. Announcing that he had issued a Provisional Proclamation calling upon British Seamen in the U.S.A. to join their own colours, also concerning the issue of shipping licences and the exchange of prisoners.

6. A.L.S. Halifax, Nov. 5, 1812. 3 pp., 4to. Remarking upon American activity on sea and against Canada as a sure sign that they were not thinking of peace; also complaining that whilst American seamen were able to sell their British prizes and obtain prize-money, they had received no permission to sell any of their American prizes. Also writing “An official report has arrived of the defeat of the American Army at Queens Town in Upper Canada by the Troops under General Brock, who is likewise stated to have fallen in the contest.” Also mentioning H.M.S. “Junon’s” mission to New York with special despatches.

7. L.S. 6 pp., folio and 4to. Halifax, 11th Nov., 1812. Enclosing copy of a letter from Sir George Prevost, and extract of a letter from General Brock, also remarking on the non return of the "Junon" with the American Government's reply to the special despatches sent from England. Admiral Warren also writes: "Sir George has . . . intimated a wish for Arms, and at the same time enquired if it were not in my power to make a diversion upon the Southern Coast of America to draw off the attention of the enemy, and prevent the accumulation of a large force upon the Canadian Frontier."

The copy of Sir George Prevost's letter is dated Montreal, 5 Oct., 1812, and in it he writes of the important help the Indians along the Western Frontier of the U.S.A. had given the English in repelling the recent American invasion of Canada, and that Indian interests should be consulted in any negotiations which might take place with the Americans. This manuscript copy is signed by Warren.

The extracts from General Brock's letter dated Sept. 28, 1812, are also signed by Admiral Warren. They also concern the British treatment of the Indians, and the policy of treating them as allies in any negotiations. "The Indians since the Miamis Affair in 1793 have been extremely suspicious of our conduct, but the violent wrongs committed by the Americans on their Territory have rendered it an Act of policy with them to disguise their sentiments. Could they be persuaded that a Peace . . . would take place without admitting their claim . . . they would immediately compromise with the Enemy. I cannot conceive a connexion likely to lead to more awful consequences.

"If we can maintain ourselves at Niagara and keep the communication to Montreal open, the Americans can only subdue the Indians by Craft."

8. L.S. 2 pp., 4to. Halifax, 18th Nov., 1812. Concerning the unrest among the naval forces because no instructions had been made for the sale of prizes and distribution of prize-money.

9. L.S. 6 pp., 4to. Halifax, 18th Nov., 1812. Containing various observations relating to the War with America. America intends to increase her efforts on land and sea and to continue hostilities with a second expedition against Upper Canada. Warren advises that more armed vessels be built on the Great Lakes and that Sir George Prevost be reinforced with 400-500 seamen and 4000-5000 Troops, also that 2000 troops, and 1100 marines be sent against the Southern States. "If such a body of men with a proper proportion of this squadron, were to seize upon the City of New Orleans, and to place in it 1200 of the Black Regiment now at Providence, with a smaller proportion of white troops, this measure would cut off the resources of the American Southern States, particularly those of Kentucky, Tenesee, Ohio, who are now actively employed against the Canadas. It would shut up the Mississippi, shake the French influence and alarm the Carolinas and Virginia for their property and safety, and have more effect in inclining the States at present so hostile, to think of Peace.

"This flying army and squadron should destroy the Naval resources and vessels at Charlestown, Savannah, the Chesapeake, Delaware and New York."

In a postscript he writes: "If nine or ten thousand stand of arms were sent out to accompany any Expedition having for its object the capture of New Orleans and it were even rumoured that the Arms were intended to arm the Black Population, it would produce more effect in the American Cabinet towards Peace than any other measure whatever."

10. L.S. 1 page, folio. "San Domingo," at Sea, 5 Jan., 1813. With enclosure 7 pp., folio. Boston, 7 Dec., 1812. Forwarding copy of a letter from Andrew Allen concerning a passport which had been granted a Missionary vessel from Boston and giving a long and interesting account of the state of things in the United States.

11. A.L.S. 5 pp., 4to. "San Domingo," Bermuda, Feb. 19, 1813. Enclosing A.L.S., 7 pp., 4to, from Sir George Prevost, dated Quebec, 31 Dec., 1812. Admiral Warren acknowledges a letter from Lord Melville instructing him not to spare the Northern States except in the event of their leaving the Union, and answers charges that had been made concerning him not prosecuting the war as energetically as he might. He writes that he has "dispatched Captain Broke in search of the American Frigates; at the same time it is right to state that the Ports of Boston and Rhode Island cannot be blockaded without much loss of men and risk of ships from Nov. till March, owing to the snow storms . . . ; I have however, since my being here, cruised in the last and present months from Montague Point, Long Island, to the Capes of Virginia, and captured and destroyed 30 sail of the enemies vessels. . . I immediately went into the Chesapeake and placed that Bay and the Delaware in a state of strict and rigorous blockade and prevented one of the enemies Frigates, the "Constitution," from getting out." Etc.

Sir George Prevost writes concerning naval equipment which was being sent him for building some frigates on the Lakes, but says that he must have sailors as well, to man these vessels. "Seamen and officers are much required and without the latter the contest on Lake Ontario will be attended with inevitable disgrace as soon as the season permits it to recommence. Our superiority on Lake Erie does not appear in danger. . . As at this important and critical conjunction the salvation of Upper Canada may depend upon being promptly enabled to regain the ascendancy on Lake Ontario, I fully rely on all the aid you can afford me towards the accomplishment of that object." Etc.

12. A.L.S. 7 pp., 4to. "San Domingo," Bermuda, Feb. 25, 1813. Enclosing a series of 4 A.L.S. captured by H.M.S. "Chesapeake" from the armed American vessel "Lottery," bound to Bordeaux. Admiral Warren writes concerning certain officers whom he was sending to Quebec with commissions for service on the Lakes, and complains at length of the conduct of Admiral Stirling on the Jamaica Station in not obeying his instructions and hopes the board of Admiralty will deal with him. He also refers to his having asked for the services of Capt. Sir Thomas Hardy, who had been Lord Nelson's Flag-Captain at Trafalgar.

The series of 4 captured letters comprise one dated Ellica, New York, Dec. 20, 1812 from a Mr. B. Backer to his daughter in Paris, 4 pp., 4to; also another letter from the same, and written on the same day, addressed to H. E. Joel Barlow, Esq., Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States at Paris, 2 pp., 4to. In this letter he writes: "It is a most unhappy situation of things the world is thrown into and I see little prospect of a change. Unhappily our Country is much divided in sentiment as to the policy we should pursue. This has paralyzed all our measures, the men who ought to be employed being of the party opposed to administration they have been under the necessity of employing those who have disgraced us on land, but on the ocean we have done nobly. The papers inform us of the Emperor having fought his way to Moscow."

The third letter is from a Mr. James Purviance to his brother Samuel in Italy, dated Baltimore, 14 Jan., 1813. Concerning the capture of the schooner "Price" of Nantz by a British squadron, etc.

The last letter is from Messrs. Mayer & Brantz, merchants, dated Baltimore, 25 Jan., 1813, addressed to Messrs. I. Dussumier and Co., of Bordeaux, giving details regarding licences and shipping insurance.

13. A.L.S. 4 pp., 4to. "San Domingo," Bermuda, March 9, 1813. Concerning the questionable policy of allowing Mail Packet boats to sail to and from American Ports under flags of truce. Stating that the "Constitution" had been able to sail into Boston while Admiral Broke had been chasing Commodore Rogers, and remarking that he was sending the "Minerve" up the St. Lawrence with money for the forces in Canada, and having on board Messrs. Pring, Barclay, and Finnis who were to command the three new vessels building on the Lakes.

14. L.S. 1 page, folio. Bermuda, 13 March, 1813. Concerning the bad state of the defences of Bermuda.

15. A.L.S. 4 pp., 4to. "San Domingo," Lynhaven Bay, March 29, 1813. "I arrived here on March 22nd, and it is my intention to pursue the War in this Bay by every means in my power, until the arrival of the Troops. . . . I regret it is not practicable to take or destroy the "Constellation" American Frigate without a Corps of Soldiers to take the Forts, as she is hauled into a Creek with the works on each side, 3 vessels sunk across the passage, and 21 Gun Boats within it, and 5,000 men round the town of Norfolk, regulars, riflemen, and Militia, under a General Taylor." Etc.

16. A.L.S. 5 pp., 4to. H.M.S. "San Domingo," off Annapolis in the Chesapeake. April 19, 1813. With two enclosures. Concerning a despatch he had received from the Russian Minister at Washington, Mons. Daschkoff, who was offering the services of Russia as a mediator between England and the U.S.A., and who was anxious to arrange a meeting between Admiral Warren and Mr. Monroe. Warren replied that such propositions should be made direct to England. In discussing his future conduct of the war, he writes: "I see that the American Government are in no small degree alarmed for their towns at the upper part of this Bay, and even for the Capital itself, which is only 25 miles distance from us: If I had only the 1,400 Marines and my friend Col. Napier's Regt. and himself to command, much might be done in this Bay, and with a 1,000 additional men or Black Troops, perhaps it would not be impossible to penetrate to Washington and destroy the dockyard and city." Etc.

The first enclosure is a short anonymous letter, dated April, 1813, and endorsed by Admiral Warren, with his initials, "Sent from Washington from a respectable source." The writer says: "The effect of the blockade of the Delaware and Chesapeake is most seriously felt . . . a suspension of commerce will prove ruinous to these States . . . it is of equal importance to abstain from hostile measures against any of the sea-port towns, especially from the Delaware, North Eastward. I beg to urge this in the strongest possible manner. If this is attended to all will end well, if not, you will have the Americans generally enemies to Great Britain. The majority are now for Peace, and peace will take place this year if my advice is followed."

The second enclosure is a captured letter, signed L.B. and addressed to R. C. Filgham, Esq. Dated Good Friday. The writer discusses the movements of various American land defence forces.

17. A.L.S. 6 pp., 4to. "San Domingo," Bermuda, June 1, 1813. An extremely interesting and important letter.

"I left Rear Admiral Cockburne with the remainder of the Squadron in the Chesapeake to continue the blockade and the interruption of the Interior Navigation, a measure which has already produced a considerable effect . . . in the destruction of the enemies Military stores, guns, founderies, and works Two pair of Colours, one of cavalry, the other of infantry, fell into our hands, in consequence of the alarm excited among the enemy by a rocket taking a man's head off in its fall and occasioning the enemy corps to disperse, and as the colours were only picked up after the Americans run away and not in close action I did not think it right to send so poor a Trophy.

"I found upon my anchoring here, the two battalions of Marines had arrived . . . our present force will, I hope, enable us to do something essential. The three points at the present moment to attend to in the Chesapeake are:—

First. Norfolk, the Dock Yard opposite to it at Portsmouth, the "Constellation" Frigate, the stores, and number of Merchant vessels.

Secondly. The stores, magazine and foundery, the Town, 400 sail of shipping, the Privateers and ships of war building at Baltimore. Which place, although the river is difficult of access, yet with troops is liable to attack.

Third. The Dockyard, shipping, stores, cannon foundery, and "Adams" Frigate at Washington, the seat of Govt. of the United States. The river is navigable for Frigates and only two Batteries going up it, which, if they were carried, leaves the place open to insult from an enemy, and would in such case oblige the Americans to withdraw a proportion of the regular force from the Canadas.

"I am very sorry to understand that notwithstanding I had stationed the 'La Hogue,' 'Shannon,' 'Tenedos,' 'Nymphe,' and 'Curlew' off Boston, yet in a fog . . . Commodore Rogers with the 'President' and 'Congress' had got out . . . I should suppose that his objects will be the taking of any of our convoys, with reinforcements and supplies to Quebec, or the destruction of the Fishery." Etc.

French, 3 pp. folio, from the Russian Minister to the U.S.A., Monsieur André de Daschkoff, concerning Russia's offer of Mediation between England and the U.S.A.

19. A.L.S. 4 pp., 4to. "San Domingo," Bermuda, June 5th, 1813. With various enclosures, including an A.L.S. (initials) of Thomas Digges, who had been the Commissary General for Prisoners in England, during the War of Independence.

Admiral Warren writes concerning the American envoys who were going to Russia at the latter's invitation of acting as intermediary between England and the U.S.A. He also writes complaining of the conduct of Admiral Stirling on the Jamaica Station. He also says: "I have sent by this conveyance a letter from a Mr. Digges transmitted to me from Washington by the person to whom it was addressed: the former gentleman I remember when in England in the former war with America, acting as Commissary General for Prisoners. This person is a friend of the present Cabinet in America, and of course not well inclined to the interests of Britain: Digges has written me several letters offering me his services, but as I had not any opinion of him, none of these were answered. . . . I have likewise received a letter from a General Willot, who was formerly a Royalist with a Corps at Minorca in our service. He seems to wish to return from Baltimore to England. I believe he is a bad subject, and unless any orders are given he is better among the Americans." Etc.

The enclosures comprise:—

A. Letter from Thomas Digges, 4 pp., 4to. Warburton, 24 April, 1813. An extremely interesting letter. Digges writes concerning the English blockade: "Such armaments and such marauding excursions cannot materially do our country the mischief which England and her misguided Rulers seem to expect. . . . For England, nor no other power, can injure or stop the progress of this country if we are true to ourselves. If these excursions up our Bays and Rivers are meant (as I believe they are) to divert or stop the hastening on Expeditions towards Canada, they will fail in the intended effect. Exertion seems to be the order of the day for getting an adequate force to, or over, the Canada line; and the Militia, in my mind, will be found adequate to the seaboard." Apparently Congress thought that Admiral Warren had been sent out to try and arrange for Peace terms, and Digges gives an extremely interesting account of his attempts at communicating with the Admiral, also some particulars of events in London during the War of Independence, when he was stationed there.

B. Copy of the "Norfolk Gazette and Public Ledger" for Wednesday evening, May 19, 1813.

C. Copy of an unsigned letter dated Boston, 24 Feb., 1813. 5 pp., folio. Giving full details concerning the strength and equipment of various American Warships, particularly the "President," "Constitution," and the "United States." Also discussing the bad state of affairs throughout the States, and prophesying that America would sue for peace before the year was out.

20. A.L.S., 5 pp., 4to. "San Domingo," Hampton Roads, Chesapeake, June 23rd, 1813. Enclosing a coloured "Sketch from Memory of Craney Island."

Admiral Warren writes: "I have communicated to the Board the result of an attempt upon Craney Island; which Cockburne considered, as well as myself, as being the first step towards obtaining possession of Norfolk, the 'Constellation,' Frigate, and the Dockyard." Etc.

21. A.L.S., 1 page, 4to. "San Domingo," Hampton Roads, June 27th, 1813. Enclosing a captured letter.

"The enclosed letter exhibits such a picture of the sentiments of several of the people here, that I could not avoid sending it to you, more especially as it is addressed to the Officer, Colonel Crutchfield, who commanded the American Troops opposed to ours at this place. The second in command, a Major Corbin, was killed in the action."

The letter is addressed to Major Stapleton Crutchfield, Norfolk, Virginia, by John Gervis, and is dated Belle Air, 23rd May, 1813. The author exhibits the same sentiments towards the British as those held by Big Bill Thompson of Chicago, and writes:—

"How do affairs go on at Norfolk? I do not mean as it regards those half-Indian scalping assassins, those degenerate, ferocious disgraces to civilisation, the British, the enemies of virtue, liberty and America, but our own brave fellows who are stationed with you. Are they healthy and well accommodated as soldiers? I do not enquire as to their depositions towards the enemy, or their probable conduct if the battle should RAGE LOUD AND LONG, for I know that they are Americans in heart and in sentiment and made of that same stuff that took Johnny Bull by the horns some 30 odd years ago . . . where ever our countrymen have met them presuming to wage open and manly war, what has been the result? Why, their best veterans flying before a handfull of Militia. What says Harrison of Capt. Gelves? That he and his company drove hundreds of them.

"I suppose you have seen the extract from Genl. Dearborn's letter mentioning the civilized symbol of Indian and British alliance stuck up with the mace in the legislative Chamber at York in Canada. A Human Scalp! In Ireland they stirred their toddy with human fingers severed from the hand. In Asia they cut a village to pieces merely to try the edge and temper of their weapons, and now in America, to cap the climax of brutality and blood, they must legislate canopied by scalps. I shall soon expect to hear that some British Indianized brute has attached the skull of Hart or Hickman as an appendage to his watchchain!" Etc.

22. A.L.S. 2 pp., 4to. "San Domingo," Bermuda Roads, June 26th, 1813 Announcing the capture of the "Chesapeake."

"I have sent to the Board a Telegraphic Memorandum from the 'Shannon,' the 'Chesapeake' prize Frigate being in company. . . . I have further to say that the Squadron, being in want of water, and the Town of Hampton having a supply of that article, the place was attacked and carried yesterday morning by the Marines and troops and a corps of 800 men drove out of an encampment and Batteries, in which the enemy suffered more than our people. The particulars of this business will be furnished by Colonel Sir Sydney Beckwith. . . . I propose moving to another part of the Bay. . . . I much fear our numbers will not enable us to attack Norfolk, or lay hold of the 'Constellation.'"

23. A.L.S., 3 pp., 4to. "San Domingo," Hampton Roads, June 6th, 1813. Referring to the disgraceful scenes enacted at the capture of Hampton Village, the blame for which was put on a regiment of French deserters in British pay, and which led to reprisals on the Canadian frontiers.

"I am sorry to say that from Sir Sydney Beckwith's letter to me. . . . I am informed that the state of the foreign company is such as to render their longer continuance with the troops here impossible, especially as they cannot be relied upon or controuled: they have, however, already inspired the Americans with horror at their name, and have plundered, pillaged and killed some individuals, and committed some ravishments, in their accustomed manner: I have therefore sent them to Halifax that Sir John Sherbrooke may either send them to Canada, or home. . . .

"I have sent Admiral Cockburne with a detachment to attack the port of Ocaracoke at Pamlico Sound, the emporium of the commerce and rendezvous of the Privateers of North Carolina, and I purpose proceeding up the Bay with the ships and troops and creating all the alarm possible." Etc.

24. A.L.S., 10 pp., 4to. "San Domingo," in the River Potowmac, 40 miles below Washington, 22nd July, 1813. With newspaper cuttings enclosed. The letter discusses at length the defences of Bermuda, Russia's offer as peace mediator, the insufficiency of British land forces under Warren's command.

"If Norfolk is not attacked by a sufficient force of 4 or 5,000 good Troops, the dockyard burnt and the Frigates and gun boats taken or destroyed, our ships there will be liable to attack, and find risk in being kept complete in water. . . . New York also is growing into a formidable place, and if it should be necessary to destroy the enemies yards, shipping and resources, it should be done this winter. . . . I shall continue here as long as within my power with the intention of obliging the enemy to keep their troops in this quarter and not to detach them against the Canadians. . . . I am convinced your Lordship, as well as the Country in general, will be satisfied with the conduct of my brave friend Broke, his officers and men, and I should hope His Royal Highness the Prince Regent would bestow some mark of his Royal approbation upon Broke for so Heroic an Action" (i.e., capture of the "Chesapeake").

In a long postscript Warren gives details of the U.S. warships blockaded in various parts of the U.S.A., etc., and remarks on the difficulty of sailing up to Washington for an attack on that City.

25. A.L.S., 1 page, 4to. "San Domingo," in the River Potowmack, July 22nd, 1813. Enclosing a manuscript "Sketch of the Peninsula at Old Point Comfort, July 7, 1813." In his letter Warren remarks that this point commands the entrance to Hampton Roads, and must be occupied.

26. A.L.S., 2 pp., 4to. "San Domingo," River Potowmack, July 22nd, 1813. Concerning certain naval promotions. In a postscript Warren writes: "I trust Lieutenants Barclay, Pring and Finnis, who were sent to the Lakes, will not be returned to the Squadron. I am convinced their services will be wanted there, and many additional seamen, as the enemy will proceed in their exertions in that quarter," etc. These three officers all gave very good accounts of themselves in the two disastrous naval battles which were shortly to take place on the Lakes.

27. Extract of a private letter from Col. Sir S. Beckwith to H. Goulburn, Esq., dated on board H.M. Ship "San Domingo" in the Potomack, 23rd July, 1813. Concerning a plan of Norfolk sent to England by Admiral Warren, which shewed that the Town was too strong to attack with the forces then available. Also excusing the landing at Hampton on the grounds that "the enemy were collecting Troops and erecting batteries there which would by and by have sheltered and protected the gun boats from Norfolk, and thereby have given them the command of Hampton Roads."

28. A.L.S. 4 pp., 4to. "San Domingo," off Kent Island, Chesapeake, August 24th, 1813. Complaining that his land operations had been hampered through insufficient land forces, and giving a short resumé of events, which he states have succeeded in drawing off American troops from the Canadian frontier. He encloses various cuttings from American papers.

"Upon one occasion Mr. Monroe, who had left his Bureau and resumed the profession of Colonel, having come down from Washington with a large party of cavalry, being at breakfast with General Armstrong and others, was put to the rout by some shot fired from the launch of the 'Laurestinas' by Captain Graham's orders."

Warren continues with an account of the help he had been sending to Canada, and also states that "Sir John Beresford had been sent with the 'Maidstone' and 'Nimrod,' to the Banks of Newfoundland, in search of Commodore Rogers and for the protection of the Convoy." Etc.

29. L.S., 4 pp., 4to. Same date as the previous letter of which it is a duplicate, although somewhat differently worded, sent to Lord Melville by a different route.

30. A.L.S., 5 pp., 4to. "San Domingo," Lynhaven Bay, Chesapeake, Sept. 6th, 1813. Complaining of directions, having been given direct to Rear Admiral Griffith instead of through him, also concerning two requests from the American Government for passports for moving prison ships from Boston to Salem and from Charlestown to Savannah, the first of which he had granted.

"I must likewise state to your Lordship that the number of Black people that come off to us from every port of the coast are very considerable, and it is with great difficulty that larger numbers have been prevented joining us, 150 having come down in a body near the shore of the Potoway just after we had left it. I could not refuse those which have got on board the ships, in canoes, men, women, and children, amounting to about 300; as they would certainly have been sacrificed if they had been given up to their masters; and destroyed our influence among them, for at present every slave in the Southern States would join us if they could get away." Etc.

31. A.L.S., 5 pp., 4to. Halifax, Sept. 27th, 1813. Concerning help being sent to the Lakes, and Admiral Cockburne having been sent to harrass the Southern States. He states that he is sending home the foreign troops who had disgraced themselves at the destruction of Hampton, and suggests that they be employed in Germany under the Prince Royal of Sweden or General Moreau. He also writes concerning the blockade of New York and Long Island, and states: "I do not enter into the policy of the State of Connecticut becoming friendly or active in separating from the Union, and joining the British interests in opposition to the Machavelian Politicks of Madison's Government." In a postscript he asks that he might have Sir Thomas Hardy as Capt. of the Fleet if Capt. Hotham should be promoted.

32. L.S., 6 pp., 4to. Halifax, 26th Oct., 1813. Concerning the Naval disaster in Canada. After saying that he had sent all possible help to Canada, he writes: "In consequence of the disasters which have ensued on Lake Erie, I have pushed up the River St. Lawrence all the Troop Ships, the two Marine Batallions, with the Artillery and Rocket ship, that the Gov. Gen. might be enabled to repel the intended attacks upon Kingston and Montreal." He gives details of reinforcements which are required in Canada, and suggests that Spain might spare 8,000 men for carrying on the War in the South and in "supporting the numerous Indian force which could act . . . against the States of Kentucky and Ohio." Etc.

33. A.L.S., 3 pp., 4to. Halifax, N.S., Oct. 27th, 1813. Asking for instructions concerning the 102nd Regiment, which had not been supplied with any winter clothing, and so could not be sent to Canada. He suggests that it "might act with effect in conjunction with the Marines and ships, and especially in destroying the Settlement of French Pirates at the Mouth of the Mississippi. . . .

"I earnestly hope a more active warfare will prevail in Canada, and that some of the Rockets sent to Quebec in the 'Mariner' may be employed in destroying the enemies stronghold of Sackets Harbour." Etc.

34. A.L.S. 2 pp., 4to. Halifax, Nov. 8th, 1813. Asking that Capt. Sir Thos. Hardy (Nelson's Flag-Captain at Trafalgar) might relieve Capt. Hotham as Captain of the Fleet, and concerning other naval appointments and retirements.

35. A.L.S., 4 pp., 4to. Halifax, Nov. 9th, 1813. Enclosing details concerning American movements and fortifications at New York and Newport, 4 pp., 4to.

"I have the satisfaction to inform you that three of the troopships have returned from Quebec, after having landed the Marines and Rockets . . . and the men with Sir S. Beckwith have marched for Montreal. . . . I am sorry that the War in Canada seems not to have assumed that decided character I was in hopes it would have done. . . . I hope the reinforcements will prevent any further disasters in that country. I am concerned to state that no other account relative to the Flotilla upon Lake Erie under the command of poor Capt. Barclay has reached me, except from the American papers. I much fear the measure of engaging the American force was perhaps urged by the wants of General Proctor's army, and before Barclay's Squadron was properly equipped, or had received any of the reinforcements of seamen." Warren also gives advice concerning what should be done in Canada to make good the British losses, and also writes of sending many of the 1,500 American prisoners at Halifax along to England for internment." Etc.

36. A.L.S., 4 pp., 4to. H.M.S. "San Domingo," enclosing copy of letter from Sir George Prevost, 3 pp., folio, and copy of the small printed broadsheet General Orders, published by the Quebec Mercury Office, Novr. 18, 1813, and dated from Head Quarters, La Chine, 15th November, 1813, in which is given an account of the British Victory of Williamsburg on Nov. 11th.

Admiral Warren begs that Lord Melville will see that more men and supplies are sent out to Canada for the ensuing campaign. "I am unable to furnish Sir George Prevost with any more men, either seamen or soldiers, having given him everything within my power."

The copy of Prevost's letter is endorsed with Warren's signature. It is dated, Head Quarters, La Chine, 13th Nov., 1813, and gives various details concerning the movements of British and American forces, building of war vessels, etc.

37. A.L.S., 2 pp., 4to. Bermuda, Dec. 30, 1813. After making certain complaints concerning naval promotion of some of his officers, he writes: "I am sorry to say that the American small vessels, notwithstanding the vigilance of the blockading squadron, from the severity of the weather and on the dark snowy nights, do get out; and it is almost impracticable to prevent it. The Assembly at Jamaica are caballing and remonstrating about ships; I have sent all in my power: and really am left 10 sail to keep in check the enemies cruisers and new ships, which must be soon expected out; so that I am in no enviable state, but trust you will soon reinforce the squadron with some of the large new frigates. . . . P.S. Several Privateers are now fitted out at Carthagea under the American Flag."

38. A.L.S., 2 pp. 4to. Bermuda, Feb. 3rd, 1814. Concerning his recall to England.

"I am honoured by your Lordship's letter of the 24th of Nov. informing me that the Board had determined to divide the Command . . . and that . . . Sir Alexander Cochrane would succeed to this place.

"I am extremely surprised in being recalled at this moment, after having undertaken the command in the situation in which I was placed at the time, after having zealously and faithfully served my Sovereign and Country under so many disadvantages." Etc.

39. The original copies of two long A.L.S. from Lord Melville to Admiral Warren, dated 4th June, 1813 and 24th Nov. 1813. Both are very faded, and in some parts difficult to decipher. Both discuss Admiral Warren's command, the affairs in Canada, etc.

“In 1772, Stedman, who was in the Scots Brigade in Holland, volunteered to accompany an expedition sent out by the States General to subdue the revolted negroes in Dutch Guiana. His narrative of this service is a model of what such a book should be. Its rules for marching and fighting amid tropical swamps anticipate those laid down for the Ashanti expedition. The field of his curiosity embraced not only all branches of natural history, but also economical and social conditions. His description of the cruelties practised on the negroes, and of the moral deterioration resulting to their masters, forms one of the most vivid indictments of slavery that have ever been penned. Not the least curious thing in the book is the story of his relations with Joanna, a beautiful Mulatta, who nursed him when sick, and bore him a son, who afterwards died at sea as a midshipman in the British navy.”

José Maria Dantas Pereira, a Portuguese writer, was born at Alemquer in the year 1772. Although his parents were in poor circumstances they nevertheless did everything in their power to have him well educated. He was Professor of Mathematics at the Naval Cadet College, later becoming Commandant of the same. In the year 1807 he went out to Brazil, where he held the elevated post of Chief Commander of the Squadron.

In 1834 he emigrated to France, where he died at Montpellier on the 22nd of October, 1836.

THE BLOCKADE OF BOSTON.

1814 A.D. [6142] NAPIER (Capt. Henry Edward). Original Manuscript Journal kept on board H.M.S. "Nymphe" 38 guns, Capt. F. P. Epworth, during her blockade of Boston in 1814, giving interesting and full details of the blockade, and of the various prizes captured during that service.

59 pp., folio, enclosed in buckram case. North America, 1814.

An extremely interesting unpublished Journal. H.M.S. "Nymphe" took the place of H.M.S. "Shannon" after the latter had captured the "Chesapeake" and had proceeded to Halifax with her prize. She continued the duties of the "Shannon" in blockading the port of Boston and watching for any attempt by the United States Frigate "Constitution" to put to sea, and also in making as many prizes as she could.

The author of this journal, Henry Edward Napier, was, during this period, a lieutenant on board the "Nymphe," and in charge of various small boat expeditions for the capture of prizes. The end of the journal relates to his promotion to the command of H.M.S. "Goree," 18 guns, and later to H.M.S. "Rifleman," 18 guns.

Napier came from a very famous family, three of his brothers were knighted, Sir Charles James Napier, the conqueror of Scinde; Sir George Thomas Napier, Governor of the Cape of Good Hope; and Sir Wm. Francis Patrick Napier, General and historian of the Peninsula War. His cousin was Admiral Sir Charles Napier. He, himself, was born in 1789 and entered the Royal Naval Academy in 1803. After naval service in various parts of the world he was appointed as lieutenant on board the "Nymphe," stationed at Halifax, later he obtained the command of the "Gorée" and "Rifleman," being in charge of guarding the trade in the Bay of Fundy. At the close of the American War he went on half pay, and obtained the rank of Captain in 1830. He was the author of "Florentine History," 6 vols., 1846-7, and died in 1853.

The following are some brief extracts from this most interesting Journal:

"March 13th, 1814. Sailed in H.M.S. "Nymphe" from Halifax, after having been detained in harbour since the 12th of November from the effects of a violent gale." Then follows an account of an unsuccessful chase of an American Privateer, and return to Halifax.

"30th April. Fell in with H.M.S. Victorious from off New London, bound to Halifax. She informed us that the Yankees had made an attempt, but without success, to blow up the Hogue by means of a torpedo, or cask full of combustibles floated under her bows. . . H.M. Brig-Curlew . . . brought us many letters. . . . We heard that Commodore Rodgers had been appointed to the 'Guerriere,' a new 50 gun Frigate just going to be launched at Philadelphia. Commodore Decatur to superceed Rodges in the 'President.'

"May 7. Spoke an American fisherman who informed us that the embargo had been taken off twelve days ago, that the 'Constitution' was stripped and re-fitting in Boston Harbour. 'Congress' ready for sea at Portsmouth, and that the 'Junon' and 'Tenedos' had been in the Bay last week.

"May 9th. Made all sail towards Boston to make a reconnaissance of the Harbour, while the 'Junon' proceeded off Portsmouth to pay the same attention to the 'Congress.'

"May 10th. Stood close in to the little town of Cape Anne or Gloucester, and regulated our watches by the Town Clock, which wanted ten minutes to eleven. This town has a pretty appearance and the country about it rather romantic. There is a good Harbour for small craft and a battery on the East Side, on which we counted 8 guns. At 11 shaped our course for Nantasket, or, as it is frequently called, Boston Light House. Saw the 'Constitution' nearly unrigged, no other man-of-war in the harbour. . . . Perceived our old friend the Privateer which we now had ascertained to be the 'York,' she was too far advanced to give chase. (Note: this privateer sailed for the Coast of Brazil where she did damage to British shipping to the extent of £300,000.)

"May 11th. Had intelligence that the 'Congress' only waited for 100 men, having already 300. . . . Captured the American sloop '3 Sisters' . . . it was thought expedient to take the prisoners off and burn her . . . much against the inclination of Captain Epworth and all on board, as the bulk of the property belonged to 3 poor unfortunate women who were then on board.

"May 12. The fair prisoners (one very pretty) . . . more reconciled to their situation on being assured they would be sent on shore in the first fishing boat. The Master of the 'Three Sisters' gives a deplorable account of the wretched state of trade throughout the States since the war. P.M. called a fishing boat alongside and sent the women on shore, to their great delight, particularly as the Captain and officers made up by subscription nearly the amount of their loss.

"May 14. Captain Steward of the 'Constitution,' we understand, is to be tried by a court-martial for heaving overboard stores to a large amount when chased into Salem by the 'Junon' and 'Tenedos.' I cannot conceive this to be a fact, the American Government can hardly be so foolish!

"May 21st. Cleared for action for a ship in the Fog. Found it to be the 'Junon' Frigate, who informed us of the arrival of Sir Thos. Hardy in the 'Ramillies' in the Bay.

"May 22nd. H.M.S. 'Ramillies' joined company. All America blockaded. 'Epervier' captured by the Peacock (American sloop) after an action of 45 minutes.

"May 25th. Captured while at anchor 4 sloops and a schooner, took the cargoes out and restored the vessels. Nothing material happened from the 25th to the 27th when Sir Thos. Hardy came on board, for the purpose of reconnoitring the coast, particularly Portsmouth, preparatory to an expedition being sent there.

Fort Independence appears very strong, but low, and commanded by Fort Kittery, which, however, could rake any ship engaging it. There is, besides these, another Fort, which commands the Harbour, on Pearus Island, lately put into repair. The people in a great fright and all the militia concentrated there expecting an attack. . . . Send a flag of truce on shore to Hay Island . . . all the people exceedingly discontented with the War, and all join in abusing the Government.

“May 30th. Sent the ‘Junon’s’ boat in chace of a schooner which she run on shore near Rye beach, a little to the North of Portsmouth. They attempted to take possession of her but the militia assembled in rather formidable numbers.

“May 31st. Sent a flag of truce round Wallfleet Bay to collect stock, which the inhabitants were very willing to supply us with, being very well paid. It is our intention to oblige the Yankees to supply us with stock and vegetables at the Market price; this is very reasonable; we leave all fishermen unmolested.

“June 4th. Burned the Tartar schooner of Boston, disguised as a fisherman. . . . News of Peace on the Continent of Europe, and the abdication of Napoleon. What astonishing events. Has he, or has he not, acted like a great man? I certainly thought he would not have survived his dethronement. Perhaps he may be reserved for more extraordinary events, for this is an age of wonders!

“June 5th. I went in the barge to Halibut Point in Ipswich Bay with the intention of laying in wait, like a spider for flies, for the coasters . . . took an empty sloop. . . . The master miserly poor, and this his all; let him go, making a virtue of necessity for it was nearly calm and I should not have been able to tow him out to the ship. . . . Very soon saw a schooner . . . and cut her off . . . found her name to be the ‘Welcome Return,’ a good prize worth 4,000 dollars. . . . Captured the schooner ‘Maria.’

“June 7th. Burned two fine sloops, with wood, much better to have ransomed them.

“June 9th. A flag of truce came out to ransom the ‘Welcome Return’ . . . received vegetables and stock of all kinds from Boston, green peas for the first time, newspapers, and in short anything we chuse to send for. . . . Understand that the ‘Constitution’ has a furnace and can heat 45 shot in 15 minutes, but if she comes out and uses them, we have got a Rowland for her Oliver! Stood in towards Beverley . . . chased several vessels on shore, and burned one. The fort fired but without effect.

“June 11th. Destroyed all the shipping in Scituate Harbour, but one, the skipper of which was a Democrat and a traitor, but for his good service to the boats was restored; it is right to keep ones word, but I question whether the destruction of such a rascal would not almost justify its being broken. . . . Run a vessel called the ‘Concord’ on shore, detained the skipper as hostage for a ransom of 1,000 dollars . . . captured the ‘Experiment’ sloop . . . this expedition of the boats allarmed the whole coast as far as Boston . . . the

Parson of Scituate came off towards evening to beg the safety of the town and went away perfectly comforted.

“June 13th. Our boats and ships off Cape Anne. Went into the harbour of Annisquam, burned two vessels but let one go clear because she belonged to an old man who had a wife and 8 children and had lost 20,000 Dollars within two years; destroying this his last, would have ruined him. Spared another, as I told them, because her name was the ‘Federalist,’ but the truth is she was aground alongside of the town, and I could neither get her off, nor set fire to her there without burning a number of poor peoples houses. . . . Saw some cattle grazing . . . brought one down to the boat. . . . A fine little girl seeing what was going on, and fearful for her flock very gallantly came and drove them away in the face of about 18 armed men and a great gun.

“June 16th. Ransomed the ‘Welcome Return’ for 3,500 dollars. Constant firing yesterday afternoon. The people of Boston celebrating the Peace in Europe much against the inclination of the Democrats, who call them Englishmen.

“June 18th. Chased a Privateer brig, the ‘Scourge,’ into Boston.

“June 30th. The people much alarmed at Boston lest we should burn the ‘Independence.’ Gungoats, booms, and the ‘Constitution’ all defending her.

“July 3rd. Saw by the papers our tender was blockading Nantucket. This amused us amazingly when we reflected that she had but 1 gun and 12 men.

“July 10th. Received from the Salem Cartel Mr. Seppings and 4 men who were wrecked in the ‘Christiana,’ and a man named Humphries who was taken last year. . . . Our men were offered 155 dollars bounty to enlist and 300 acres at the end of the war! I learnt that the American soldiers are principally Portuguese and Spaniards on the coast, all the Yankees having been sent to Canada.

“July 15th. Our seamen paid the amount of two days pay for the relief of the widows and orphans of those who were killed in the ‘Shannon.’

“July 20th. Sent a flag of truce on shore to Salem to treat about some prisoners. . . . Many ladies came down to find out whether Englishmen were Christians or devils. The ladies on this coast are infinitely more violent than the males—perfect Amazons.

“July 23rd. H.M.S. ‘Leander’ joined. . . . I think her a great deal more than a match for the ‘Constitution,’ by her I had the pleasure of receiving my appointment as Commander of the ‘Gorée’ . . . dated June 9.

“July 28th. Our tender when off Nantucket captured some vessels belonging to that place, which is chiefly inhabited by Quakers, from one of whom Mr. Goulet, who commands her, received the following letter:

“Respected Friend,

“On behalf and by request of Richd. Mitchell, Jethro’ Mitchell and others, including myself, I may inform thee that we are of the people called Quakers and of the discription of Pease makers, and have not at any period been enemies to Great Britain and her dependencies . . . we solicit thy lenity towards the inhabitants, etc. Thy assured friend, Obediah Mitchell.”

“ Respected Friend, Obediah Mitchell,

“ Having in due course received thy communication making known unto me that thou art of the description of pease-makers called ‘ Quakers,’ I forthwith acquaint thee that I am of the description of pease-breakers called Sailors, and being at this present time in extreme want of Materials to supply my calling, I must pray & beseech thee, Obediah, immediately to cause to be sent unto this my sloop at sea four bushels of the said pease, of the colour usually denominated green, and of the description known by the appellation young. And as a further inducement to thee, Friend Obediah, to comply with this my request, be it known unto thee that the sloop ‘ Mariner ’ is at present one of the dependencies of Great Britain, of which thou hast said ‘ thou wast never an Enemy,’ and it being a known rule of thy sect to succour the unfortunate, more particularly friends in distress, I trust thou wilt let the Milk of Human kindness flow freely from thee, and should it to my unconscious eyes assume the appearance of cows milk, and thee, Obediah, the plain & upright pail that holds it, even then, respected friend, I should not be offended! ”

After making various other captures and visiting the neighbourhood of Boston again, the “ Nymph ” on August 9th put into Shelbourne Harbour, Nova Scotia. Napier gives a long account of the town, and of his experiences there. On August 13th he sailed on board the “ Roseway ” schooner to take up his command of the “ Gorée ” at Bermuda. A detailed account of the voyage is given, and under date of Sept. 2nd, he writes: “ Boarded a Portuguese Brig for Bermuda . . . she informed us that Long Island had been taken by our troops and New London was also in our possession. If this is correct they must soon have New York.”

The following day they anchored in Murray’s Anchorage in Bermuda, and he joined the “ Gorée,” learning, however, a week later that he was appointed to the “ Rifleman.” He gives a description of various visits made on shore. On August 19th he dined with the Governor and learnt of the capture and burning of Washington. He closes his journal by stating that he expected to sail for Halifax in the “ Morgiana,” on Sat., Aug. 24, 1814.

Seixas was born in New York City in 1745 and died there in 1816. This was the funeral address on the occasion of his death. In 1766 he became the minister of Shearith Israel, the Spanish and Portuguese congregation of his native city, and occupied the Rabbinate for about half a century.

At the outbreak of the American Revolution he at once espoused the patriot cause, and it was largely due to his influence that the Jewish congregation closed the doors of its Synagogue on the approach of the British, and decided to leave the town, rather than continue under British rule. On the appearance of the British Fleet in New York Bay, August, 1766, Seixas preached a sermon in English in which he feelingly stated that the services on that occasion might be the last to be held in the historic edifice. On the dispersion of the congregation Seixas left New York for Stratford, Conn., where he was joined by several members of his flock.

When in 1780 the patriots who had fled to Philadelphia were about to establish a permanent congregation Seixas was requested to officiate. During his stay in Philadelphia Seixas showed himself a public spirited citizen figuring also as a zealous defender of religious liberty. Thus when Pennsylvania adopted the religious test as an indispensable qualification for office, he addressed the council of censors characterizing the test as unjust "To the members of a persuasion that had always been attached to the American cause and given a support to the country, some in the Continental Army, some in the militia, and some by cheerfully paying taxes and sustaining the popular cause."

He was one of the fourteen clergymen participating in the ceremony of the inauguration of George Washington as first President of the United States (a tablet commemorating this ceremony is still to be seen in Wall Street, New York).

£10 10s

“ . . . In spite of the value of Baron Humboldt's memoirs it cannot be overlooked that some of his statistics, especially with regard to the population, are somewhat wide of the mark; but his work was exceptionally difficult in so vast a continent, where twice the time and trouble are required as in other countries.

. . . Humboldt calculated the number of inhabitants in New Spain in 1803 to be about 5,837,100, having based his calculation upon Count de Revilla Gigedo's figures (the original census), and allowing an increase of 30 per cent. on the original poll. . . . I have based my calculation on an increase in 1810 of 45 per cent. over the 1793 census, covering a period of seventeen years from that date, which is likely to be less mistaken than that of any other, taking as one's basis the calculation made before the period of New Spain's lamentable political convulsions.'

The anonymous author goes on to state that he has depended, for his statistics regarding California, upon the statements rendered to the Government in 1810 by the Missionary Fathers, which include particulars of all the known Spaniards. He compares his calculation of eighteen Spaniards to every hundred other inhabitants with Humboldt's calculation of 20 per cent.—of the remainder of which sixty were Indians. In the year 1803, according to Humboldt, there was one European white to every 14 native Americans. He deplors the fact that although the country is greatly in need of a vast population, the existing one is continually being cut down by the outcome of grinding poverty, plague and famine.

Without the supplementary Volume VII containing further information relating to Cuba, etc.

On June 5, 1799, Humboldt and Bonpland, armed with powerful recommendations, sailed from Corunna to the Canary Islands, where they stopped for a short time and made the ascent of the peak of Teneriffe. Thence they proceeded to Caracas in Venezuela, and in Feb., 1800, left the coast for the purpose of exploring the course of the Orinoco. "This trip, which lasted four months, and covered seventeen hundred and twenty-five miles of wild and uninhabited country, had the important result of establishing the existence of a communication between the water-systems of the Orinoco and the Amazon and of determining the exact position of the bifurcation. On 24 Nov. the two friends sailed for Cuba, and after a stay of some months regained the mainland at Cartagena. Ascending the swollen stream of the Magdalena, and crossing the frozen ridges of the Cordilleras, they reached Quito after a tedious and difficult journey, Jan. 6, 1802. There they ascended Picchincha and Chimborazo, and made an expedition to the sources of the Amazon, en route for Lima. At Callao Humboldt observed the transit of Mercury, and studied the fertilizing properties of guano, the introduction of which into Europe was mainly due to his writings. After a year's stay in Mexico, and a short visit to the U.S.A., they returned to Europe."

In this famous expedition Humboldt may justly be regarded as having laid the foundation of the sciences of physical geography and meteorology in their larger bearings. His services to geology were mainly based on his attentive study of the volcanoes of the New World.

THE RISE AND FALL OF ITURBIDE'S MEXICAN EMPIRE.

1822-5 A.D. [6211] BERVETE (Miguel). His Original contemporary Autograph Diary (in Spanish) describing the stirring events, plots and counterplots preceding the Independence of Mexico. The Author, whose identity is revealed with his signature in the course of the diary, was a well-known Treasury official in Mexico and played no inconsiderable part in the history which he faithfully records in this important and unique manuscript.

Mexico, 17th May, 1822; 23rd Nov., 1825.

£52 10S

Although the records deal with events up to the year 1825, the translations and notes appended refer principally to the Empire of Augustin I.

The diary has been kept with considerable regularity for the three years which followed upon the waning of Spanish power in America. There is a complete absence of superfluous comment in this thick volume of most interesting matter, the writer confining his efforts to the narration of events in a curt and often grim manner. His bitterness against the Spanish converts to Mexican Republicanism is apparent in the last paragraph, in which he states: "The author of this Diary . . . is ashamed and stupefied to observe the fate of the Spaniards, who have lost their possessions, fortune, employment, and, above all, their health and the pride which they formally had in calling themselves Spaniards."

The diary begins on 17th May, 1822, when there was a great tumult in the city. "The Generalissimo left suddenly after a scene with the Regentes Jañez and the Conde de Casa Era. To-day, the Generalissimo sent in his resignation to the Cortes, through the Minister for War, the Cortes replying that he should do so through the usual channels. In his resignation he states that he has personal enemies in the Congress . . . and that the majority of the representatives are a lot of empty talkers."

The following day, the Cortes had a short public session, and a longer secret one, from which no information was allowed to emanate; the cause of the dissension between the Generalissimo and the Cortes, being the relative number of troops proposed by each, for different sections of the Army.

"The son of the Governor Merino, who is supposed to be the author of the 'four words to the Generalissimo' was challenged to a duel in the porch, but retired without replying, for the officer who challenged him had a large party of supporters by his side.

"To-day the Generalissimo did not assist at the Regencia. Twenty carriages left for the Peninsula conveying many well-known families. At ten o'clock to-night we heard a volley, followed by shouts of 'Viva Agustin I—long live our Emperor.' An enormous crowd gathered round the First Regiment, which was firing. There was a great commotion at the Theatre, which soon remained almost deserted. . . . News had spread round the town that the troops were fighting amongst themselves, some for the Republic, others in favour of Agustin I. Some soldiers suddenly called out: 'Long live the Emperor, Agustin I,' and the populace joined in. By eleven o'clock the town was seething with excitement, and the houses of Alcarate, Conde de Santiago, Condesa de San Pedro and others were suddenly illuminated. The deputies, Oduardo, Gaguaga, Tagle and Orbegosa, were in great peril, and hid—who knows where?

"Cavaleri kissed the Emperor's hand, being told he was the first to have this honour; at midnight, instead of attending matins, the community of San Francisco went with their prelate to pay their respects to the Emperor. Then followed an infinite number of ecclesiastics, military and private citizens. The Empress fainted when the uproar commenced, 'the proclamation having been prematurely announced by the over-enthusiastic First Regiment.'

"The people shouted all night long—a succession of exclamations: Long live the Emperor. Down with his opponents. Down with the Congress. Down with the Gachupines [a name given in New Spain to Europeans]. Down with serfdom. Down with despotism."

The next day, a formal Proclamation was read. The Cortes assembled at six in the morning, and at midday the Emperor appeared there. "The people removed the horses from his carriage and conducted him to the Congress. This body was insulted by the crowd, who threatened their lives. Finally the Emperor returned at five in the afternoon, accompanied in the same manner as before, now recognised by the Congress. The shouting continued all night, and it was noticed that two Franciscan monks and other priests were amongst those who dragged the carriage along." A daily chronicle is given of the incidents of the first days of this Empire, which seem to have been taken up with the reception of numerous official bodies and individuals, all anxious to "kiss hands" on the Emperor's accession. Later, the business of governing a political volcano is described in the same effective manner, with the bald chronicle of vital facts. The appearance of British ships at Veracruz is noticed, as is, with laconic aloofness, the fact that "every day fewer deputies attend Congress," the new enthusiasm having given place to the old discontent against the administrator of the moment. Financial difficulties engaged the earnest attention of Agustin and his advisers, and in June a proposal was put forward by an Anglo-American for the loan of 25 million pesos. The writer, however, is sceptical of the financier's ability to produce the funds. The entry for 26th June records that sixteen pages of honour have been appointed for the Emperor's service! The temporary monarch, realizing no doubt that there might be an eruption at any time—which actually occurred a year later—snatched at Imperial honours while he could! In July the Minister of Finance is described as going from house to house, trying to raise money as the troops were without pay. Two days later, the streets are decorated for the coming Coronation, but a street riot causes the military to order the shops to be closed against the ugly crowd.

The record for the 21st July borders on the Gilbertian. "Their Imperial Majesties left their palace on foot in the morning," their errand being a trifling matter of a mere adjustment of crowns upon their heads! "The Empress was flanked on either side by a Lieutenant-General . . . and behind her, her ladies in waiting. Her crown was carried in a basket by General Torres Valdivia . . . and behind him were all the Corporations, and the Emperor, in a Colonel's uniform. The scene in the Church has been described by the newspapers. The Bishop of Puebla's sermon was short. He spoke against the Republicans . . . and Spain." The people all seem to have been overjoyed at possessing an Emperor of their own, after Spain's long term as oppressor; and the Imperial family then strolled about the streets. On the 23rd a reception was held at the palace "for all classes, and later their Majesties were present at the Theatre, where they received an ovation."

Very soon after, however, the old insurgents began to make trouble. Clouds began to gather not only from distant Spain, but even amongst those who had cheered most lustily at the Coronation. Echoes of the word Republic reverberated in Santander and Chihuahua. Conspiracies were discovered everywhere, with apparently no concerted object: some were intended against the Crown, others against the hated Europeans; the only point of similarity being the overmastering desire for revolution of some sort. Troops were sent hither and thither, and as most of the soldiers were also politicians at heart, no chief could be certain of their faithful co-operation in this hotbed of political intrigue. The writer, recording the daily events in Congress, mentions the arrival of a Commissioner from the United States to enquire into the case of Mexico; and adds, "he will find a country which seems an example of injustices."

In November, War was declared against Spain, and an edict was published, by which all the property of Spanish subjects was confiscated, with the exception of their personal luggage, which they were allowed to take back with them to Spain; while many conspiracies on the part of Mexican citizens against the hated Spaniards whom they wished to murder in settlement of private scores, were suppressed just in time by the authorities.

About this time the Empress gave birth to an heir, whose advent caused great rejoicing. The Empire was, however, already unsteady. Rumours were abroad that many officers disappeared nightly, and the Emperor had been consulting Navarrete as to whether General Negrete should be put in prison, as he (the Emperor) dreaded him. Even the footmen at the palace were being secretly recruited for the Army. It is recorded that the Empress, on entering her drawing-room one day, remarked to a captain of the household: "How dirty those chairs are! Why are they not cleaned?" To which he replied significantly: "Madam, because the footmen are very busy," and discreetly retired. When the Emperor sent his family to Valladolid soon after, rumour whispered loudly: "This new home is the fugitives' palace." A disturbance at the palace was followed by an attempt to burn the Plaza de Toros. The Envoy from Peru was publicly received by the Emperor, but it was observed that the latter had a very cool reception when he attended the theatre in the evening. During the days that followed there was much talk—no longer in whispers—of a Republic; and on the 1st February it is recorded briefly: “They say the Emperor has left for Jalapa.”

The next day the writer describes a dramatic “hold up.” The Marquesa de Uluapa, driving out in the afternoon with Falco, was suddenly stopped by four men armed with pistols. “Falco asked, ‘What can I do for you?’ and one of the men replied, ‘Nothing—nothing: We do not find what we want here. We have made a mistake. Pass on.’ But as this carriage looks very much like Negrete’s, it makes one conjecture.” It was rumoured that the Emperor had been taken to Negrete, and for the next fortnight news came through that the Army of Echararri was advancing. Violent speeches denouncing the Spaniards were made by Congressmen, and some of the American citizens offered them (the Spaniards) hospitality. When the Emperor rode out he was greeted with shouts of “Down with the Republicans,” and “Down with Chararri.” The Empress remarked (with consummate tact!) to a European, “What do you think of that scoundrel, Chararri? It is enough to know that he is a European, and consequently bad.” The writer states: “A second proclamation has been issued by the Emperor, entreating unity. Ah, we know your game! . . . The Emperor has left for the campaign, accompanied by Bustamante.” The following entry is of special interest, as it reveals the writer’s identity and the fact that this diary is written entirely in his own autograph. His attitude towards the Emperor and others is likewise made clear.

“On the 21st February, 1823, the Minister Navarrete remarked that the intrigues of Baz, Bervete and others were being discovered—of course, Europeans, who are the alleged culprits in the case of Brigadier Sta. Ana. This nonsense was the outcome of the malice of that born detractor Villaseñor, who, because he observed Campillo salute Bervete at Baz’s door, presumed that he (Bervete) knew of or would help the escape of Baz to Moran’s troops. Bervete hardly knows Campillo, but this liberal and just interpretation on the part of the spy Villaseñor, brings happiness to this country which styles itself free—and this he solemnly assured Navarrete in the hope of getting rid of Bervete, whose great crime was not to have been born in America; for had this happened he would have been liked and considered distinguished in Spain, and in America would have made common cause to murder—by all the means inspired by hatred—his parents, grandparents, brothers, and other relatives who had likewise had the misfortune not to have been born near the marches of Anaguac, whose salubrious waters, they say, make the sons of the conquerors of those marshes humane, sweet, clever, generous, peaceful, and hospitable.”

The sarcasm has a double edge, as, of course, the writer is Bervete himself! “Poor Bervete, who has now fallen into the clutches of Villaseñor, who has ruined so many innocent families! And the other poor gentleman of the semi-anguished countenance, based on simplicity and candour. . . .

“Well, if in the Moorish style, I am locked up without a hearing, I leave this genuine declaration written and signed under my hand on the twenty-fourth of February, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-three. (Signed) Miguel Bervete. P.S.—The object of this paper is that some charitable person should insert it in a periodical so that the nation may be informed that Bervete is not imprisoned in the Inquisition for any fault of brutality or those marked in the catalogue of crimes. . . .” This paper has been sewn into the Diary, and the narrative of events continues. On the 15th March he says: “These last twenty-two days have been one series of frights and stratagems instigated by the tyrant and his satellites to cut the throats of the Europeans, who have had to hide away from their houses, especially at night. The Empress told an American the other day that all this tumult was the work of the ‘Gachupinos’ [Europeans], her husband was convinced of that, but that as soon as he had settled with the matter at Sta. Ana, he had promised her that he would do away with them all. The hypocritical Minister Dominguez . . . has expressed himself thus, in the presence of eight persons: ‘All that which has happened to Iturbide is due to his having trusted the Europeans; that Negrete is a rascal; that he was never a Liberal, and that if he went over to the Independent party it was only to revenge himself on Cruz . . . that he was a great despot . . . and the same could be said of Chararri and the Gachupines, who wrote all the papers against the Emperor . . . and others helped with money, in the rebel cause; and that while there was a Gachupin about, there would never be peace.’ The character of this mischief maker is well known, and his volubility and immorality are not to be wondered at. . . .

“There was great excitement to-day (the 16th March) as His Majesty ordered an assembly of the Congress, which lasted until two in the morning.” The matter was a question of taking up arms immediately against “the Liberating Army, which had over-stepped the line. . . . The Congress suggested that he should await the Commissioners who had been sent to treat with Moran. . . . There was a great disturbance and firing as on every night, and it is ascertained that His Imperial Majesty indulges in drunken orgies daily, and it is feared that in one of these he will knife all the inhabitants of Mexico, to terminate his Empire in a bacchanalian spirit. He has indulged in another comical feat; he went to the sanctuary of Guadalupe and mounted the pulpit, from where, in a loud clear voice he made a long deprecation to the Virgin, handing her his walking-stick, so that she should rule and care for the opulent Anahuac. The Church was full of Mexicans, who are his guards . . . and all wept copiously—from all of which there is no doubt that he is strengthening his position in Tacubaya. The monks and clergy help the despot a great deal. . . .

“Between eleven and twelve (the next day) there was a dispute which resulted in shots, and it seems that some people went to Negrete’s house and smashed all the windows. . . . The Liberating Army is marching on, and the Despot is preparing hostile movements.” The next day, “they say that to-night the Emperor leaves Tacubaya, but the destination is unknown.” Events were moving quickly, the throne was rocking on a sea of unrest. On the 19th it is recorded: “The Emperor has presented three propositions: That he abdicates the Crown. That he should be given twelve or fifteen days in which to prepare his journey for a foreign country; and that the nation should recognize certain debts which he had contracted with private individuals when he was one; and he asks for passports for thirty people . . . this humility may be a ruse to gain time for the development of some intrigue amongst the many that he plans every day and which are daily discovered. . . .

“The Emperor’s proposals are under consideration in Congress, as there was not the requisite number of Deputies present, and it is calculated that the Tyrant has made his proposition in bad faith with the object of gaining time. . . . The great Navarrete has been making big efforts on behalf of his lord and master to further his interests as above mentioned. He said that never never again should Bourbons be admitted—a Republic would be preferable to that. He blasphemed so much that even the deputies who favour a Republic were shocked. . . . At last (on the 23rd) the Tyrant has been granted a period of nine days in which to leave Mexico. . . .” Congress having deliberated for the greater part of two days, Mexico once more saw a change of Government. A few days elapse before the next reference is made to the central figure in this historical drama, and then, on the 4th April, his chronicler and bitter opponent refers to him as the “Ex-Emperor.” He says: “The Ex-Emperor arrived in Tulanzingo, and Congress has proposed that he should go to Italy with a pension of twenty-five thousand pesos per annum. . . .

“The seven edicts on the change of Government have been proclaimed with much pomp. There was some disorder in Tulanzingo on the arrival of the Despot, and the brave General received twenty anonymous letters from Mexico to the effect that he should bear in mind that all this was the work of Spaniards who desired to regain their dominion, with all the rest that they usually say about the Bourbons and Gachupines. . . . The Treaties of Cordoba and Plan de Iguala (convention) have been annulled in all except the three guarantees. . . . We are assured that Santa Ana is in Potosi and is travelling hither. . . . The Guatemala Deputies are endeavouring to separate from this Government, as they were only authorized to formulate law under the Plan de Iguala and the Treaty of Cordoba. . . . The monks are seditiously influencing the troops incessantly, in the hope of destroying the new régime. Some are off to Veracruz.” He describes the miserable condition in which the country remained after the numerous devastating campaigns, and sums up the condition briefly: “All poverty and paper.”

This absorbing manuscript passes on to the narration of events after the stormy Iturbide régime, when further storms resulted from the maze of intrigues which the writer exposes. The turbulent history of Mexico—or, rather, this most turbulent period of it—is written from the view point of one of the personalities who, himself, played an important part in it; although throughout this long narration, the writer confines his records principally to statements of fact and seldom gives expression to his prejudices.

Samuel Judah, dramatist and author, was born in New York, 1799. The above book we offer for sale is a versified satire directed against more than a hundred prominent citizens of New York, and is spoken of as defamatory by Daly, who gives an admirable critique of it in his sketch of the author. (See Daly, Settlement of the Jews, p. 139-145). Judah was indicted for libel, and, together with his publisher, was arrested. Unable to pay the fine imposed, he was sent to prison, but, owing to illness, he was soon pardoned by the governor and discharged. Subsequently he became an attorney and Councillor of the Supreme Court.

Dodderidge was reared in the wilderness and was intimately acquainted with the whole subject of which he writes. His work is drawn from original sources and from his own observations, and gives a striking picture of the life, times, and manners of the early frontiersmen. It also contains accounts of Dunmore's War, the Wappatomica campaign, Crawford's campaign, the war of 1763, etc. It is one of the original authorities, and has been resorted to by later writers, who have often neglected to give due credit for the source from which they have derived their information.

FRANKLIN'S SECOND CANADIAN EXPEDITION.

1825 A.D. [6242] FRANKLIN (Sir John). Original Autograph Letter Signed, concerning the progress of his Second Canadian Expedition, and the death of his first wife, addressed to Capt. Hawker.

Franklin writes in a pathetic manner of the loss of his wife, Eleanor Anne, who died a few days after he left England on his second expedition, and the news of which had recently reached him. He then tells of the kind reception he had met with in New York when proceeding to his base in Upper Canada, how he had reached the Mackenzie River, where he left a party under Lt. Back to build huts for the winter, whilst he had pushed on to the mouth of the river, so as "to determine the manner in which our operations next season must be carried on.

"At the same time Dr. Richardson was employed in surveying the northern limits of this immense lake (Great Bear Lake), to discover which was its nearest approach to the C. Mine (Coppermine) River, and consequently the part to which his party must direct their march on its return from the mouth of that River, should they be so fortunate as to reach so far next year. These points he satisfactorily settled. During our absence on these services, Lt. Back superintended the building of this present establishment, which my friends have had the kindness to name Franklin. We all got home early in Sept., and shortly afterwards the houses were finished, in which we have now taken up our quarters for the winter, and have every prospect through the blessing of God of passing a pleasant season."

Franklin then gives a short account of the surrounding country and of the animals, and of the arrangements for Sunday Service in the Settlement.

Capt. Edward Hawker, to whom the letter was sent, afterwards became an Admiral. He and his wife had given various books for the use of the expedition.

£1 5s

"The History of the Missions of the Jesuits in Paraguay, where they exerted an extraordinary influence and obtained almost supreme power, is full of interest. Most books on the subject are written by members of the order; but the fact that Muratori was not a Jesuit, has given his history a character of impartiality, not claimed for other authors. It was composed in great part from documents written by various Jesuit Missionaries and travellers, furnished to Muratori by Father Gaetan Cattanio, a missionary in Paraguay."

4 pp., 4to. Charleston, 29th July, 1827.

£2 2s

“ . . . I trust my Oration on reducing the Law to the form of a Code, and my Address on the character and objects of Science . . . have abundantly testified. I read, with much satisfaction, the letter on Popular Education, and cannot but regret that there should be any difference of opinion upon that subject, among the good and intelligent of any free country. We, however, who consider popular education to be as essential to the wellbeing of the political system, as a pure atmosphere to the health of our corporeal frame, need not be surprized that the singular diversity of human opinion, should be exhibited here, as it is everywhere else in the affairs of men. . . .

“ I wish much that some of the great and excellent men of your country would take up the question suggested in . . . my Address. . . Can it be possible that Greek and Latin are to be the basis of Education to the end of time? Can no man ever be a Statesman and Orator, a Philosopher, Historian, Critic or Poet, unless he shall have spent the greater part of his life, before 21, over the Classics? For myself I am ready to answer, soberly and emphatically, the first question in the negative, and the second in the affirmative.” Etc.

Stevenson went out to Chile in 1803 with the intention of travelling, but war breaking out between England and Spain he was arrested and imprisoned successively at Concepcion, Callao, and Lima. His liberty was gradually extended and in 1808 he became private secretary to the Capt. Gen. of Quito. On the outbreak of the Revolution he joined the insurgents, and in Dec., 1810, was appointed Governor of the Esmeraldas, and became secretary to Lord Cochrane in 1818, and shared in many of his naval operations. He visited England in 1824 and published his experiences, which are of great value for the period immediately preceding the revolution. Prescott especially praised his account of Lima, and made considerable use of his accounts of native manners and customs.

Sabin, 64323. This book make a great sensation on its publication, but is doubtless largely, if not wholly, fictitious. The famous novelist, Miss Jane Porter, asserted that the diary was genuine, and had been placed in her hands by the writer's family. According to an inscription in Bristol Cathedral, her brother, Dr. W. O. Porter, was the author, but this statement is not to be trusted, and probably the novelist herself had the principal part in its authorship.

Sm. 8vo, half morocco. Bound for Queen Hortense, with gilt monogram and crest on back, and stamped monogram on title-page. Paris, Crochard, 1832.

£3 10S

Sabin, 51413.

This work consists of ten of Murat's letters to Count Thibaudeau.

Queen Hortense of Holland was born in Paris, in 1783, and died in Arenem-berg in the year 1838. She was the daughter of General Alexander Beauharnais and of Josephine Tascher, afterwards Empress Josephine. At the tender age of seven she lost her father on the scaffold and at about the same time her mother was cast into prison. Her luck changed on her marriage to Louis Napoleon, her Mother having married the great Napoleon. Her third son Charles Louis Napoleon was destined to become later on Napoleon III, Emperor of France.

London, R. Hastings, 1841.

Sabin, 37440. 'Raines' Texas Bibliography, pp. 132-3.

"This book, on its first publication, was pronounced to be the best history of Texas extant. The Texan Congress passed a resolution of thanks to the author. Mr. Kennedy visited Texas in 1839 for historic material. His favourable report, on his return to England, doubtless prepared the way for English recognition of the Republic. The physical description of Texas in volume I is the best published up to that time, and the history proper is in a calm and dignified style, and is not without literary merit. No historian of Texas has more eloquent paragraphs. Out of print and scarce."—Raines.

more material than the edition in English, the illustrations are different, and the three maps are entirely new."

"A handsome volume, of over 400 pages, illustrated by engravings, and dedicated to Bishop Hughes, from the distant solitudes of the Rocky Mountains, by a pious Catholic priest, who devoted his life to the conversion of the Children of the Forest to Christianity. The book might properly enough be called a history of the religious occupation of Oregon, for it gives a minute account of all the missions that have been established, or attempted, in that vast and wonderful region to which the red men have been compelled to fly before the rising tide of civilization.

"We have been more deeply interested in the contents of this well-written volume, than in any similar work that we have ever read. The author seems to spread the great wilderness out before us like a map, and while kindling in our minds a sense of the infinite grandeur and beauty of Nature, inspires us at the time with something of the spirit of his own holy mission. The very names of the solitary places from which he dates his letters, not only startle us by their strangeness, but are linked with the most affecting associations—'Foot of the Cross of Peace'—'Village of the Sacred Heart of Jesus'—such are the names with which the Catholic Fathers christen the wilderness which is made glad by their labours.'" —New York Evening Mirror.

8vo, original picture boards. Guben, F. Fechner (1852).

Not in Cowan or Sabin.

A very curious little children's chap book. Much of the author's English is rather amusing. It is written in a "goody, goody" strain, with a fair sprinkling of "blood and thunder." The hero is a small German boy named Fred, who was emigrating to California with his father and mother. After various adventures they land at San Francisco, and the boy proceeds to the gold diggings, where the family fortunes are quickly made.

- 1867 A.D. [6538] JAMES (Henry, born 1843). American Novelist. Autograph Manuscript, being a review of "Italian Journeys," by W. D. Howells. 1867.
 Contained on some 27 pp., 4to.

A particularly interesting early manuscript by Henry James, reviewing for the "North American Review" a charming book by the famous American writer, W. D. Howells, entitled "Italian Journeys."

Henry James's review is an eulogistic one; he commences:—

"Under favour of his work on 'Venetian Life' Mr. Howells took his place as one of the most charming of American Writers, and most satisfactory of American travellers. He is assuredly not one of those who journey from Dan to Beersheba only to cry out that all is barren. Thanks to the keenness of his observation and the vivacity of his sympathies he treads afresh the most frequently trodden routes without on the one hand growing cynical over his little or great disappointments or taking refuge on the other, in the well-known alternative of the Baron Munchausen. Mr. Howells has an eye for the small things of Nature, of Art and of human life which enables him to extract sweetness and profit from adventures the most prosaic, and which proves him a very worthy successor of the author of the Sentimental Journey. Mr. Howells is in fact a sentimental traveller. He takes things as he finds them, and as history has made them." Etc., etc.

". . . In all countries, the Southerner seems to be the same in his difference to the Northerner, but in our own South the average man has been characterized by the habit of slavery, and this habit still lingers, after the fact of slavery, in the evidence of the whites towards one another and their obduracy towards the negroes. For the most part, Mr. Harben's Northern Georgians are of the poor white class, who were not slaveholders, but who seems to have more than halved the shareholder's contempt and cruelty in their attitude towards the subject race. They are small farmers, who till their own land, they are pioneers, they are backwoodsmen almost in the hunting and trapping stage, they are illicit distillers, they are traders, tending by instinct to the mountain towns where they enter commercial life, with an ambition for the great business of activity of Atlanta, their metropolis. The storekeeper is the plutocrat of the region, not surpassed in social dignity by the lawyer; he is the ultimate equal of the absolutescent aristocrat, the man of old family, without ceasing to be the friend and neighbor of the mountaineer farmer who trades with him and guards a jealous pride even in the toils of mortgage. In all Mr. Harben's stories some type of this mercantile magnate occurs; he is the new force, and very interesting in his relation to the strength of the ancient conservatism. The equality to which he bends himself, and which seems to shape the whole social fabric, is more formal than real, but still it is truer equality than ever pervaded the New England village life. In fact, whatever equality is, life among us in the enormous disparity of fortunes, is from the South rather than the North, where the ideal was always liberty, a barren and effectless thing without equality.' Etc.

The poem commences:—

"Now shift the blanket pad before your saddle back you fling,
And draw your sinch up tighter 'till the sweat drops from the ring,
We've a dozen miles to cover ere we reach the next divide,
Our limbs are stiffer now than when we first set out to ride,
And worse—the horses know it—and feel the leg grips tire
Since twenty years ago, old friend, we sought the old camp fire." Etc., etc.

£12 108

The poem commences:—

"Aye, look here it hangs! You would think 'twas a cross Fairly wrought of old iron. Yet—barring the loss
Of some twisted work here that once guarded the hand—
You might say 'twas the hilt of some cavalier's brand:
As it is, of a truth! You are staring, Senor!
At this shrine, at this altar, where never before
Hung ex voto so strange—at these walls in decay,
All that stands of the Mission of San Luis Rey;
At these leagues of wild llano beyond, which still hoard
In their heart this poor shrine, and a cavalier's sword!" Etc., etc.

ON THE DEATH OF HIS WIFE

- 1888 A.D. [6608] HOLMES (Oliver Wendell, 1809-1894) American Poet and Essayist.

Autograph Letter Signed to Charles G. Leland.

2 pp., 8vo. Boston, 3rd March, 1888. With addressed and stamped envelope.

£6 10s

A most pathetic but beautiful letter on the death of his wife. It is entirely in his own hand, although at this time he was compelled to employ an amanuensis to attend to most of his correspondence, and to this he refers.

“ . . . I have, of course, been almost overwhelmed with letters and messages of condolence. There is to me a sad kind of gratification in receiving them.

“I have had forty-five years of a very happy married life—then very probably as a consequence of a severe fall, my wife’s reason underwent a very gradual change, until she became almost like a child, but always sweet tempered, quick, docile, until by gentle gradations she faded away from life. We were spared all the pain of seeing the body lose its comeliness and become a wreck—all the anguish of parting—and are left with the sweetest and purest memories of a life which to the few that knew it well was altogether lovely.

“My daughter comes to live with me and I shall try to make the twilight of my life as bright and pleasant as my dear wife would have wished it to be.” Etc.

Fine facsimile reproduction, in colours, of the famous map of the World executed by Juan de la Cosa in the year 1500, size 6ft. 2ins. by 3ft. 2ins.; and with the 8vo volume of the text containing the life of Juan de la Cosa, and a full historical description of the Mapa-Mundi, in English, French, and Spanish.

The map is specially mounted on linen, folded to large 4to size, and bound in half levant morocco, gilt. The volume of text is enclosed in a pocket in the back cover. Madrid, 1892.

£4 4S

This valuable map is especially important for its representation of America, which had just been discovered. Juan de la Cosa was the owner and captain of the Santa Maria, the Admiral's ship in the first voyage of Columbus, and accompanied Columbus on that voyage. He made numerous later voyages to America, and enjoyed the highest reputation, being considered as the best pilot in those seas. He was murdered by the Indians of Venezuela in 1510.

ATTACKING NANSEN

Obtained decisive intelligence of Franklin's fate.

Autograph Letter Signed to Dr. Brown.

7 pp., 8vo. Kensington, 3rd July, 1892.

A very long and particularly interesting letter on Arctic matters; referring to "the American Peary's rash and reckless attempt"; also at great length attacking Nansen's observations in Greenland; further stating that—

"Nansen's scheme of attempting to reach the Pole, is, in a different way, as rash and foolish as poor Peary's. He will find no surface current running up to the pole or near it, so his vessel fixed in the floe ice will never drift him there. A scientific doctor or Doctor of Science as he calls himself ought to know better." Etc.

An Important Autograph Letter Signed to Mrs. Humphry Ward, the Novelist.

2 pp., 8vo. Boston, 21st April, 1894. With addressed envelope, bearing franking signature.

£6 6s

A very fine literary letter thanking Mrs. Ward for the present of her novel "Marcella," mentioning another novel, "Robert Elsmere," and commenting thereon. Also speaking of himself and his own writings.

"I felt much pleased when I received 'Marcella' sent me by yourself. I read 'Robert Elsmere' with singular interest and I have now read 'Marcella' with the greatest, the highest, the most absorbing mental excitement and delight. I read few novels and am less easily captivated by a long story. . . .

"I am too old to turn Reformer but I am as deeply interested in religious and social progress as one can be expected to be who is in his ninth decade. I am just now convalescent from a long illness and your story came at the right time,—it has refreshed as well as excited, entertained and instructed me.

"It pleases me to think that you know my name and may perhaps have read some of my writings." Etc.

8 pp., 8vo. New York, 5th November, 1899.

£2 10S

As to the great success in America of the play "Za-Za," written by Pierre Berton; also on other theatrical matters.

" . . . Our 'Za Za' rage still continues and our receipts are the most phenomenal ever known in this country. We have raised the prices everywhere. So you see what is possible over here with a great play and a great artist like our Mrs. Carter. I watch the play closely. In the big cities, I do it as in New York, but in the smaller cities, I tone it down to suit the provincial state. . . .

"Regarding 'Pardonne' Two important plays have just failed here on account of religion. 'The Gadfly' and 'Children of the Ghetto.' As I wrote before, there is a bitter prejudice against anything in an anti-religious vein. . . .

"Dear Madame Berton you have much influence with your husband, persuade, coax, talk, cajole, another play nearly as good as 'Za Za' for acting possibilities—then once more, luck will shake us all by the hand again." Etc., Etc.
